NEW ROMANTIC TEAM—Franchot Tone and Madeleine Carroll in a scene from "The World Moves On", Fox Film's "love story of a century". 2PA

With a powerful story of epic sweep, one of the strongest casts assembled in many moons and directed by one of Hollywood's aces, Fox Film's 'The World Moves On' comes to the New Lyceum on Monday and Tuesday, September 24 and 25, heralded at 'the love story of a century.'

Fresh from a two a day, two dollar showing in New York, 'The World Moves On' has been acclaimed as the picture Hollywood will have to beat for the 1934-35 award of the Academy of Motion Pictures Arts and Sciences to 'the best film of the year.'

Described variously by the New York critics as 'a notable addition to cinema's best,' 'a worthy successor to 'cavalcade',' and 'magnificient drama,' the picture was produced by Winfield Sheehan vice-president and general manager of production.

PLAYED BY STRONG CAST

Madeleine Carroll, acclaimed for her work in 'I Was A Spy,' was summoned to Hollywood for the leading feminine role.

Franchot Tone was engaged as the perfect foil for Miss Carroll's blonde beauty. He was 'borrowed' from M. G. M.

Then Siegfried Rumann, who gave such an unforgettable portrayal as Preysing in 'Grand Hotel' on Broadway, was given the role of a baron opposite Louise Dresser.

John Ford, who had just completed 'The Lost Patrol,' was drafted as the director, and William Darling, winner of the Academy Award for art direction on 'Cavalcade,' was assigned to design the settings.

Mr. Sheehan himself conceived the basic idea for the story. He then called in Reginald Berkeley, whose outstanding screen achievement had been the adaptation of 'Cavalcade,' described the theme to him and prescribed a definite plan for its development.

George Schneiderman is credited with the photography! E. F. Grossman, sound; William Darling, settings; Rita Kaufman, costumes, and Arthur Lange, musical direction.

A new and indescribable thrill in screen entertainment awaits motion picture audiences whi will see Columbia's 'One Night of Love,' starring the gorgeous, glamorous, golden voiced Grace Moore, which comes to the New Lyceum on Wednesday and Thursday, September 26 and 27, two day engagement.

Miss Moore, known in every city in the world where she has appeared on the operatic and the concert stage, achieves the glorious heights of screen stardom as a result of her superb dramatic portrayal in this Columbia extravaganza.

Her role is that of a young, midwestern girl who goes to Italy to study for an operatic career with the prize money she has won in a radio audition contest. There she meets a romantic, debonair music teacher, splendidly interpreted by Tullio Carminati, international stage and screen star, who immediately offers to develop her for the Metropolitan in New York. But with one reservation. That their association remain untarnished by even the slightest suggestion of a love affair.

Needless to say, Miss Moore wins the acclaim of Europe and America for her glorious voice, but finds fame surprisingly empty without the love and caresses of her music teacher. In a fit of temper she leaves Carminati. But without his presence her voice chokes in her throat and her heart refuses to sing.

The climactic scene where Miss Moore stands on the stage of the Metropolitan to sing an enchanting aria, is one of subtle sentiment. It marks the highlight of a production that is a milestone in the history of the cinema.

In addition to Miss Moore and Tullio Carminati, the film boasts an imposing cast that includes Lyle Talbot, Mona Barrie, Nydia Westman, Andres de Segurola, Luis Alberni and Jessie Ralph. Victor Schertzinger, who directed, also composed the title song. The story is from the pens of Charles Beahan and Dorothy Speare. S. K. Lauren, James Gow and Edmund North collaborated on the screen play.

Craig now pitching, L. Roemer double to right Rheims scoring, F. Foemer fanned the air on three strikes. IT IS AN HONOR

We were handed a little printed paragraph, not long ago by a business man, that had been prepared for use in the extension of trade among reliable people. The substance of it was: 'It is an honor to receive a bill. Instead of becoming embarrassed when you receive a statement of account, you should become genuinely pleased because a bill is conclusive evidence that someone has trusted you, has had faith in your honesty. A bill indicates that some one who knows you, depends upon your honor to keep your word. Should you never receive a bill it might mean that your credit is worthless—that is, none would esteem you to the extent of opening an account with you. Therefore, credit is the most precious thing you possess. Money can be paid by various means, but credit comes only with years of honest payment of bills when they fall due. So, when we pay our bills we are doing ourselves a good turn. Meet your obligations promptly, frankly tell your creditor why you cannot pay and you will usually find that he will meet you more than half way.' Cherish your credit more than you cherish your health, your happiness, or any other earthly thing. Credit is a precious, priceless wealth. Should every church member in the land practice the principle set forth in these lines, the estimate placed upon the Church would increase immediately and amazingly. The great majority of church people pay their debts and enjoy the confidence of the general public. There are some, we say in grief, who do not do all they could do in this respect. Make your credit good!
