ODD BUT TRUE

DID YOU KNOW?

DID YOU KNOW THAT:

A Redemptioner, a term well known during the Colonial period, was a person who had come to the colony from Europe, who had pledged himself or herself, to serve a stipulated number of years in payment for their passage money. As an illustration,—May 12, 1710, one Thomas Everett, in consideration of five thousand, five hundred pounds of tobacco bound himself as a servant to one Charles Lamar, for a period of three and a half years. "During which time the said Thomas Everett shall well and faithfully serve the said Charles and his assignees in all manner of lawful employments whatsoever pertaining to planting and husbandry."

DID YOU KNOW THAT:

Under date of August 25, 1768, Samuel Middleton advertised in the Maryland Gazette, published at Annapolis, that, "He takes this method to inform the public that he keeps the ferry from Annapolis to Kent Island and Rock Hall, and proposes to carry at the following rates; for a single man, a single man and horse, an open chair, a chaise with a top, a four-wheel chaise and a chariot or coach." (As the rates are given in pounds, shillings and pence, they are omitted.) Probably Mr. Middleton ferried General Washington across the Chesapeake, during Washington's journeys through Kent.

DID YOU KNOW THAT:

Crumpton (Crump Town), was, according to a writer in the Centreville Record of September, 1875, founded in 1858, by James C. Sheppard and Maurice Welsh, of Salem, N. J., who purchased the entire Crumpton tract of 1700, from Michael Newbold, and "laid out" the new town, at what had at one time been known as "Callister's Ferry." Says the authority in the Record, "During Henry B. Slaughter's life time a daily line of steamers plied to Baltimore and various manufacturing industries, such a canning, basket and box making, manufacturing syrup from Songhum, etc., were engaged in."

KENT HEALTH REPORT

FREE HOSPILIZATION PRESENTS PROBLEM

Narrative Report

Two cases of typhoid fever were reported during the month. One was from Chestertown in a colored woman, age 21. The source of this case was never definitely determined although it was thought to be due to the general unsanitary conditions. This patient was sent to the Easton Hospital and the contacts in the home were given the typhoid vaccine.

The second case was that of a man age 35, white, living in Rock Hall and the source was thought to be to the drinking of contaminated water. Contacts of this case were given typhoid vaccine and the patient was sent to the Maryland General Hospital in Baltimore.

Three cases of tuberculosis were reported and all were visited by the nurse and the usual instructions on contacts with other members of the family were given. All cases of tuberculosis are visited on an average of twice a month by the public health nurses and are supplied with sputum cups, paper napkins, and disinfectant. Certain cases are sent to one of the various state hospitals for tuberculosis when it is thought necessary by the attending physician and the state clinician.

One case of pneumonia was reported.

Considerable time was given to visiting schools for the examination of children reported as having pediculosis, scabies, itch, or impetigo. These diseases always consume a great deal of time of the nurses in the fall of the year.

A Pre-natal Clinic was held in the Health Center on September 12th by Dr. E. P. H. Harison, Jr., and assisted by Doctors F. W. Smith and F. B. Hines. Five patients were examined, three were new and two were cases who had previously reported. This clinic has been in operation for the past four months and a number of expectant mothers have taken advantage of this service to obtain pre-natal advice. An effort has also been made to have several of the midwives present at the clinics so that they may also receive instructions as to the handling of obstetrical cases. All of this service both the Pre-natal Clinics, the instructions of midwives and the pre-natal vists of the nurses is directed towards reducing the high infant death rate in Kent County. This County continues to have one of the highest infant mortalites in the state.

Beginning with November on the first Tuesday of each month an Infant and Pre-School Clinic will be held at the Health Center by one of the local physicians. The first clinic will be hed by Dr. F. B. Hines.

Dr. F. A. Holden held two Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Clinics at which nineteen patients were examined and treated.

Diphtheria Prevention

Arrangements are being made by the nurses and health officer to resume the administration of toxoid free to the school children in the county. Toxoid is the prevention for diphtheria and is administered in two doses to the school and pre-school children in the county. Approximately 80 per cent. of the children in Kent County have already received immunization against diphtheria.

Hospitalization

The County Health Department is called upon more each month to place various free cases in the hospitals. During the month of September twenty eases were placed in the various institutions and hospitals. Each case is only placed in institutions upon the request of the family physician. In many instances it is necessary even to arrange transportation as some of the families are unable to offer this service when a free bed is obtained. The Welfare Association has been called on for this purpose on several occasions. At other times it is necessary for one of the nurses to accompany the case to the hospital.

ONE MAN'S JOURNEY

In the new film, the star is said to play one of the greatest screen characters ever created. It is that of a country doctor who sacrifices personal ambitions to serve others, and who wins spectacular recognition of his lifetime of service at a time he had put himself down as a failure.

Frances Dee, David Landau, James Bush, Buster Phelps, Oscar Apfel, Sam Hinds and June Filmer support the star. Lester Cohen wrote the screen play based upon Katharine Haviland-Taylor's short story, "Failure," which was included in the O'Brien collection as one of the sixteen best of 1932.

"One Man's Journey" plays at the New Lyceum Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday, October 25 and 26 .

Barrymore, Robertson added, simply could not be an uninteresting actor.

"He has always created interesting characters, from his earliest days as an actor," the director declared. "I have followed his work for many years and never have seen him give a performance that was not intensely human and interesting. That explains his tremendous hold upon the public. People know that when they see Lionel Barrymore on stage or screen they will see a vital, colorful and interesting characterization."

Robertson and Barrymore have known each other since 1896, but never had worked together prior to "One Man's Journey."

Lionel Barrymore is one Hollywood star who actually feels his roles, according to John Robertson, veteran screen director, who guided the star in "One Man's Journey," the new RKO-Radio picture which presents Barrymore as an ideal of the rural family doctor type.

"By that," Robertson explained, "I mean he steps into the character he is playing, and grasps it from root to branch. He has an exceptionally keen, well balanced, and analytical mind, and an unerring artistic instinct. He understands the character he is playing; realizes how he would feel and act.

"Because of his amazing powers of concentration, he can step in and out of a characterization at will. He is not the sort, who to live a role, must immerse himself in it every waking and sleeping hour. When he steps before the cameras, however, he invests his character with tremendous realism."
