Wake Up Your Liver Bile —Without Calomel

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25¢ at drug stores.

THE KEEPING OF THANKSGIVING DAY

Thanksgiving Day has been observed in this country ever since the time of the Pilgrim fathers. Their celebration of this first Thanksgiving is most interesting history. It tells of the time when, after they had lost more than half their number, by cold and disease, whom they had buried them under their fields of grain so that the Indian might not see how many had died, and when having gone through suffering, exposure and privation, they set a day for thanking the Giver of every good and perfect gift for a country where they could worship God in their own way; where with gun and trap they could secure a plentiful supply of wild turkey and other game and with hard work raise grain on the rocky fields. They invited the Indians to their Thanksgiving feast and for three days they fed them bountifully with their stored provisions; so bountifully that the Indians decided to stay, and it was with great difficulty that they convinced their visitors that the feast did not last all the year.

Since that time the day has been kept by the country when the fruits have been gathered in. As harvesting did not occur at the same time in the different states, each state had its own time for Thanksgiving Day but through the efforts of Sara Hale, the editor of the Gody's Lady's Book she at last persuaded President Lincoln to set a national day for that celebration, and for many years it has been kept on the last Thursday in November, Thanksgiving day is not only a day of thanking God for his mercies, but it also a day when families gather together to keep the feast and when they remember those who are less fortunate in this worlds goods just as the Pilgrim fathers shared with the poor Indians. In New York the citizens mask and dress themselves in all kind of ridiculous costumes, and parade the streets. Everyone who goes out on that day provides himself with small coin for they are expected to give each masquerader that approaches them. As the need of the poor is very great we are sure that the streets were crowded this year.

In Kent county it has always been a festival day. All the families that could do so gathered around the festival board, and what an abundance there always has been. Of course the Turkey, which is the emblem of Thanksgiving, was always there, and the many good things that accompanied it has made it a feast to be desired.

But in Kent County, too, depression has stalked this year and we fear that the table has not been so bountiful, as in the past, but as our forefathers did, we can share with the unfortunate ones, and give thanks to God for the good things which we have left: "Be ye thankful."

Thanksgiving not only is what we owe to God and others, but it makes one feel so much happier when one counts ones blessings rather than our losses.

THANKSGIVING DAY

As Thy prospering hand hath blest,
May we give thee of our best;
And by deed of kindly love
For thy mercies grateful prove;
Singing thus through all our days,
Praise to God immortal praise.

A MEMORY

When Mr. Urie passed away the other day. I thought of his being the last in his class at Washington College, the class which was composed of Mr. James Dixon, Mr. Hope Barroll and Mr. Urie among others, all of whom have now gone to their rest. We recall a play that was held in the Old Town Hall which stood where the park now is. This play was gotten up for the benefit of the graduating class for money was scarce at the college and they needed it badly. The actors were the three just mentioned. Mr. Urie took the part of a scolding wife while Mr. James Dixon was the hen pecked husband and Mr. Barroll took the part of peace maker. It was a most amusing play and we laughed until the tears ran down our cheeks. One of these became Clerk of the Court for a long time and the other two became lawyers, each reaching the point he aimed for, each leaving behind a family and to be remembered by the community in which they lived long after they have passed away.

IN FASHION'S REALM

Dinner Styles

The rather simple elegance of the Winter's styles calls for dinner hats, and they are coming in profusion. If Lady Chic is going to look her best in an exquisitely dainty manner she will poise a mere wisp of a hat of malines or appliqued lace on her locks; whatever the glint—gold, bronze, platinum—it will shimmer through. Her gloves? Suede for evening. Perhaps satin or velvet, for they are still holding their own in the mode.

If the tout ensemble needs a touch of color she will peer into the box where she keeps her flowers and will pull out a rose so realistic that it might almost win a prize at a flower show, or an iris tinted to harmonize with her gown; should a sturdier bloom be required it might be a dahlia or a wine-red carnation.

Without Benefit of Belt

Suits coats may be of various lengths; there is, however, a decided preference for the beltless, real hip-length—perhaps it were better to say wrist-length—type. They have got to fit smoothly or at least indicate the figure. Some are pinched right in at the waist; all are snugly buttoned up; no longer are they helplessly dependent on a belt to hold them together.

Classic double-breasted effects are again enormously popular. There are also single-breasted jackets done right up to the neck in front. Then one finds many variations on both themes; numerous double flap arrangements also are used.

Jackets are cut high, even if they have slightly exaggerated versions of mannish notched-collar-and-lapels or collarless revers. Whatever small opening remains is filled in by a scarf, which invariably lends a gay touch to the costume of black or subdued colors.

TOO CONSIDERATE

Tom—Would you marry a man for his money?
Tess—Positively not. But I wouldn't hold his money against him, however.

Waning Affection

Facts And Figures On Your Telephone

By EDWIN F. HILL

Edwin F. Hill

Use of the telephone in radio broadcasting hook-ups has increased to such an extent that there are now 88,000 miles of telephone wire being utilized by the eleven networks connecting 194 radio broadcasting stations.

Chain broadcasting, familiar to millions of people on the North American continent and throughout the world is now little more than ten years old, the first hook-up having been made January 4, 1923, when stations WEAF then owned by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and WNAC of the Shepherds Stores in Boston were connected by telephone lines so that both might broadcast simultaneously the program which was being given in the WEAF studios.

So successful was the broadcast on this joint hook-up that on June 7, four stations were connected by telephone wire to broadcast a program for the National Electric Light Association. The late President Coolidge delivered his opening message to Congress December 6, 1923, over a hook-up of six stations connecting Washington, New York, Providence, St. Louis, Kansas City and Dallas.

To serve the broadcasting transmission of the various stations throughout the country, the Bell system has established control points at Washington, Boston, New York, Charlotte, N. C., Cincinnati, Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Denver, San Francisco and Los Angeles. The telephone circuits are lined up and tested at these points and switched to meet the varying requirements of the networks.

The New York office is in general control of the Red, Blue and Purple networks; San Francisco, the Orange; and the Boston office of the Amber network.

Educators Utilize Talking Pictures

Progressive school teachers throughout the country are taking advantage of talking motion pictures as an aid to educational work. A book—The Educational Talking Picture—written by Col. Frederick L. Devereux, vice-president of Erpi Picture Consultants, has recently been published by the University of Chicago press for the use of educators in carrying on this work.

The book was prepared in collaboration with several well-known educators and with the assistance of V. C. Arnspiger, director of research, Howard G. Stokes, director of production, and M. R. Brunstetter and Laura K. Eads, research associates, all of the staff of Erpi Picture Consultants.

To Report Kidnaping Call National 7117

Justice Department At Washington Has Special Telephone For Such Cases

In an effort to curb kidnaping, the Department of Justice at Washington, D. C., has had installed a special telephone—National 7117, to which calls from any point in the United States may be made in the interest of apprehending the criminals at the earliest possible moment.

Assistant to the Attorney General, William Stanley in a broadcast made over the network of the National Broadcasting Company recently said:

"Please telephone the division headquarters at Washington. It is not closed at any time during the twenty-four hours of the day. The telephone number is easy to remember. We wish everyone to know and use this number, when necessary. It is Washington, D. C., National 7117."

Clyde Tolson, Assistant Director, Division of Investigation, receives information regarding a kidnaping case.

Mr. Stanley urged that no public statement about a kidnaping be made until the proper time and that contact be made immediately with one of the agencies of the division of investigation so that an agent might give the calling party assistance and advice. Any judge, prosecuting attorney, sheriff, chief of police or court official, he said, should be able to advise where the nearest field office of the division of investigation is located. Where difficulty is experienced in locating such an office, citizens are directed to telephone the division headquarters at Washington.
