HORSE SHOW AUGUST 22ND

The tenth annual Kent County Horse Show will be held on Wednesday, August 22nd at 1.30 P. M. The place where the show has not been selected as yet. Several of the fields where it has been held in the past are not available this year on account of crops, and so the Committee will have to examine the various possibilities before deciding upon the eventual location. The place and other details of the arrangements will be announced later.

MARYLAND GROUP TOURS JAPANESE BEETLE AREA

In order to observe the damage done by Japanese beetles when they become numerous a group of Maryland farm leaders, specialists in insect control, and county agents made a one-day tour on July 16, of the heavily infested areas in southern New Jersey. The tour was arranged by the insect control officials of the Federal government and was under the direction of Dr. Ernest N. Cory, Maryland State Entomologist, and Dr. George S. Langford, Specialist in Insect Control for the Extension Service.

Apple trees were suffering the heaviest damage in the section visited. Practically all orchids were as brown as if they had been struck by a blight. Many trees were observed on which the apples were so covered with beetles that they had the appearance of dark balls or masses of the insects. While the beetles apparently prefer to feed upon the fruit, they also attack the leaves and practically all apple trees were badly defoliated.

Other plants on which damage, amounting in some cases to almost total defoliation, was observed, included grape vine, rose bushes, ond a number of ornamental and forest trees. It is stated by authorities that the Japanese beetle is known to attack about two hundred kinds of cultivated and wild plants. In addition, the larvae do serious damage to grass lands, particularly to lawns and golf courses.

One sight that especially impressed the Maryland group was a trap located in a nursery, which held ten gallons and which was said to have collected as many as 60 gallons of the pests in a single day.

Common expression of the Marylanders making the trip was: "I never dreamed there could be anything like this." Those who may have viewed without alarm the presence of a comparatively small number of Japanese beetles in their home communities were thoroughly aroused by the damage they saw in areas where the pest has reached enormous numbers.

There have been infestations of Japanese beetles in Maryland for about eight years, it is said, but by effective and persistant control and protective measures the population has been kept from becoming large enough to cause very serious damage, and the spread of infestation has been greatly retarded. Those who visited the heavily infested areas understand and appreciate as they never did before the value and importance of the efforts which are being made to prevent multiplication and spread of the pest in Maryland and the desirability of continuing and expanding these efforts.
