HERE IS GOOD NEWS FOR YOU

Don't wait, this is the time to get Locust Posts.

There are really two good reasons why you should not postpone, first of all many many Locust Post's are sure to be sold out, many of them are one time buys that positively can not be replaced, second reason is that if you say to your self, 'well I'll wait until later,' the first thing you know you'll be sorry and angry with your self for having missed the hundreds of Locust Posts. Decide right now and be on hand when the Posts are here.

FOUR CHOLERA OUTBREAKS

KENT 5TH IN STATE IN HOG DISEASE

Kent County ranked fifth in the state in hog cholera outbreaks during the month of September with a total of five.

Only 13 of the 23 counties reported hog cholera losses. Worcester had the doubtful distinction of leading the list with 9 outbreaks; Talbot had 6; Wicomico and Anne Arundel, 5 each; Kent, 4; Caroline and Prince George's, 2 each; and Allegany, Calvert, Carroll, Charles, Dorchester, Somerset and Washington had 1 each. A few weeks just bfore the weather gets cold enough for farm slaughter of hogs in apparently the most dangerous period of the year for hog cholera out breaks. It is at this seasn that many farmers buy pork, and it is the occasional cholera-infected scraps of such meat that start most of our troubles. The past month was no exception, as 32 outbreaks were caused by feeding such infected material in the kitchen refuse. Four were caused by feeding city garbag, 3 by introduction of new stock, and 1 by drainage water running from the pen of cholera-sick hogs to a nearby hog lot.

It would have been much better if the hog that dies of cholera had never been born as the AAA premium for not raising the hog is forfeited as well as the hog meat for the coming winter.

According to advice given by the U. S. Department of Agriculture the loss of hogs via the cholera route can be practically eliminated with a little care on the part of the owner and as hog killing time is approaching every precaution should be taken.

The local team this year gives promise of being a credit to Washington College. It is heavier and has been put through a strenuous course of training by Coaches Kibler and Ekaitis. The schedule is lighter than in former years and the opening game will see Washington as the favorites.

The game next Saturday, October 20th, with Hopkins at Homewood will probably be the first big test and a large delegation of students and fans are planning to make the trip to Baltimore. Dean J. S.
