SURVEY MADE OF RADCLIFFE BRIDGE

NEW BRIDGE MAY BE BUILT THIS WINTER

Kent county may get two new small bridges in the winter construction program, the bridges at Brook's Mill and Radcliffe Creek.

In building the new bridge over Radcliffe Creek, a causeway is being considered which will dam up this creek and make a lake similar to that at the Country Club. The property holders along this creek are in favor of the proposed causway project.

In handling the traffic during construction, two methods are under consideration by District Engineer Rolph Townshend, one is to build a temporary bridge near the present bridge and the other is to improve the Airy Hill road and route the traffic. The latter plan is considered the most advisable as it will permanently improve that road while the former plan to build a temporary bridge would be wasted money as it would have to be torn out after the other bridge is completed. The construction work will probably be done during the winter months when the traffic is lightest.

In all probability the bridge at Brook's Mill will be constructed first.

PROGRESS REPORT ON THE WHEAT CAMPAIGN

444 GROWERS WILL SIGN CONTRACT

County Agent, J. D. McVean, reports that on September 14, 554 of Kent's wheatgrowers have made application for contracts in the wheat acreage reduction plan of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. Not all of the applications are in.

There are around 600 wheat-growers in the county. 326 of the applications are complete in every detail; while 118 lack some minor detail. Only 44 of the growers have not yet applied for contracts, but each day sees more of this group signing up. The 326 growers represent 20,739 acres and 374,572 bushels as the average for the 3-year base period.

On the basis of the results thus far tabulated, Mr. McVean estimates that 90 per cent. of the wheat-growers of Kent County will enroll and that more than 95 per cent of those who can cooperate will do so; also that at least 35 per cent. of the wheat acreage of the county will cooperate in the attack on the problem of over-production.

MANY HORSES DIE IN STATE

SAID TO BE CAUSED BY POISONOUS GRASS

The warm, moist weather and frequent rains that have prevailed this year are especially favorable for the development of a poisonous form of ergot that infects certain grasses, according to Dr. J. D. S. Norton, Plant Pathologist of the University of Maryland Experiment Station. He has found this disease of grasses very abundant this year and states that a number of cases of poisoning among horses and cattle are likely to be reported, if the animals are permitted to eat grass that is infected with ergot.

Although it has not been definitely established that the disease resembling meningitis, which has affected a considerable number of horses in some sections of the State, is caused by poisoning from this form of ergot, it has been observed on past occasions that this disease of horses is often common in seasons when the ergot is abundant. It has also been observed that in all, or practically all the cases of this disease of horses that have been reported, the animals had been on pasture just prior to becoming sick. From these facts there seems to be a possibility, Dr. Norton believes, that the trouble affecting horses may be due to poison consumed with grass.

It is suggested that those having valuable horses might reduce the risk of their becoming victims of the disease by keeping them off of pasture for a time.

Further study is being given the problem and it is hoped that specific information may be obtained whereby loss may be prevented, whether it is from the poison on grasses, or from some other source.
