The Wayside Poet

By J. Thomas Price

My Little Boy at Home

They tell us that this life is full of trouble and of care;
And as we travel on our way, each one must pay the fare;
And though the road is rough and steep Wher'er I chance to roam,
I soon forget it when I greet my little boy, at home.

We trudge through summer's awful heat, and winter's cold and snow;
We find the path is hard to keep, where-ever we may go;
We fuss and fight the live-long day, but always change our tone,
When done with work we hasten to our little boy, at home.

Oh, I pity men and women who go struggling on their way,
With their burdens, cares and sorrows, almost falling by the way;
Tossed about on life's great ocean, in the rolling billows foam;
And return when day is over, with no little boy at home.

Men rejoice in untold riches, as they revel in the night,
Social pleasures to the many, seem to fill them with delight;
But there's peace and joy and glory, you'll not find where'er you roam,
Like the joy when day is over, with your little boy at home.

The Curbstone Diplomat

WILLIAM S. COLLINS

Mr. Charles Harry Schrieber, of Cincinnati, can no longer tell the boys from the old home town that he is not in the big dough. No we can trot out that good old heading "Local Boy Makes Good." The following is from a Cincinnati paper:

MEET THE
GET THE DOUGHBOY
C. HARRY SCHREIBER
MANAGER
RKO CAPITOL THEATRE
CINCINNATI, OHIO

Chestertown, Maryland, which is probably one of those towns which points with pride to a tree growing out of the City Hall roof, gave the world one Harry Schreiber on April 24, 1906.

Harry attended Washington College and since we've written that so many times since we started this biographical work on RKO managers, that must be an RKO subsidiary. Harry graduated with all the necessary honors and started looking for a job. There's nothing new in that procedure but Harry made history by finding one forthwith.

His title was Assistant Manager and the place he "assistant managed" was the RKO Fordham Theatre, New York City. Later, he was transferred to the Keith Theatre, Washington, D. C., in the same capacity. Enterprising and willing to hustle, Harry came to the attention of the powers that be in this job and was soon manager.

From Washington, D. C., to Cincinnati is a long hop for a Washington College graduate, but Harry made it as his next step toward the top. In Cincinnati, he was put at the helm of the Strand Theatre, then under the RKO wing. Later, he went to the Capitol. It closed and the RKO Grand next felt the steady pressure of the Schreiber guiding hand. Now, what with the NRA, nudism and a general brightness hereabouts, the Capitol is open again and Harry is there once more.

His hobby is motoring with his wife in their maroon Chevrolet sport sedan, he thinks it a perfect afternoon when he can take Mrs. Schreiber and himself to the country, out where there's "beeses and treeses" as Eddie Cantor says.

Harry's hobby, by the way, his been very much neglected during the past few months, because Harry and his boys at the Grand, and now, the Capitol, have been taking that "Midwest Get-The-Doughboy" line seriously and with results. Happy landings, Harry!

A report comes that the N. R. A. has not been kind to Harry as he is an executive and he has been forced to work longer hours. Audrey the wife has taken up bicyling for exercise. It is just as Horace Greely says.

There is a report and it might be official but it has not been verified by us at this writing, that the State Department of Health has ordered Chestertown to build a disposal plant. The river has B. O. and it cannot be cured with a cake of life-Buoy soap. It will take about twenty thousand or more berries to build the disposal plant. The town cannot raise the money be eating Grape-Nuts. Part of the town council is determined that no disposal plant shall be built so it looks as though there all will not be smooth sailing.

The Curbstone Diplomat made its debut advocating a disposal plant for Chestertown a couple of years ago.

The fact that the river causes a bad odor and makes an unsanitary condition for the people living along the water-front and makes swimming dangerous is not the most important reason for the disposal plant.

A large percentage of the population of Maryland makes its living out of the Chesapeake Bay and tributaries. Maryland has to compete with other sea-board states in the sale of sea-foods to Western cities. Every year the State Board of Health makes a trip to West assuring the cities there, that Maryland sea food products are O. K. To have O. K. sea food it is necessary for us to have the Chesapeake Bay and tributaries free from pollution. The rejection of Maryland sea-food would be a disaster to the state.

Coming home, right here to Kent County. Part of Chester River is already restricted. 240 oyster tonging licenses have already been issued and in a few weeks this number will reach over 400 as about that many are issued every year. 400 wage earners expect to support their families in Kent County by catching oysters. Putting 400 wage earners out of business in Kent County would be plenty bad.

Pollution of the waters has become much worse in recnt years due to the fact that so many people are putting in more up to date sewerage systems. This added to the accumulation of former years is making a bad siuation.

DID YOU KNOW?

DID YOU KNOW THAT:

So great was the esteem in which Washington Collge was held by the Eastern Shore, that the following was given expression by the Council of Maryland, 1782-1783, "The Act for founding a College at Chester, which passed the Session preceeding the last, will reflect forever a lustre on its proceedings, and it is with the greatest pleasure we observe that such has been the zeal of the Eastern Shore for the advancement of learning that the sum of five thousand pounds, which the Act required and allowed to be raised in five years, has been nearly doubled in less than one year. Nothing can be a stronger proof for the happy Influence of Public encouragement, and we trust that the General Asembly will think this college deserving of their further attention and favor."

DID YOU KNOW THAT:

The "Debtors' Prison," was one of the hardships of some of the early residents of Kent and Queen Anne's counties? A preamble to an Act of Assembly of Nov. 1708, refers to "The relief of Poor Debtors and languishing Prisoners." It was also declared that; "during this war (the war with France, in which the Great Duke, of Marlborough won his fame) the low price for tobacco, the only staple commodity of this province, and the many losses they have had at sea, have run many honest, well-meaning persons, inhabitants of this province, further in debt than they are able to pay, thereby obliging in any of them to leave their habitations and fly out of this province into other colonies for their liberty, and others actually to be imprisoned for Debt. of Damages to the Great charge of the country and lessening her Sacred Majsy's Revenue." These incidents may be noted existed long after the Revolutionary War.

In the Maryland Gazette of 1768, appeared "To be sold, The Time of a Clock and watchmaker, who has about Three years to serve."

Smilin' Charlie Says

"Th' optimist is a feller who plans t' do more than his plans will let him do"--

WHERE WHOPPERS BREED

"Can any of you," the teacher asked, "tell me what 'amphibious' means, and give a sentence to illustrate?"

A bright little Negro held up his hand. "I know, sah! It's fibbing. Mos' fish stories m fibious!"

THE SQUADRON'S LOG

BY THE STOWAWAY

Honorary members of the Chester River Yacht and Country Club abound around and within the Yacht Club Lake.

A popular and honored member is Mrs. Killdeer, so named by little Jane Brooks. Mrs. Killdeer for 4 consecutive springs has made her nest and raised two families a year on the yacht club driveway. A little hollow of stones, carefully selected and placed, formed the nest. When the eggs were laid, Mrs. Killdeer settled down to hatch them. So like the surrounding slag was her coloring that anyone might pass by without noticing her.

When the shrill, haunting cry of the killdeer carried through the spring air, whoever was playing an early game of golf or inspecting a yacht with anticipatory glee, started out to hunt the killdeer's nest.

After hours of searching, when it was locatd, Clarence Goldsborough, the club steward and general factotum, surrounded it with a guard of stones or stakes to keep automobiles from accidentally running it down.

Mrs. Kildeer pretended to discourage visitors. Upon the approach of a human being, she scurried far away from her nest, breaking her wing, showing her brilliant orange under feathers, and squaking shrilly. As time went on, she became less fearful, until at last she hovered in the vicinity of her nest, and even fluttered belligerantly toward the intruder.

After her brood of four were hatched, and within a day were dried off, and had scampered away in the grass of the golf course, a few weeks later, she returned and raised another family.

Two pairs of summer ducks nested at the foot of Colonel Ewing's lawn last spring. Fed regularly, the wild visitors became tamed, and when their supper was not forthcoming, they waddled bravely toward the house, noisily squawking. It was not long before a call would bring the four up to the house steps.

One day, the Ewing"s cat started an argument with the ducks along the lake shore. Turning suddenly on the cat, with much flapping of wings and vicious pecks at his fur, the ducks in mass routed the cat.

But the cat in the end triumped. The ducks grew tired of repeated arguments, and about the time Dr. Hughes's ducks were half grown, they deserted the Ewings and took up their abode in the Hughes' new duck house.

Kingfishers make a bright blue splash of color as they dart from an overhanging bough to snatch a young fish from among the water weeds along the shore.

Fish hawks, circling high, swoop suddenly downward, and many a golf game halts while golfers watch the bird strike the lake with a splash and, rising with a flutter of dripping wings, bear away a bass in it talons.

"He got his fish that time," the golfers rejoice.

Achievement and skill even in a bird arouses man's admiration. Only Dr. Hughes resents tho depredations of the fishhawks.

When the bird returns for another meal, the Doctor appears with a great big gun. Sometimes, he hits the fish hawk, sometimes he scares it away. Usually the fishhawk ignores the no trespassing sign or moves around to the cove made by the cemetery and the Ewing's property out of range of the gun.

The glistening white of the cranes wading around the lake shore is no more. The young cranes are turning blue. A dirty gray is replacing the white of the young birds, and their harsh call is growing stronger.

Fishermen in the lake have been losing bait from their hooks. Dr. Hughes solved the mystery last Sunday when he pulled out two crabs evidently washed into the lake during the high tide. Since the lake is fresh water, it will be interesting to know how long crabs will live in the lake.

Marsh hens can sometimes be seen around the lake, but more frequently heard. A pair of eagles that prospected for a home site early in the spring, moved farther up the creek out of range of wild golf balls. Occassionally one is sighted flying home at sundown.

Depredations along the shore by muskrats have been largly eliminated by a campaign last winter to rid the lake of their presence, and terripin were cleaned out in the spring. The fish with which the lake was stocked are yielding sport to club members inclined toward fresh water fishing.

Squadronites continue to prefer river and bay fishing, and the handful in the lake as Club members are satisfied to have it so.

The spirit of bird conservation in the Chester River Yacht and Country Club is a real benefit to the people of Kent County, and the club lake forms an ideal spot for the purpose. Sheltered from intrusion, yet visible to the public at two points, it offers every advantage both to the birds and to those who wish to watch them.

Automobiles innumerable stop beside the lake in the early evening when the birds are visible, while passers by pause or a moment in their rush from place to place to refresh themselves, and bring a bit of repose into their busy lives by contemplation of the Club.

Why Liquid Laxatives are Back in Favor

The public is fast returning to the use of liquid laxatives. People have learned that the properly prepared liquid laxative will bring a perfect movement without any discomfort at the time, or after.

The dose of a liquid laxative can be varied to suit the needs of the individual. The action can thus be regulated. A child is easily given the right dose. And mild liquid laxatives do not irritate the kidneys.

Doctors are generally agreed that senna is the best laxative for everybody. Senna is a natural laxative. It does not drain the system like the cathartics that leave you so thirsty. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a liquid laxative which relies on senna for its laxative action. It has the average person's bowels as regular as clockwork in a few weeks' time.

You can always get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drugstore, ready for use. Member N. R. A.
