THE SQUADRON'S LOG

BY THE STOWAWAY

"It takes brains to bait ducks," said Mr. Walter Strong. Too much corn, too little; put out too early, or too late, all govern the success of baiting.

According to Mr. Strong, Daddy of Chester River gunners, only those who bait ducks properly will come home with a full bag. By Saturday, the County will know who has the brains to bait ducks.

Good shooting has something to do with a full bag too.

Clark Davis could not wait for the ducking season to open. He went out to his wife's homestead farm on Wednesday to practice shooting rabbits that he might be all set to go for ducks on Thursday.

The Du Pont outfit on Gray's Inn Creek have been putting out 100 bushls of corn a week. Rumor is about that some one has been lighting the ducks for the flock is not so numerous as it should be.

There is nothing dirtier than dirty sportsmanship. Let us hope that the wreng brand of corn was used, or better still, let us hope that the wrong doers are caught and exposed to public scorn.

The Metcalf boys, Brown and Jim, with two medicos from Queen Anne, their brother, Dr. Metcalf and Dr. Merritt Brice and Senator Dudley Roe will duck from their island retreat, Turkey Point on the Eastern Bay.

This croud must have brains, for usually they bay plenty.

At Coxe's Creek, H. S. Brown, N. J. Smith, commonly known as Bill, Paul Joyner, Charlie Porter, sideburns and all, and George Pennington, will show what they know about baiting and shooting.

Howard Newman and Morgan Bennett will stay near home on Skippers shore at Primrose Point.

Of course, Ed Wilkins and Dorsey Hines will stay even nearer home, on the family estates to be exact. Fred Robinson will be around there, too.

Captain Ned Emory goes to the Emory place near Indian Town.

Sheriff Vickers will take his bunch up on the Sassafras River, to Miss Nan Price's farm on Lloyd Creek. Buck Jessup, Scott Thompson, Earl Cooper, Jimmie Johns, Dick Collins and maybe a few more will go along.

Everything in Chestertown will be topsy turny for the next few weeks from the college to Metcalf's mill, and from the jail to the Transcript.

Geese are gathering at the Carpenter farm owned by Morris Clothier of Philadelphia. Mr. Clothier has put out 100 toller geese and a whole crop of corn.

Bushwacking is forbidden, but it a strain on evry gunner in the county to see most of the geese in this region attracted by so huge a feast and so large a company of tollers, and not be permitted to take a shot at them.

Most of the best hunting grounds are passing out of Kent County control. Rich men from the city not only buy up the best shooting points, but so lavishly spread feed that the rest of the county combined is unable to compete.

It is not fair. It is not sporting. With the spirit of the Golden Rule finding it way into industry, it is more than ever objectionable. It is creating a feeling of revolt that must sooner or later end in controling legislation and the repeal of the bushwacking laws.

LIQUOR CONTROL IN STATE

SUMMARY OF GOV. RITCHIE'S PLAN

The following are the chief points in Governor Ritchie's proposal for a comprehensive liquor control system for Maryland:

The whole question of liquor control in Maryland would be treated on the principle of local option.

Sale of beer would be continued at low license cost and be treated separately from the sale of wines and liquor, for which high license rates would be established.

Liquor and wines would be obtainable by the drink, without the purchase of food, at bona fide hotels, restaurant, cafes and clubs ($1,000 license) and at taverns ($500 license). The licenses would cover beer also, and give the right to sell in packages.

"Off sale" (not for consumption on premises) beer licnses would be $25, and "on sale" (for consumption on premises) licenses $50.

"Off sale" liquor licenses would be $250.

No Sunday sales or consumption would be allowed in the taverns, which must be rooms open on the street and the premises subject at all times to all regulations prescribed.

An excise tax of $1.10 per gallon on wines and liquors—equal to the Federal excise tax at present—will be recommended as a State revenue.

Baltimore's Board of License Commissioners (the present Beer Board) would issue all licenses, subject to review by the Bureau of State Licenses.

Counties wishing only to continue sale of beer, or "off sale' of liquor, would issue licenses through the Clerks of Court.

Counties wishing to license hotels, restaurants, cafes and clubs or taverns will have county licensing boards appointed.

Licensing boards and constituted police authority would be empowered to establish regulations, including that of location, and a schedule of closing hours and other restrictions would be enacted.

Brewers, distillers, restifiers, importers and wholesale distributors—resident and nonresident—would pay a license fee of $1,000. No "on sale" would be permitted on the premises under this license and they could sell only to licensed dealers and holders of retail licenses. They could have no interest in taverns under penalty of license revocation or suspension.

"Tied houses," or place under agreement to sell the product of only one manufacturer, would be banned.

Licenses to be regarded only as suspendable permits will not be issued to a partnership as such, but to individuals only. Corporations will not be licensed. Licenses will be issued only to two or more persons representing the corporation and assuming all responsibilities as individuals.

No person, firm or corporation would have more than one license in any city or town.

Licensing authorities would be empowered to limit the number of licenses in any neighborhood.

Records and accounts of all licensees would be open to licensing authorities.

Licenses will be issued only after due notice for protest has been given.

All revenues from the excise taxes and licenses to brewers, distillers, rectifiers, importers and wholesale distributors would go to the State, as would fees from licenses to railroads and steamship companies for sale to passengers of all beverages ($250), or for beer sales ($50).

Fees for all other licenses would go to the city or county in which they were collected.

IF HORSES COULD TALK

. . . . . Here's one that would tell you why you need a telephone on your farm!

A VALUABLE horse became dangerously sick. Something had to be done by the farmer at once.

Rushing to the telephone he called a veterinarian who arrived just in time to save the animal's life. And by bringing help so quickly the telephone paid for itself for many years to come.

The rates for telephone service are so low as to put it within reach of every farmer. Ask at our Business Office about them.
