CHILD HEALTH DAY

MAY DAY CLINICS TO BE HELD HERE

Governor Ritchie has issued a proclamation setting aside the first day of May as Child Health Day, throughout Maryland, and asking Marylanders to join in the nationwide observance of the day.

Signed by the Governor and sealed with the Great Seal of the State, the message calls upon all Marylanders to give particular thought to the health needs of the children of this State and to assist in every way possible in furthering the health and well-being of Maryland's most valuable assets—its children and young people.

The State Committee for Child Health Day is composed of representatives of State, County and City Departments of Health and of Education; of State and county medical societies; parent-teacher associations; service clubs; organizations concerned with the care of handicapped children; recreational groups and others interested in the health or welfare of children. Dr. J. H. M. Knox, Jr., Chief of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health is Chairman of the State Committee.

Reports received by Dr. Knox show that arrangements are being made in every section of Maryland, to make this year's celebration of Child Health Day, especially worth while. In nearly all instances, the observance will not end with the day. Instead, it will mark the beginning of activities that will be carried on through the coming months.

Two Clinics Planned For Kent

Prevent Diphtheria

Parents who wish their children protected against Diphtheria are urged to take them to the family physician or bring them to the toxoid clinic at the Chestertown elementary school on Monday, May 1st at 10 a. m. This clinic is particularly for children between 1 year and eight years of age, as children over that age have had the opportunity to take advantage of this protection at school.

Too often the precautions are taken after diphtheria breaks out in the neighborhood which leaves the child exposed until the toxoid takes affect.

This mountain is occupied by a congregation of Monks who live entirely to themselves, the only way to reach the top where thy live is by a basket which is let down and drawn up by the monks themselves. They are reported to have a wonderful library of rare books among them many musical compositions of by gone days. It is to study this music that the symphony leader has gained permission to ascend the mountain.

The Wayside Poet

By J. Thomas Price

JUST SMILE

I have a quaint Philosophy,
To me seems well worth while;
No matter what your lot may be,
Just wear a cheery smile.

In business you may lose your grip,
And failure be your style;
You may not have the cash to burn,
But you can throw a smile.

The promises life made to you,
Your better self beguile;
May not materialize, but you—
Can face life with a smile.

What e'er the years may bring to you,
In blessings or denial;
A great big grin spread o'er your face,
Should always be your style.

And when my time is come to leave,
This world where men are tried;
And looking back on scenes of earth—
From the Eternal side.

I'll be proud of the epitaph,
Friends on my tomb may file;
'He lived and loved and always tried,
And left us with a smile.'

KENT COUNTY SECOND IN HEALTH CONTEST

PLACES SECOND IN NATION—WIDE CONTEST

Word has been received from the U. S. Chamber of Commerce that Chestertown was awarded second place in the Health Conservation Contest conducted by the Chamber of Commerce of the U. S. and the American Public Health Association.

The contest of cities is divided into six groups according to their population. Chestertown falls in the group of 20,000 and under. Lodi, California was the winning city in this class and Chestertown came second. In 1930 Chestertown was the leading city in this class and in 1931 was second as in 1932. The winning cities in the contest were:

500,000 population, Detroit.
250,000 population, Cincinnati.
100,000 population, Syracuse and New Haven (tied.)
50,00 population, East Orange.
30,000 population, Brooklyn, Mass.
20,000 population, Lodi, California.

This is the only contest in the U. S. which rates health departments. It does not mean that the winning town is the healthiest town but does indicate that the city is outstanding in its organization of health work.

The fact finding schedule which is used in rating the health departments covers such subjects as the local water supply, sewerage disposal, protection of milk supply, preventive measures such as small-pox vaccination, diphtheria immunization, health work in the schools, control of communicable disease, public health nursing activities, clinics and laboratory work. Community health interest and education are important subjects covered in the questionnaire as is the reduction of death rates from communicable diseases.

The contest was started in 1929 and sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. The purpose of this contest was to bring local business men in the Chamber of Commerce in more direct contact with the health department, to aid in reducing mortality and morbidity from diseases which are preventable and finally to foster scientific promotion of health in the community.

The American Public Health Association furnished the Field Consultant Service which consists of several trained men who visit a health department in the contest and carefully scrutinize the answers to questions. The Board of Judges consists of eight outstanding health administrators in the U. S. The award is presented to the winning cities each year at the annual meeting of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce.

Only cities can participate where there is an affiliated Chamber of Commerce with the U. S. Chamber of Commerce. During 1933 one hundred forty cities participated.

The Health Officer, Dr. R. G. Beachley, was appointed last year by the President of the American Public Health Association as a member of the sub-committee in reviewing and correcting the fact-finding schedule which is used in grading the cities.
