The Road To Better Health

HEALTH AND DISEASE

By DR. WILLIAM J. SCHOLES

It cannot be emphasized too strongly that the mechanical overshadows the chemical in the human organism. The body IS more a machine than a laboratory.

Take, for instance, gastro-intestinal troubles What is the usual course of these cases? Isn't it true that they go from doctor to doctor, each of whom give the disorder a different name? One says it is gall bladder infection; another, ulcer of the stomach; another, chronic appendix; another, chronic appendix; anotherJft....Ner, adhesions One gives medicine; another advises immediate operation; another puts the patient on a diet; another says nothing can be done.

The functional capacity of all parts of the body depends upon their motive power. The heart, lungs, liver, stomach, intestines, kidneys, glands, blood vessels, all possess a certain amount of contractile tissue (muscle) which is the power behind their activity. The moment this structure loses its tone and elastictly the part ceases to properly function.

Results of Reduced Motility

Returning to our illustration— the gastro-intestinal system— what would follow? Food would be imperfectly broken up because the stomach lacks motility. The cellulose envelope of the food cells would be dissolved because secretion is defective. Digestion in the intestinal tract would be inadequate because of sluggish propulsion of the food and lack of digestive ferments. Absorption and assimilation would be defective and elimination of the residue would be curtailed.

In the face of such abnormal functioning what will be the result Indigestion, gastritis, atony, dilatation, ptosis, malnutrition, auto-intoxication, constipation—each contributing its distressing symptors to the clinical picture.

Would medicine help such a case? Would an operation relieve the sufferer? Would a change of climate do him any good.

The answer is—NO!

Sez You!

"After all," says a politician, "Great Britain and America speak the same language."

"Oh, yeah?"—The Humorist Magazine.

UNANIMOUS

"What sort of fellow is Jones?"

"Well, he means well."

"So you think him a nuisance, too."

Imagination

She—Do you remember where you were first struck by my beauty?

He—Yes, dearest. It was at a masked ball.—Boston Transcript.

No Stopping It

Teacher—Willie, what is an adult?

Willie—An adult is one that has stopped growing except in the middle.—Kansas City Star.

SPOILED SPORT

Algernon, armed with up-to-date fishing outfit, emerged from the railway station and made straight for the stream.

He wore a contented and expectant smile as he arranged his tackle and adjusted the bait. Then he selected a shady spot on the bank near the bridge, threw out his line, and awaited results.

For two hours he waited, and for a quarter of that time a yokel annoyed him by leaning over the bridge and watching him.

At last the yokel spoke. "Hi, mister," he said, "you'll catch no fish there."

The sportsman threw down his rod in disgust.

"You silly juggins!" he exclaimed. "Why did you tell me that? Now you've spoiled my whole day's fishing!"

Wings

"Is your family going to be active in society?"

"I suppose so," answered Senator Sorghum. "You can't expect them to deny themselves the same pleasures that they enjoyed at home."

"Will you become a social butterfly yourself?"

"No, I'll keep working hard and try to fly high enough to get into the airplane class."

Seemed Wasteful

The son of the house was gazing through the drawing room window at the rain.

Presently he turned to his mother.

"Mummy," he said, "why does it rain?"

"To make things grow," she replied: "to give us flowers and apples and pears—"

"Then why does it rain on the pavements?" asked the child.

Obeying Instructions

The new office boy had been instructed how to answer callers. Just before noon a man asked, "Is the boss in?"

"Are you a salesman, a bill collector or a friend of his?" the boy inquired.

"All three," was the answer.

"Well, he's in a business conference."

EXPRESSION

"See the latest? A beauty specialist says the back may be made highly expressive."

"It can when a woman turns it on you."

Line's Busy

George (From Next Door)—Mrs. Jones, may I use your telephone?

Mrs. Jones—Certainly, George. Is yours out of order?

George—Well, not exactly, but sis is using it to hold up the window, ma's cutting biscuits with the mouthpiece, and baby's teething on the cord.—Wall Street Journal.

Maybe She Saw How

One rainy day recently a lady in silken finery climbed aboard a tram, sniffed, and exclaimed: "This is the first time I've ridden a tram for years. I ride in my own car."

"You don't know how we've missed you," the conductor remarked.—Grit.

Keep an Eye on Him

Little Willie—Mom, you said the baby had your eyes and daddy's nose, didn't you?

Mom—Yes, darling.

Willie—Well, you'd better keep your eye on him. He's got grandpop's teeth now.

That College Spirit

Postmaster—What makes you stick those postage stamps on your letters always in such a peculiar manner?

Young Man—I'm taking a course in the international correspondence school, and that's our class yell.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Ever Try Cobbler's Wax?

Actor—Yes, my friends, usually my audiences are glued to their seats.

Friend—What a quaint way of keeping them there!—Legion Weekly.

HOPE IT STICKS

"That handsome poet said he was going to write a sonnet on my eyelashes."

"I hope he uses ink, they have been penciled too much already."

An Animal Joke

Brown—How did he get your goat?

Miss Jones—Making sheep's eyes at me.
