THE SQUADRON'S LOG

BY THE STOWAWAY

The Squadron is going overboard. How boats can go overboard that have never been out of water, the First Mate cannot figure out, but hopes that one of the dock inspectors at the Yacht Club pier can explain.

Respectable citizens are donning disreputable pants and are congregating at the Club Wharf. Once it seemed that goin overboard might be a nautical term for paint. The energy exhibited between showers by squadron members in exceeded only by the effluvia wafted over Quaker Neck Road.

But for all the shine and glitter, the freshly painted squadron is not yet overboard, except in two minor incidences:

Scott Thompson's pumpkin colored Jamagat tried to rush the season one Sunday. Hynson Rogers, not to be out done, rigged up the Yo Yo, and had his first sail of the season.

Crashes, bangs, speetlers, overheated motors, and overheated language attest the firing up of engines. The First Mate suspects that smoothly running engines are somehow connected with going overboard.

Hold your nose, and stuff cotton in your ears when you go out Quaker Neck Road these days.

The Squadron's Galley Slaves had their innings at the Yachtsmen's annual dinner Friday night at the Chester River Yacht and Country Club, when they served the members and guests.

Activities connected with the dinner have been in progress for a week or more, from the day Mrs. Galley Slave Westcott was made responsible for the success of the dinner, while Captain Hynson Rogers was being presented with a new set of colors as a token of appreciation by the 1933 class of the U. S. Power Squadron, and while new Squadron members were being welcomed, the Galley Slaves toiled on behind the closed doors of the club galley.

Later some of them, resting wearily in the shadows of the balcony, waited for their squadron husbands to chauffer them home, and heard with much satisfaction, the appreciative remarks made about the excellence of the dinner.

Scott Thompson's Galley Slave daughter, assisted by her father caught the terrapin with which the Club Lake has been stocked, Miss Julia Emory prepared it, and the Squadron ate it.

W. C. LOSES TO ROCK HALL

GRANT TO TRY OUT WITH ATHLETICS

EKAITIS IN RING BOUT LAST NIGHT

Washington College lost to Rock Hall on Wednesday of this week at Chestertown 9 to 11 after the downthe-county team took a lead in the first two innings of 8 to 0. Kessel, who started the game for Washington on the mound was taken out and relieved by Evans, first baseman. Washington had the best of the remaining seven innings, getting 9 runs to the visitor's 3. Carey, Washington's regular moundsman was not used against his former teammates. This game was the postponed game of two weeks ago when rain interferred. In the first game between these two teams at Rock Hall, Washington won by the margin of one run when Carey and Loller were opposing pitchers.

Loller Playing With Wyoming

Bill Loller, former pitching ace for Rock Hall and outstanding hurler in the league last year, has joined the Wyoming, Delaware team which is playing a two game a week schedule. He has the reputation of being able to ably fill any position on the team. He caught in his first game with that team last week.

Grant To Try-Out With "A's"

Grant, who has been holding down the catching position for Rock Hall went to Philadelphia on Tuesday of this week for a tryout with the Athletics but due to rain he was told to report back June 6th. Manager Tucker will find difficulty in replacing this battery but Wright is showing promise on the mound.

Rock Hall Wins Over Barclay

In a game that looked like an easy victory for Barclay in the first six innings, Rock Hall staged a rally to win by the margin of one run last Saturday 7 to 6. Wright, pitching for Rock Hall was very wild in the first part of the game but steadied down in the latter part to hold Barclay scoreless in the last three innings.

Washington Loses To Easton

In a game last Saturday that was featured by 6 hits and 4 runs, Easton defeated Washington College 4 to 0. Carey pitching for Washington held the opponents to 5 singles and one double, which due to poor support by his team mates allowed 4 unearned runs. Carter, for Easton held Washington to 4 singles which did not set a run.

Baseball is fast gaining favor in Kent County and although the high schools are not playing this season, back lots and athletic fields are crowded with ball players ranging in age from six years to—well there seems to be no age limit in some localities. The game is still the king of sports in this section.

EKAITIS IN RING LAST NIGHT

Local sport fans were pulling for George Ekitis last night when he met Frank Susky, Philadelphia heavyweight, in the first professional ring bout of his career. Ekaitis, assistant coach at Washington College, was intercollegiate champion in the 175 lb. class while at Western Maryland College in 1931 and has engaged in but one bout since that time.

GOLCSBOROUGH SEES RISING PRICE LEVEL

A rising price level, such as followed the discoveries of gold in South Africa and in the Klondike, will follow the application by President Roosevelt of the gold revaluation section of the administration's monetary amendments to the farm bill, passed by the House yesterday, in the opinion of representative . Alan Goldsborough, of Maryland. Permanent legislation to stabilize the currency and price levels thus brought about. Representative Goldsborough declared, should have the early attention of Congress.

Contrasting the theories upon which the last and the present administrations acted in an endeavor to bring the country out of the depression, Mr. Goldsborough said that the previous administration had used various credit agencies, such as the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the Home Loan Bank act and the gift of $125,000,000 to the land banks. Action through these agencies, he stated tended simply to transfer private debt to the public Treasury or to increase the debt burden, and no process of this kind could do anything except accelerate the process of deflation, it was held.

The Wayside Poet

By J. Thomas Price

A FAITHFUL FRIEND

What is the best thing earth can give,
As we go on our pilgrim way?
That makes worth-while the life I live.
And gives new courage, day by day.
'Tis not the gold that glitters bright,
For this may vanish, over night;
'Tis not the fame, she oft does lend,
It is a faithful, loving friend.

Great honor comes, men rise to fame,
Men live in wealth, and great display;
The great of earth, may speak our name,
But all of these will pass away.
The gift, for which my heart doth yearn,
For which, from other gifts, would turn;
A shield and comfort to the end,
It is a faithful, loving, friend.

A strong defence, is such a friend,
In hours of my greatest need;
Such strength and courage, he doth lend,
That makes him such a friend indeed;
My faith, in God and man, makes strong,
And never leads me into wrong,
I'll thankful be, till life shall end,
For such a faithful, loving, friend.

NOTE:—Dr. Price, The Wayside Poet, speaks over Radio W D E L, Wilmington, Del., every Monday at 11.00 A. M.. and W I. P. Philadelphia, Pa., at 3.00 P. M. Tune in and hear him.
