NOW AND THEN

PRAYER FOR A LITTLE HOME

By Florence Bone.

God send us a little home
To come back to when we roam—
Low walls and fluted tiles,
Wide windows, a view for miles;
Red firelight and deep chairs;
Small white beds upstairs;
Great talk in little nooks;
Dim colors, rows of books;
One picture on each wall;
Not many things at all.
God send us a little ground—
Tall trees standing round,
Homely flowers in brown sod,
Overhead Thy stars, O God!
God bless when winds blow
Our home and all we know.

In these days when so many have to leave their homes to seek employment elsewhere, their thoughts turn back to their homes with longing. "Heimweh" as the Germans call it possesses everyone at times.

There is nothing sweeter in all this world than a congenial home where loved ones dwell.

Have you noticed how much tamer the birds are now since the law protecting songsters has passed. Just now I passed a robin which was in the act of devouring a juicy worm. Did be fly away? Not he. He never changed his position though I brushed near him in passing. They say that Audubon, the friend of birds would go out in the park and his little feathered friends would be flutter ing all around him. It was he that started the campaign of not wearing feathers on the hats for many of the feathers tell the story of a dead bird.

It is nice to see the world though other people's eyes if one can not travel to see it ones self. After all we see so many delightful things in our imagination, more beautiful perhaps than that which is reality. Like Curtis in his lovely book "Prue and I," we go travelling in our thought and see the wonders of far away.

AIR CASTLES

I would rather be a builder
Of castles made of air,
To be rebuilded ev'ry day,
And dwell in fancy there
With ev'rything to make me glad,
The doors all closed to gloom,
And sunlight of tomorrow
Shining into ev'ry room,
Than ever keep within the walls
Of sad things, past or now,
For though my castles do not last,
They're cheering anyhow,
And so I build and build again,
Rebuild from day to day,
And some time the Master Builder
May let my castles stay.

How lovely the woods are now! The dogwood rains have brought out the blossoms and one sees everywhere their starry blooms. Laurel and honey suckle are doing their best to make their surroundings beautiful, but the dog woods lift their blossoms higher.

Dogwood Blossoms

From the Raleigh News and Observer

The silver lining to some cloud no doubt
That moonbeams punctured and turned inside out.
A snowflake-prison or a wild-rose dream
Or else the swan-song of some ice-bound stream.
Heartease for every bursting bough of spring—
Dogwood—a windfall of imagining!

SAYS OBSTACLES ALMOST KILL-FOREIGN COMMERCE

AUTHOR OF BOOKS ON BUSINESS IS SPEAKER AT EXPORT MANAGERS' CLUB MEETING

Obstacles which beset all traders with foreign countries have almost killed commerce, according to Dr. Louis E. Van Norman, editor and author of books on business, who yesterday addressed members of the Baltimore, Export Managers' Club at their meeting at the Southern Hotel.

"Tariffs, efforts to control exchanges, trade agreements and similar restrictions equally futile and absurd have made the exchange of commodities almost impossible," the speaker said.

Mr. Van Norman, who is a resident of Washington, then told of a number of incidents to show the effect these restrictions had on various markets.

HOSPITAL CASE STILL UNSETTLED

The case of Charles W. Duffield vs. he Kent and Upper Queen Annes Genral hospital was tried at Elkton on last Friday, the jury disagreeing after being out for over four hours. Mr. Duffield wishes to recover the $2000 given by him for the building of a children's ward, the hospital on account of the stringent times, not having been built. The case is a very important for it is thought that on its hinges the disposition of the funds given to the hospital during the drive. Many local witnesses testified in the case.

LOCAL CLUB PLANS REGATTA

DATES SET FOR JULY 28TH AND 29TH

BAY RACE TO BE STAGED IN JUNE

At a meeting of the Regatta Committee of the Chester River Yacht and Country Club on Monday evening of this week, it was decided to hold the annual regatta this year on the dates of July 28th and 29th.

The tentative plans of the regatta will be to hold the gold cup championship of the Chesapeake Bay in June following the ocean race to be staged by the Gibson Island Yacht Club from New London Connecticut to Gibson Island. The present plans are to hold the bay race on the Sunday following the finish of the ocean race, which will attract some of the larger boats to enter.

The plans for July 29th and 30th are to hold the log sailing canoe and star boat races on Friday off the mouth of Lankford bay to be followed by a handicap sailing race to anchorage at Chestertown.

The Saturday's program which will be held at Chestertown, will include sailing and speed boat races. A handicap log sailing canoe race is planned for that day at Chestertown.

Model Race Planned

Waterman on Chester River have gone in for model sail boat racing and the present regatta plans are to have a race for this type of boats on Saturday. It is expected that a number of dark horses which are under construction now will enter this race.

THE FARM BILL

HOW IT WILL EFFECT KENT COUNTY FARMERS

The following questions immediately arise in the minds of the farmer and urban dweller with reference to the new farm bill. The immediate question of how it will directly affect the farmer and the consumer is asked. The following questions and answers with relieve much of the confusion of those who have read the bill but have not take the time to give it sufficient study:

General

Q. Today we have want in the midst of plenty. What answer does the Farm Act make to that?

A. When the farmer has not the income to buy from the city, the city worker loses his job and cannot buy farm products. By creating conditions which will help to restore the ability of the farmer to buy from the city, one step will have been taken toward doing away with want in the cities.

Q. But isn't the trouble underconsumption rather than overproduction?

A. It is both. Domestic consumption of food, however, hasn't declined as much as you might think. Even if domestic consumption were back to normal, farmers would still be producing surpluses of most staple commodities, in addition to the heavy excess stocks already on hand.

Q. How do you reconcile this reduction of production with the fact that for years the U. S. D. A. has been urging farmers to produce more, and showing them how to do it?

A. We have urged farmers to produce more to the acre, and have urged them as individuals to reduce their acres. The present bill faces the fact that the individual farmer cannot adjust his production intelligently unless he knows that his neighbors will do likewise. Hence the collective action proposed by the Farm Act.

WELFARE WORK

Work of the Kent County Welfare Board is oing forward and members of that board are working in all parts of the county to determine the actual relief work necessary.

In each case the board is assisted by a local committee which gives direct information as to the worthiness of the case.

Where a family is in distress, and a member of that family is able to work, constructive work projects are being arranged so as to afford that member an opportunity to earn enough food to relieve hunger.

Mrs. Thomas Massey, Welfare Worker for the Board is investigating the cases reported and every effort is being made to assist only the most worthy cases. As this check up is being carried on the Work Committee are arranging certain work projects to start next week in the Fifth District and other parts of the county. As has been pointed out the work projects are for distress relief and not for unemployment and in carrying out this aim the compensation for work will be controlled so as to go toward the relief of the family involved and cannot be used for other purposes. In this way the labor on the work projects will not be sufficiently attractive to encourage anyone who is not in need of distress relief to apply for work.

In each case where the work relief is being carried on the community will bear the expense of all materials and supervision, the Board to O. K. for payment only the compensation for actual labor.

TOLCHESTER CO. BUYS BOAT

WILL BE BAY'S LARGEST EXCURSION BOAT

The Tolchester Company has purchased the Bombay an excursion boat for operation on the route from Baltimore to Tolchester.

According to a statement made by the Tolchester Company, this boat will be the largest excursion boat on the Chesapeake Bay.

The Bombay, which has been operating on the Hudson River is nearly one hundred yards long, is speedier than the Express, and will make three trips daily to and from Baltimore starting June 10 th. The name will be changed to Tolchester. The length of the new boat will necessitate the addition of forty feet to the pier in Baltimore.

No automobiles will be carried on the new boat and she will devoted entirely to excursion and passenger service.

The Tolchester arrived in Baltimore this week from New York where the finishing touches will be made in preparation for service next week. Fast and luxurious, sh will afford the most attractive excursion service on the Chesapeake Bak, accomodating 3500 people. Her speed is rated at 16 miles an hour and she can make the run in an hour and a half.

The steamers Emma Giles and Annapolis will continue handling the ferry service. Although the official schedule has nat been announcd, the present plans include three trips a day for th Tolchester and three trips a day for the ferry boats, which will mean six trips daily across the bay.

TWO BEER LICENSES REFUSFD

COLLEGE HILL FILLING STATION AND LEONARD ROBINSON OF MILLINGTON

A permit to sell beer was refused the College Hill Filling Station, operated by Maxwell Crowding. The permit was refused for just one reason, and that was, that one of the ten signers of the petition was not a voter. The law requires that they all be voters. Mr. Crowding can get another signer in the place of this one and make application again. No other objection was considered.

Money spent with the License Bureau in the effort to obtain the first license can be applied on the second license. It is believed that Mr. Crowding will immediately make arrangements to get the license. Notary cost and costs of adv. will have to be paid again.

Leonard Robinson, of Millington, was refused a license to sell beer because of the number of witnesses that testified against his character. The commission refused his license for that reason. A move is on to have another man in Millington secure license, so that beer can be sold in that town.

"STATE FAIR"

Setting a new Hollywood record in production achievement, Fox Film completed its second elaborate picture within a month.

The latest, coming on Wednesday and Thursday, May 24 and 25, to the New Lyceum Theatre, is "State Fair," the all-star production based on Phil Stong's Literary Guild prize novel. Included in the cast are Janet Gaynor, Will Rogers, Lew Ayres, Sally Eilers, Norman Foster, Frank Craven, Louise Dresser and Victor Jory.

Following closely upon the completion of the Noel Coward drama, "Cavalcade" the finishing of "State Fair" culminated a production undertaking unprecedented in motion picture history. Never before have two pictures of this magnitude been filmed simultaneously at a single studio.

The completion of "State Fair" brought to a close continuous activity which extended over a period exceeding six months. Preparatory work included a visit by the director, Henry King, and a technical staff to the leading fairs of the Midwest.

Phil Stong also was called to Hollywood for conferences concerning the screen treatment of his best-selling book.

While the human cast for the picture was assembled from the ranking stars of Hollywood, Fox brought a pride of the Midwest to the picture capital to portray the prize hog of the story. He is Blue Boy, 900-pound grand champion Hampshire boar.

The story of "State Fair" concerns the loves and adventures of a farm family at a big exposition. Double romance and comedy are its outstanding features. The romance involves two new star teams in Janet Gaynar and Lew Ayres, and Sally Eilers and Norman Foster. Will Rogers, Frank Craven, Louise Dresser and Victor Jory supply the comedy.
