OLD CHESTERTOWN CONTINUED

As I turned up Maple Ave., as it is now called, there is surely a change in the street. When I remember it long ago, as I said before there was a large field on the right side with only one house on the corner which was occupied by the Burchinal family.

Miss Addie Burchinal, was the admiration of our childest minds in those days. She was always so tastefully dressed, and so spotless that a speck of dirt dared not touch her. There was an older sister, Miss Mary, who lived there, too, and a handsome brother, Mr. John Burchinal. A depression in the middle of this field became a small pond in wet weather and when frozen over it served as a fine place for skating.

On the other side of the street was the home of the Park's family, a long low house which is still standing and, I hear that it is occupied by one Dr. Power and his family. Beside it now stands a big apartment house and the old field opposite it is built up with pretty comfortable houses. I see a sad sight as I pass along the street; a young man under the influence of liquor. Could he but see himself as others see him, he would hardly allow himself to get in that condition again. The fine eyes are glazed, and his strong strait limbs are unsteady. I think of the white ribboners in the days gone by, of Mrs. Brown, who lived on Water street. Hers was a strong character and she worked untiringly to break up the drink evil, then there were Mrs. John Usilton, Mrs. Hurlock, Mrs. Shaeffer, of Kennedyville, all joining forces and working with her in a common cause. They did not think of taking this cause unto politics then; it was long after that Prohibition was adopted, but they would try to induce the young to take the pledge, and many, who took it, kept to their vow. They say that Prohibition failed, perhaps it did, but one should be very careful how he handles the 'fire water' as the Indians used to call it.

As I go farther up the street, I notice many filling stations along the boulevard, the boulevard that has recently grown much broader, and has lost its trees in the widening of it. I stop for awhile to talk to Aunt Charlotte, an old resident of that street, Aunt Charlotte claims to be over a hundred years old, and she loves to talk of the time when she belonged to 'Marse Bowers,' who lived in a large house, back of the Voshell house, the latter, now occupying part of its front yard. She tells of the time when the young joyous daughter married the illustrious Judge Chambers, whose learning and gravity would awe the bright young girl. Marse Bowers gave Aunt Charlotte to his daughter on her marriage and then they went to live in the house on Water Street, now occupied by Mr. W. W. Hubbard. I hear that one of the old Judge's descendants sends money every year to their slave of long ago. Aunt Charlotte is well preserved for her age, she has long outlived her children and seems to be able to get along very well going up and doing her shopping. There are many old colored friends on this street which have passed on, among them Aunt Kitty Tummy who used to peddle oysters around in a tin bucket. She was an interesting old woman very black and with plenty of humor and reminiscenses.

FROM TIMES

Sissies & He-Men. Manhattan copy-readers gleefully headlined a squib from the meeting: CITY EDITORS JUST SISSIES. Their pretext was a report by Stanford University's Edward Kellogg Strong, Jr., who studied the pre-occupations of 800 men and women. Findings: 'Farmers and engineers have the most masculine and youthful interests; journalists, advertising men, ministers and lawyers have the most feminine interests; w[illegible] ministers, teachers, Y. M. C. A. secretaries and school superintendents have the most mature interests. With increasing age both sexes become more feminine in interest.'

Recently driving to Boston to speak over the radio, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins fretted in a Labor Day traffic jam outside Brunswick, Me. To escape from a tangle with two other cars, her chauffeur swerved into a ditch, lost control, overturned her sedan. Madam Secretary Perkins, badly jolted, cancelled her afternoon engagement, delivered her speech that evening.

Secretary Perkins is now in the South which is terribly upset on account of the Textile Workers Strike.

It is hoped that her womanly tact will help to solve the troubles.

Last week the Adult Art Class turned in some results of their Studies. This Art Class in New York is conducted by the F. E. R. and had been in existence about twenty months.

The Coffee Pot cook produced a study of morning sunlight filtering through a great tree in Central Park which a metropolitan art dealer snapped up. The exbroker found peace in sculpture, modeled a striking bust of a jut-jawed, middle aged tycoon. The secretary painted a smiling portrait of Anna Eleanor Roosevelt on an old piece of bristol board. It has been purchased for the White House. The high school boy drew automobiles. It got him a job as sports cartoonist on a Manhattan newspaper. The cripple turned out some slashing caricatures of the Four Marx Brothers which Warner Bros. promptly bought for publicity use.

FASHION NOTES

Picture Hats

The first velvet picture hats have made their appearance at Chantilly, France. Some of them have crowns of sheer tulle or lace.

PLEATED SKIRTS

Pleated skirts will be important in early fall fashions, according to a stylist, who returned recently from Paris. This also speaks with enthusiasm of velvet bows that are used to trim both daytime and evening dresses, explaining that bows in different colors are substituted to give a change in appearance to the frock.

BLACK HOSE TO RETURN TO FASHION FOR AUTUMN WEAR

The latest cry of the fashion prophets is black stockings; not gun-metal ones or bluish-black ones, but plain, ordinary, old-fashioned black stockings.

It's a wild gamble, betting on black stockings, when one remembers how often and how uselessly the very same fashion prophets have heralded the return of curves and long hair.

Black stockings have at least one worthwhile virtue. They make plump ankles and fat legs look slimmer. But it must be admitted they have a strong tendency to make skinny legs look like soda straws.

Hat pins have come back. They are short agairs three or four inches long with a colored ball on the end.

AMERICAN BREEDERS OF TOMORROW

(BY EDWARD C. LOUD, JR.)

The dog game in America is getting bigger and better every day. Young man did you ever stop to think that we American breeders only breed or produce a very small percentage of our best pedigreed registered bench show dogs. Year after year Americans go shopping for high class bench show dogs in many foreign lands, and bring to America the best specimens money can purchase. Wake up American breeders, the business is here waiting for you to produce. In other lines of business, we find experts in almost everything, but in the dog game we fall down. The opportunity is here for any person to advance and build up a nice business and derive a revenue from the dog game. The beginner doesn't need large kennels and acres of land to start, but he does need some knowledge of feeding and care. To acquire this knowledge first purchase a book written by some person who has bred and raised dogs and who has been a success. After reading and acquiring such knowledge as you will get from this book, you have the foundation to start. Attend a few of our large dog shows where the best specimens in America are in exhibition.

Before purchasing, study the breed you are interested in, and buy the best specimens in America on exhibition. Select the breed of dogs you like best, and stick to that breed, then if you can produce, the public will soon turn to you. Before purchasing, study the breed you are interested in, and buy the best specimen your pocketbook can agord. Don't be guided by any one judge's decision. Many good breeders today know their breeds better than most judges themselves, or they could not produce almost perfect specimens year after year. In your breeding, don't be guided by the decisions you see handed out at many shows, use your own head.

Dog Breeders of America, our opportunity is here, but we must produce real good specimens.

WHY DON'T YOU TRY IT?

After more than three months of suffering from a nervous ailment, Miss Glivar used Dr. Miles Nervine which gave her such splendid results that she wrote us an enthusiastic letter.

If you suffer from "Nerves." If you lie awake nights, start at sudden noises, tire easily, are cranky, blue and fidgety, your nerves are probably out of order.

Quiet and relax them with the same medicine that "did the work" for this Colorado girl.

Whether your "Nerves" have troubled you for hours or for years, you'll find this time-tested remedy effective.

IF YOUR BREATH HAS A SMELL YOU CAN'T FEEL WELL

When we eat too much, our food decays in our bowels. Our friends smell this decay coming out of our mouth and call it bad breath. We feel the poison of this decay all over our body. It makes us gloomy, grouchy and no good for anything.

What makes the food decay in the bowels? Well, when we eat too much, our bile juice can't digest it. What is the bile juice? It is the most vital digestive juice in our body. Unless 2 pints of it are flowing from our liver into our bowels every day, our movements get hard and constipated and ¾ of our food decays in our 28 feet of bowels. This decay sends poison all over our body every six minutes.

When our friends smell our bad breath (but we don't) and we feel like a whipped tomcat, don't use a mouthwash or take a laxative. Get at the cause. Take Carter's Little Liver Pills which gently start the flow of your bile juice. But if "something better" is offered you, don't buy it, for it may be a calomel (mercury) pill, which loosens teeth, gripes and scalds the rectum in many people. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name and get what you ask for—25¢. ©1934, C.M.Co.
