NOW AND THEN

RED GERANIUMS
By Martha Haskell Clark

Life did not bring me silken gowns,
Nor jewels for my hair,
Nor sight of gabled, foreign towns
In distant countries fair,
But I can glimpse beyond my pane
a green and frindly hill,
And red geraniums aflame upon my
window-sill.
The brambled cares of every day,
The tiny, humdrum things
May bind my feet when they would stray,
But still my heart has wings
While red geraniums are bloomed against my window-glass,
And low above my green-sweet hill
the gypsy wind-clouds pass.
And if my dreamings ne'er come true,
The brightest and the best,
But leave me lone my journey through,
I'll set my heart at rest
And thank Thee, God, for home sweet things, a green and windy hill
And red geraniums aflame upon my window-sill.

Love of flowers and all nature is a worthwhile thing to cultivate. It grows and grows, just as the love of music grows with the years, if we attune our ears to appreciate it. The man is surely to be pitied who does not see the beauty in nature nor to love the sound of music.

Well done! Are yau taking off your hats to the City Councilmen who are going to have a curb put around the town square on which stands the monument to the soldiers who fought for their country? We could wish, too, that they could do away with the carnival in the park. The firemen alas, unselfish fellows, that they are, are compelled to raise funds for carrying on, and it is up to those who regret the fact of the carnival in the town's beauty spot, to make donations to the company which would do away with the necessity of the carnival.

President Roosevelt's voice over the radio Monday evening was strong and clear. It gives one hope that a wise pilot is steering the ship of state through the troublous seas of these uncertain times. There is an article in Colliers of this week entitled "The Man Misfortune Made." telling of the president's wonderful patience, inured by suffering in his strenuous efforts to overcome the effects of infamtile paralysis. It tells of his undaunted endurance, his clear brain and his forethought in planning. Let us hope that he will land us safely into calmer waters before long.

Oh, I wish it would rain! said the gardeners and farmers as they looked upon their growing crops, and a gracious rain on God's Inheritance came and refreshed it when it was dry.

It reminds me of the little poem by Baring Gould. This is it,

THE OLIVE TREE

Said an ancient hermit kneeling,
Half in prayer upon his knee,
"Oil I need for midnight burning,
I desire an olive tree.

So he took a slender sapling
Planted it before his cave;
Spread his trembling hands above it,
As a benison he gave.

But he said "the rain it needeth,
That the roots may grow and swell;
God, I pray thee send the showers."
So the gentle showers fell.

"Send the sunshine," prayed the hermit
"Nourishing the little child,
So the dripping clouds divided
And the sun looked forth and smiled.

"Frost it needs to brace its tissues,
"Oh, my God," the hermit cried,
So the plant was bright and hoary,
But at eventide it died.

Went the hermit to his brother,
Sitting in his rocky cell:
Thou an olive tree posseseth,
How is this, pray brother tell!

I have planted one and prayed,
First for sunshine then for rain.
God hath granted each petition
Yet my olive tree hath slain.

Said the other I intrusted
To its God my olive tree,
He who made, knew what it needed,
Better than a man like me.

KIDDIE REVIEW AT BETTERTON

The Kiddie Review, presented Thursday night at the Betterton Casino was well received by a capacity house. Kiddies from Baltimore, ranging in age from 6 to 14 years gave exhibitions of toe, tap, and asthetic dancing.

A feature of the review was the numerous old time tunes that were used for the dances indicating that these songs are coming back in favor with these future screen and radio stars.

The floor show next Thursday will be a review "A Night In Spain."

BANK DEPOSITORS COOPERATE

FIRST WEEKS RETURN VERY GRATIFYING

Through confidence in the Third National Bank, the soundness of the plan for reopening and the realization that the Federal Government, who worked out the plan, is primarily looking to the interests of the depositors, the depositors of the bank have shown an almost unanimous desire to cooperate and the result is very gratifying to all.

Every mail brings in the signatures of numerous depositors and many have called personally at the bank.

Immediate action on the part of those who have not already signed will speed the opening of the bank which is of vital interest to all depositors and the community at large. To those who do not thoroughly understand the plan, information is available at the bank or from any of the bank officials.

The bank may open after August 14th and at the rate that things are progressing todate it will be open within the minimum time limit allowed.

WHEAT PROCESSING TAX PLAN

$110,000 AVAILABLE FOR KENT COUNTY IF GROWERS COOPERATE

Following a conference at Centreville on Tuesday, at which details of the campaign for controlled production of wheat were discussed, official authorization was given Maryland County Agents to attack the big job of informing the public of the significance of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration Plan (Voluntary domestic allotment) to bring about and establish the noraml or "parity" purchasing power of wheat.

Kent's Temorary Wheat Committee (as announced last week) will meet Friday night at the Court House to plan the dates and places for the meetings to be held throughout the county. Detailed plans for the meetings will be made.

Although the $110,000 in benefits due Kent Growers of wheat, if 100 per cent cooperate in the plan, is the big item some people see and think about, it should be clearly understood that this reward for cooperating is of very minor importance in the philosophy underlying the domestic allotment plan. The big and basic element in the plan is controlled production through shared responsibility and cooperation by wheat growing folk, looking to the establishing and maintaining the purchasing power of wheat. National welfare is as much at stake as are the farmers interests. When the farmers' purchasing power is restored, he will buy the products of Industry. His buying power has been reduced more than half. Farmer demand, when his buying power is restored will call four millions of the unemployed back to work to supply that demand. Putting the unemployed of labor back to work means more demand and better prices for farm products and more demands for products of industry. All of which means the return of prosperity.

'According to the official allotment of wheat as Kent's share the records show that the average grower in Kent produces over 1,000 bushels per grower. On the basis of this average of which 54 per cent or 540 bushels are eligible for the thirty cents per bushel adjustment bonus or benefit, the plan meaons over $150 net per average grower this year. Similar benefits apply in '34 and '35.

Large attendance is expected at all meetings. Certainly every one in Kent County will want to have full information on this wheat adjustment plan. Full and complete publicity is available to every one. Charts on the world wheat situation are most convincing. The reactions of all classes of people are sought. The questions and answers should make the operation and the advantages of the plan clear to all. Bankers, millers, business men in fact all people are invited to share in the meetings. The Plan is of great significance to all Kent County.

COMMUNICABLE DISEASES

TYPHOID FEVER

Three cases of typhoid fever were reported during June. One case contracted the disease while in Baltimore. The contacts in this case were very definite as the patient visited in a home where several in the family had had the disease.

The second case developed in Worton and the exact source has not been determined to date.

The third case was in Chestertown in a family where typhoid had occurred several years ago. It is entirely possible that one member of this family is a carrier.

In all instances the members of the families were given the prophylactic dose of vaccine, the homes supplied with disinfectant, and advice given concerning the isolation of the patients.

Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever

One case of Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever was reported from Kent County during June. A special investigation was made of this case and it was assumed that she contracted her disease from wood ticks. This case was found to be living under very destitute conditions and was immediately moved to Easton Hospital and placed under special quarantine in a private room.

Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever first made its appearance in this section of the country about three yars ago. One of the first cases reported in Maryland was in the vicinity of Sudlersville. During 1933 approximately twenty-one case have been reported in Maryland. There is no specific treatment for these patients although recently a vaccine has been mad to be used as a preventive in sections where the disase is very prevalent.

Two cases of chicken pox, three impetigo, two cases of measles, two mumps, one pneumona, seven tuberculosis, and nine social disease cases were reported during the month.

Pre-School Clinics

Each year during the summer months the Health Department offers a medical examination to all children entering school the following fall. The child health conferences are usually carried on the last week during school and are held in some ten or twelve points in the county. Children with defects are referred to their family physician for corrections.

A second series of child health conferences is held later in the summer when the healthmobile visits the county and offers examinations to children of the pre-school age. The healthmobile is equipped with a nurse, physician, and dentist. During June two hundred and four pre-school children were examined.

"HEROES FOR SALE"

The picture that is rated as the finest Richard Barthelmess characterization of the past few years is due to show at the New Lyceum Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday, August 2 and 3. It is the First National production, "Heroes for Sale," a story of war, romance and depression.

While telling an entertaining story, the picture also graphically details a man's struggle through the post-war period and the present era. The story opens with the World War in which Barthelmess is severely wounded, carrying his afflictions with him into the life he resumes at home. The veteran's ups and downs in his attempts at rehabilitation, the callous indifference of employers and civic officials to his plight, and the problems that have faced the unemployed man during the present time all form an integral part of this vivid, realistic story which paints things as they are.

The element of romance mingles with tragedy and comedy in lifelike proportions. The important role of the girl was assigned to beautiful Loretta Young, who has distinguished herself in films during the past two years to the extent of becoming a top-notch figure in screendom.

Another novel characterization is given to Aline MacMahon, whose versatility and ability are demonstrated in the varied roles she essays in each succeeding picture. "Heroes for Sale" gives her an entirely different and novel role to play.

Others who make up the supporting cast of this pictur are Gordon Westcott, Robert Barrat, Robert Elliott and others.

The original screen play was one of the last works of the late Wilson Mizner, one of America's most famous writers of film stories. Some of the outstanding realistic films that came from the Warner Bros.-First National Studio during the past year were the work of Mizner.

SEEKS LOCATION OF COLUMBIA X ROADS

The Historical Committee last year, in connection with the George Washington Bi-Centennial celebration, spent many days searching records in an effort to locate various places whose names have been changed and their work was considered complete until this week.

Postmaster William G. Smyth received a letter this week from Mr. George C. Starkey, of Waterloo, N. Y., inquiring as to the location of Columbia X Roads, stating that he has in his possession a letter dated 1844 that was addressed to his grandfather at Columbia X Roads, Kent County, Md.

He also stated that his grandmother was named Bosee and it is thought that Columbia X Roads might have been in Morgnec, as a family by that name lived in Morgnec and owned the farm adjoining the Melvin school house.

Any information that can be supplied will be appreciated by Postmaster Smythe.
