HOW WOMEN CAN WIN MEN AND MEN WIN

The Favor of Other Men

Unless two pints of bile juice flow daily from your liver into your bowels, your food decays in your bowels. This poisons your whole body. Movements get hard and constipated. You get yellow tongue, yellow skin, pimples, dull eyes, bad breath, bad taste, gas, dizziness, headache. You have become an ugly-looking, foul-smelling, sour-thinking person. You have lost your personal charm. Everybody wants to run from you.

But don't take salts, mineral waters, oils, laxative pills, laxative candies or chewing gums and expect them to get rid of this poison that destroys your personal charm. They can't do it, for they only move out the tail end of your bowels and that doesn't take away enough of the decayed poison. Cosmetics won't help at all.

Only a free flow of your bile juice will stop this decay poison in your bowels. The one mild vegetable medicine which starts a free flow of your bile juice is Carter's Little Liver Pills. No calomel (mercury) in Carter's. Only fine, mild vegetable extracts. If you would bring back your personal charm to win men, start taking Carter's Little Liver Pills according to directions today. 25¢ at drug stores.

Refuse "something just as good", for it may gripe, loosen teeth or scald rectum. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name and get what you ask for. ©1933. C.M.Co.

Women's Page

The first real snow of the season greeted our eyes as we waked on Monday morning last. The white carpet lighted by the rosy hues of the rising sun was a sight for appreciative eyes. Perhaps one of the most beautiful poems in American Literature is "Snow Bound" by Whittier. His description of the deep deep snow, and of the many members of the large families who were housed, but as busy as bees, while the men went out doing their best to clear away the snow from the walks and to look after the cattle of their own and their neighbors. One of the worst snow storms, a veritable blizzard that I remember was on the 13th of March in 1888. It had been a hard cold winter but this storm clapped the climax.

For three days the snow fell while the bitter north winds howled, blowing the blinding snow in heaps and making it almost impossible to go out.

Roscoe Conkling, a prominent Senator from New York, lost his life in his efforts to get home in the blinding snow. He was surely a handsome man. It was interesting to watch him in the Senate.

Being a remarkably handsome man, with an abundance of white curly hair, a thing to be noticed in the Senate where hair is apt to be scarce on the heads so full of wisdom, he never had to beckon the pages, but only to look their way and they would all run to do his bidding.

But to return to the snow storm. After the storm was over the world was a sight to behold. The pumps which we used in those days stood like giant snow men while all had to melt snow to get water. It was late in April before the last vestige of that snow storm disappeared. There have several since, one in 1894 which did much damage, but the wind was not so high.

I think it cost the county $6.000 before they could restore normal conditions for traffic then. In those days the merry sleigh bells would sound far and near and they would travel over fences and fields in their efforts to reach their destinations.

Another great snow storm stands out in my memory. I was staying in Washington at the time. We had an engagement to go to a play at the Knickerbocker theatre a very attractive one that stood on the corner. As the snow was coming down pretty hard we decided to go the night before we had planned. After the play was over we lingered awhile and looked at the lounging rooms and at the pictures all around. All next day the snow continued to fall and that evening a dreadful catastrophe happened. The roof of the Theatre was so loaded down with snow that it crashed in upon the occupants of the gallery which in its turn crashed down upon those sitting beneath it. It was a terrible time. Multilated bodies were brought out by the hundreds and laid in the Christian Science church nearby. Many young men and women ended their career that night and a great number of orphans were left desolate, while numbers who survived were crippled or bedridden for life. That was surely a snow to be remembered. And yet the pure white snow kept on falling covering up all the sad surroundings "the snow, the snow the beautiful snow."

MARY PICKFORD'S EMPTY ARMS

Mary Pickford has been on the front pages of the paper lately for Mary and Doug. have decided to live apart, Douglas loves to travel and leaves Mary alone in the big empty house. She waited until Douglas' son came from abroad where he had gone to see his father, hoping that he would bring a message to her, but as he had none to give her, she has sued for a divorce charging mental cruelty. which means that her heart is sore from his neglect. Mary is now forty years old, and looks years and years younger. She spent the early years of her life in helping support her family. Now that there is no longer need for that she finds her arms empty and longs for children.

Perhaps she will adopt one of the many homeless orphans who need a mother care.

Contrasting Jackets

The contrasting jacket vogus has invaded the afternoon mode. One sees many colored lame ottoman bodices and basque jackets with long black velvet or wool skirts. Lelong has a Sunday night suit of this kind that is delightful; it has a slender black bagheera skirt and a draped furred jacket of bagheera in real hunting pink.

Leather for Evening

One of the novel ideas in evening coats is a short jacket of white chevrita leather, modeled on the lines of a mess jacket. It has wide shoulders, pleated sleeves and the lapel collar and four big buttons are of galyac. Jackets of this type have been plimpsed in Hollywood

Evening Accessories

Among the newer evening accessories are long, flesh tinted sueed gloves worn smoothly up to the shoulders, with plenty of bracelets outside the glove. There are also very flossy sandals and plain, large chifon handkerchiefs. And among the best thoughts is the scarf-like wrap.

Not A Bustle?

Maybe it isn't a bustle, but some of the semi-formal dresses have a bulge. The bulge grows where the bustle grew in the good old days and is composed of a fold of the material, caught up in a kind of boluse effect and pleated to make it blouse all the more.

As Christmas is drawing steadily nearer, the program committees of the Literary Club and the History Clubs are busily preparing for their Christmas programs, and if all reports of the progress they are making are true, the entertainments will be unusually enjoyable.

The Sophomore Class has been trying out their dramatic skill in enacting various ballads they are studying in their English classes. Those which they have tried so far with success are "The Maid Saved From The Gallows" and "Sir Patrick Spence."

The General Science class is busily engaged in studying the intricacies of weather and climate, while the Physics class is learning things about light. The biology section is taking up that most interesting topic "How Living Things Live Together."

Any donations of bed clothing will be greatfully accepted by Mr. Blades, our principal, for distribution to the needy. Don't hesitate if they are in need of mending, as the Home Economics Department will be on hand to renovate them. So hunt around in your attic and get out that old dress or suit, or what have you, and hustle them to Mr. Blades, where they will be used to a worthy cause.

And so with the victory of Tilghmen's Island our fieldball season comes to a close. May the team do bigger and better things next year.

Ralph Thornton, organizer of the "Ape Club" and editor of "The Jungletown News" may be seen giving panoramic views on a Roman stage of the antics of apes and apesses every Monday noon. One must hold a ticket to gain admittance to these unique little entertainments.

During the past week pictures of the soccer and fieldball teams and the orchestra have been taken to appear in the next issue of the "Reflector."

The eight new books which were ordered for the History Club have been eagerly received. The titles of them are: "Messenger of Black Prince—T. A. H." by Mac Whinney; "English Oak and Spanish Gold"; "Richard Carvell" by Winston Churchill; "Mistress Madcap" by E. B. Sherman; "Smokey" by Will James; "The White House Gang" by Earle Looker; "Forever Free" by H. W. Morrow; and "Moccasin Trail" by Reed Fulton.

The 9C Reading Club has recently added the collecting of paper match boxes to their various endeavors. Some extremely odd ones have been brought in.

The high school mourns with the rest of the community the death of Dr. Paul Titsworth, who was always a friend to the high school students.

Reports were received Friday with smiles and scowls (mostly the latter). Named below are those who got no lower than "B", which certainly deserved a great big smile.
