As I walk down the old Colonial looking street, I stopped by the house now owned by Mr. Hubbard, Wide Hall. When I remember it was a boarding house and many pleasant remembrances are recalled when I think of some of the boarders there. Now it is restored to its pristine beauty. I linger to look at the old door way, with its carved lintel and the rough time worn stone steps. Were I an artist, I would like to paint it in sepia, and hang it in some historical museum. The old trees, the boxwood and the garden lying as it does on the river all add to the lovliness of the place. Next door where Mr. Turner lives had been greatly added to, for it was a white 2 story building in those days. The old Custom house across the way is full of history, being used in the days when Chestertown was a port of entry. The old underground vaults were then a repository for goods brought over from England. Mr. William Wickes had his home there in my memory. The rooms were very lofty and quantities of old curios adorned the halls. They tell me that it is now an apartment House, and that the large cellar under neath is still retained by its owner for oyster roasts and grills, the big old fire place making it a fine place for them. Miss Josy Redue's house was next to it. Miss Josy had a private school there for many years where she was pestered and loved by the many boys and girls who came under her influence. Now, I see four attractive homes where the old fashioned brick house then stood. Across the way was the high brick wall which enclosed the garden that belonged to the Abby. Tradition says that there was no street between, and that the Abbey was built as a club house for the young officers who worked at the custom house. But in my day it was occupied by the Pearce family and the lot opposite was called the Pearce lot. Many a festival and lawn fete were held there. Across the street was the old William Burchinal place with its large parlors and airy rooms. Mr. Kreeger lives there now, I am told. The rest of the street, Scott Point was given up to the colored aristocracy, those who served the whites well, and kept themselves and their homes immaculate. I recall many of the women now with their stiffly starched dresses and aprons while the men were ever ready to carry loads in their wagons and carts. But before I leave the street I look back at the river.

It alone remains unchanged. The sun is shining upon it, the wavelets seeming like hundreds of sparkling diamonds, while the water mirrors the sky above it, a cerulean blue.

But I miss the busy scenes at the wharf that I remember long ago. I hear there is no steamboat coming up except sometime freight and tomato boats. No passengers to take the pleasant trips of yesterday. Perhaps, again the auto is responsible, for it makes a short ride to Tolchester which is across the bay from Baltimore.

There are many improvement, I notice, in the old town, chief among them the lovely flowers that nearly every one is raising; gardens, gardens every where. I hear they have a garden Club and also have a flower show every fall.

All in the county are interested in these shows and they seem each year to inspire the exhibitors to put forth greater efforts to make it a show that is worth while.

And now I find myself turning away from the river to see other changes in the old town that has altered so much. I turn up Maple Avenue. Long years ago, before my time, it was called Fish St. The other name is certainly more desirable.

Lady Astor, who is a member of Parliament in England, is one of the Langdon sisters of Virginia. These sisters were famous for their beauty and grace. One of them, married Charles Dana Gibson and has been often his model in his paintings of the Gibson girl. Lady Astor married the son of Waldorf Astor who had become a British subject and had been knighted, so at his death his son inherited his seat in the House of Lords as well as his title. Then Nancy Astor ran for a seat in the House of Commons and was elected. She is a great favorite there, so we are told. Being an ardent prohibitionist, she has tried very hard to introduce Prohibition in England. It was a great blow to her when she knew that her native land had repealed it, but she is still working for it in England. Some one laughingly showed her a very old law saying that it was a crime to keep any spiritous liquor away from the King. Lady Astor is a great friend of Bernard Shaw. He also is a strong prohibitionist and refuses all wine or other liquors when entertained.

VARIETY OF NECK LINES

Necklines are high or low, V or square, choked in front and waist-deep in back, or draped with soft, deep folds, both front and back. In the recent Paris openings, Mainbocher showed a number of frocks cut very low, with invisible shoulder straps, as well as a group with demure covered shoulders. Vera Borea's 'window box' neckline features a square tucked front from which blooms a row of bright flowers. Maggy Rouff likes the soft rounded line, but the consensus seems to be that the square neck is smartest—the lower the better.

KNITTED THINGS SMART

Speaking for the style angle, as well as the practical one, you can't have too many sweaters no matter where you are going. At least five of them. Soft, rosy-beige angora or knitted sweaters to wear with tweed skirts, or a color exactly matching your skirt. And one or two bright colors.

WOOL POPULAR

All-wool and less than a yard wide may sum up your evening dress nicely this season. For wool is the newest thing on the formal horizon, and if you think it incongruous it's because you haven't see nthe woolens that are being used.

Chiffon weight, some of them look almost like silk, and they have the added charm of novelty. They're perfect for the slim silhouette and combine beautifully with the satin or lace which is frequently used to give contrast to the frock top.

EMERGENCY CROP LOANS AVAILABLE

SEE COUNTY AGENT FOR PARTICULARS

County Agent McVean has been notified that under the provisions of the Emergency Crop Loan Act loans may be made for the specified purpose of preparing land and purchase of seed for winter grains. The amount loaned is limited to One Dollar ($1.00) per acre for preparation and One Dollar ($1.00) per acre for purchase of seed for winter grains; or Two Dollars ($2.00) per acre for the combined purpose of preparing land and seed. The period for making application for this type of loan ends September 5, 1934.

The conditions under which these loans are granted are as follows:

Promissory notes taken to secure the loans which mature August 31, 1935.

Those who already have 1934 Emergency Crop Loans may not get more than enough money to bring their total up to Two Hundred Fifty Dollars ($250.)

A first mortgage must be given on the crop to be planted.

Any parties other than the Farm Credit Administration who hold a lien on the borrower's crops must sign waivers in favor of the Farm Credit Administration.

The Landlords of tenants must also sign waivers.

For further details see County Agent.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
WITHOUT CALOMEL
And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go
If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.
For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.
If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.
It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.
But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at drug stores. ©1931 C. M. Co.
