At The Movies

NEXT WEEK

Spencer Tracy and Ralph Morgan in a dramatic scene from "The Power and the Glory," the latest from the studios of Fox Film to be produced by the veteran Jesse L. Lasky. 2PC

At the New Lyceum Theatre on Monday and Tueday, December 18 and 19, will be shown a motion picture which can truthfully be called great. It is "The Power and the Glory" and it is an original story by Preston Sturges, author of that successful play "Strictly Dishonorable."

This story, which is one of genuine interest, has a treatment new to pictures and just what this unusual treatment is will not be revealed here, in justice to Mr. Sturges, the author, to William K. Howard, who did a fine job as director, and to Jesse L. Lasky, the producer.

The picture is superbly acted. Spencer Tracy gives a performance of great power and establishes himself as an unusually fine character actor. Colleen Moore, who has not appeared on the screen for some time, has a straight dramatic role. It is a new line of work for her and she comes through with flying colors. Ralph Morgan gives the best performance of his career in this picture. At no time does his own personality intrude upon with the characterization.

The photoplay is flawless. Everyone should go to see it whether for good acting or as a study of an advance in the cinema, an occasion that arises all too seldom.

A new Marlene Dietrich, different than her millions of screen admirers have ever glimpsed in her previous pictures, will be seen in "The Song of Songs," her new Paramount picture, coming to the New Lyceum on Wednesday and Thursday, December 20 and 21.

Miss Dietrich, who hitherto has appeared as a sophisticated, worldly woman, is revealed in her new production as an innocent young country girl of rare beauty, who goes to Berlin, and, jilted by a handsome young sculptor, runs the gamut of tragic experience.

She marries a rich and elderly Baron, whom she does not love, and, following their divorce, she becomes bitter and disillusioned, and a notorious woman in the gay German city's night life.

"The Song of Songs," adapted from the literary classic of Hermann Suder mann, was directed by Rouben Mamoulian. This is the first Dietrich film which has not been directed by her discover, Josef von Sternberg.

An outstanding cast of actors appears in support of the glamorous star who recently has commanded the attention of the world as the sponsor of the trousers for women style-vogue.

Brian Aherne, referred to by drama critics as the most romantic actor of the New York stage, following his work as Katherine Cornell's leading man in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," makes his screen debut as Miss Dietrick's leading man. Lionel Atwill, who has been a stage star for sixteen years, appears as her husband. Alison Skipworth, Hardie Albright and Helen Freeman also have good roles.

"Brief Moment," coming to the New Lyceum as part of a double feature program on Friday and Saturday, December 22 and 23, and starring Carole Lombard, is Columbia's adaptation of the successful Broadway stage production of the same name.

Miss Lombard is seen in the role which was portrayed by Francine Larrimore on the stage, with popular Gene Raymond in the part which was played by Robert Douglas. Monroe Owsley is the "Sig" of the play, the character that the celebratd dramatic critic, Alexander Woolcott, performed back of the footlights. The original play was by S. N. Berhman, and the screen adaptation is by Brian Marlowe.

David Burton, nated director of Broadway plays, and who has directed some notable screen successes, handled the megaphone.

A pair of cow-punchers gone "bone-crusher" is the theme of one dynamic sequence of "The Whirlwind," Tim McCoys latest Columbia thriller that will show at the New Lyceum on Friday and Saturday, December 22 and 23.

A new high for excitement and action is reached in the picture when Tim McCoy faces Matthews Betz, the villian, in a wrestling match that would do credit to Madison Square Garden. The boys really have it out and the thrills come fast while they are going through head-locks, flying mares, half-Nelsons, wrist-locks, and assorted rough tackles.

Alice Dahl is seen as Tim's new leading lady. Pot O'Maley, J. Carrol Naish, and Joe Girard are prominent in an excellent cast. D. Ross Lederman directed.

Local Leader Wins $10.00 Prize

For a long time local leaders project demonstrators and committee workers have done their work unrecognized and without reward.

This year it was thought well to have the local leaders of 4-H Girls Clubs to have a contest as well as the girls. Food was selected as the project in which to have the contest.

The local leaders having the best report in canning or Quick Breads in a county was a compete in the State Contest.

May Elburn local leader of Piney Neck 4-H Girls' Club was the successful contestant.

Her story follows:

Story Of The Piney Neck 4-H Club Work

(May Elburn, Rock Hall-

Last October our club began meeting every two weeks, with fifteen girls enrolled. We started the Maryland Quick Bread Project. Our first demonstration was plain muffins, Ellenor Middleton and Frances Elburn did the work and answered questions; with Miss Schelinger's (H. D. A.- help. This proved to be quite interesting to every one. Severel kinds of muffins were made and the girls each brought muffins at the meeting to be scored. The girls took turns in furnishing materials for the demonstrations.

May Elburn and Marie Bryden demonstrated baking powder biscuits. The same plan was followed with these.

Then Christmas came, so Miss Schellinger showed us how to make un-cooked fondant, color it, add nuts, raisins and other things. Each girl brought a box to fill with candies. We exchanged ten cent Christmas gifts. This gave each girls ideas for inexpensive Christmas presents.

The next thing to make was corn bread. Edna Coleman and Dorothy Elmore demonstrated the corn bread; from then on, each girl brought muffins, biscuits or corn bread.

We sang at each meeting, played games and learned the 4-H Club Pledge.

We held a social, we made our own cookies in order to make money so each girl could attend the 4-H County Banquet. We made for the 4-H Club eight dolars and seventy-five cents ($8.75) last year.

Seven girls attended the 4-H Banquet. We paid one of the fathers to take us.

For our 4-H Club Achievement Day, we decided to invite Flatland 4-H Club. They had been doing the same kind of work. Every girl who came brought an exhibit. Marie Bryden, Piney Neck, took first place; a Flatland girl, second; and Isabelle Jones, third.

Music and games were part of the entertainment. Sandwiches and chocolate milk were served. Several mothers were present.

The next meeting was time to plan for the County Achievement. Marie Bryden and Isabelle Jones exhibited biscuits but took no place.

We held a "weenie" roast on the shore. We sold the frankfurters and soft drinks. Several boys furnished music. There was a large crowd and the club and it's friends had a fine time.

IT'S TIME to start thinking about Christmas Gifts

These last few weeks have a way of flying past before you know it. Then you're in the thick of the last-minute rush . . . shopping hysterically; making hurried purchases which you often regret.

This year, why not select your important gifts, at least, before the Christmas stampede begins. Everything in our store is in readiness, and you may look about leisurely and give the necessary thought to your selections.

If you've decided what to give, or even if you haven't, it will make Christmas shopping easier to select a few gifts now from our idea-inspiring collections and have us lay them away until Christmas.

Hints for the Household

FOR DECEMBER

BY BETTY WEBSTER

The effects of Thanksgiving never do get a chance to efface themselves thoroughly beause we are plunged immediately into the excitement of the preparation for Christmas Day and New Year's Day. To-day I'm going to talk mostly about the Christmas dinner and give you some recipes.

Of course, the turkey or goose is the time honored dish and undoubtedly the most essential part of the meal. Some of us are fortunate enough in being able to raise our own but I think that most of us have to depend either upon the word of the butcher, whom we trust as reliable, or upon our own judgment.

Selecting The Bird

I have heard of various methods of judging fowl and the favorites seem to be by means of the breastbone. It is said that if the breastbone is tender the rest of the turkey is, too. However, this is not infallible and perhaps your cherished mode is even better.

It is well, however, to get a bird with a nice layer of fat underneath the skin for this will prevent the dry flavorless taste that many restaurant turkeys have.

Usually your butcher will clean the fowl thoroughly and remove most of the pin feathers. Still it is a good plan for the cook to examine it again and make sure that all parts which are not edible are removed, and to singe it to rid the skin of any hair which may have been overlooked.

Dressing Recipe

A simple dressing for any fowl is made of stale bread soaked in water and squeezed to remove all excess moisture. Into this beat one or two eggs, depending on the size of the cavity to be filled; mix in a pinch of leaf thyme, a small onion,—chopped, and salt and pepper to taste.

Sprinkle the fowl with salt and pepper; place in a roasting pan—self-basting if possible, because it is much easier—and roast until tender. The time you will have to cook the turkey will vary, of course, on the size of your fowl as well as its age; so I will not attempt to advise you blindly but suggest that you let your butcher be your guide.

The vegetables and salad for the dinner, I will discuss in another article; so I'll pass them

KENT HEALTH REPORT

were referred to thir family physician.

Dr. F. A. Holdn held the usual weekly Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Clinics. Thirty-three patients were examined and treated.

Dr. George Preston, Commissioner of Mental Hygiene, held a clinic in Chestertown on November 23rd. Five cases were examined. The clinic was held in the morning and in the afternoon Dr. Preston assisted by Dr. George R. Jones, of Galena, examined a colored family in Galena in which there were five mental cases. Certain recommendations and treatment were outlined for each of the mental cases examined by Dr. Preston.

On November 28th Mr. R. C. Thompson, Supervisor of Special Education and Rehabilitation in the State Department of Education, visited this office relative to arranging for artificial legs for two men who recently had a leg amputated and were unable to purchase the artificial limb. Both of these cases will be provided with the appliances in the near future through Mr. Thompson.

Toxoid Administration

During November the second series of toxoid was administered to the school children. Toxoid is the preventive for diphtheria and is given in two doses at intervals of our weeks. The diphtheria preventive treatment has been given in Kent County over a number of years so that now practically 90 per cent of the school children have been immunized against diphtheria.

County School Dentist

Kent County is fortunate in having a full time school dentist. Dr. M. E. Brown was appointed this year to succeed Dr. Smith who was in the county three years. Dr. Brown has completed Massey, Galena, and Sassafras schools. He is now working in the Millington school and this will be completed in about two more weeks. Dr. Brown carries a portable dental outfit and treats the children at the school where he is located. His work is chiefly that of extractions and minor fillings. Chidren who are not going to a private dentist are treated at a small cost and those who are certified to by their teachers are not being able to pay are treated free of charge. The county school dentist has recieved excellent cooperation in every school where he has worked. A great improvement can be seen in the teeth of the school children during the past three years.

Tuberculosis

The annual sale of the Christmas Tuberculosis Seals is now in progress. These seals are sold by the State and National Tuberculosis Association cooperating with the County Tuberculosis Association and the proceeds are used to carry on the warfare of this disease. Since 1900 the number of cases and death rate has practically been cut in half but tuberculosis to be one of our chief causes of death. This section of Maryland has an unusually high tuberculosis death rate and in no other part of the state is there as great a need for following up the cases, seeing that they are properly isolated and provided with the correct advice to prevent the spread to others in the home. Provisions must be made for the sanatorium care of those who should receive this type of treatment. In some instances the families do not have sufficient means to transport the cases to the sanatorium when a bed is provided and it is necessary for the local Tuberculosis Association to provide such transportation. A clinic is held every other month in Chestertown where individuals suspected of having the disease or contacts in the home may be examined freed of charge. All of the foregoing activities are largely supported through the sale of the Christmas Tubrculosis Seals.
