

SHE LOVES ME NOT

Acclaimed by preview audiences in both Hollywood and New York as one of the most colorful and sparkling screen romances in seasons, the lavish Fox Film, 'Love Time,' shows at the New Lyceum on Monday and Tuesday, October 15 and 16.

The new and delightful young Fox 'discovery,' 'Pat' Paterson, has her best role to date as the sweetheart of a world-famed composer, in this production; and Nils Asther, playing the composer, is said to top all his past film achievements in this unique assignment.

'Love Time' tells a tender story of youthful passion, struggle and triumpn After a nightmare of uncertainty and separation, two lovers are reunited by means of the young composer's haunting music. Such famous airs of Schubert's as the 'Abschied,' 'Moment Musical,' 'Who Is Sylvia?' and the melodious 'Serenade' are woven into the action of the film.

The young man's love is shown as the inspiration of these enchanting creations, which for a century have been world favorites. Their use, in a logical manner, naturally enriches the picture.

In addition to 'Pat' Paterson, for whom a great career is promised in American pictures, and Nils Asther, who is seen to better advanage than ever before, a notable cast includes such names as Herbert Mundin, Harry Green, Henry B. Walthall, Henry Kolker, Lucien Littlefield and Roger Imhof.

Georgia Caine, former Broadway musical comedy star, has a leading 'character' role as does Josephine Whittell, another prima donna of othtr days.

James Tinling directed 'Love Time,' and John Stone was the producer. The screen play was prepared by William Conselman and Henry Johnson, from an original story by Richard Carroll.

Lavish settings, designed by Duncan Cramer, are said to reproduce with accuracy the Vienna of 1820; and the gorgeous trappings of the court of Emperor Francis I form a background for the later phases of the story.

Something new and different in motion picture history has been accomplished; a college story has been filmed without a football game, a football player, or a college musical show in the entire production.

The picture is 'She Loves Me Not,' produced by Paramount with Bing Crosby and Miriam Hopkins starred. It plays on Wednesday and Thursday, October 17 and 18, at the New Lyceum Theatre.

'She Loves Me Not,' is adopted from the widely-read novel which appeared in serial form in the Saturday Evening Post, and also from the Broadway play of the same name. In addition to Crosby and Miriam Hopkins, Kitty Carlisle, Edward Nugent, Henry Stephenson, Warren Hymer, Lynne Overman, Judith Allen, George Barbier and Vince Barnett are included in the cast.

Elliott Nugent, who directed 'Three-Cornered Moon,' directed this film from the screen play by Benjamin Glazer.

Besides giving Crosby ample opportunity to sing several brand new, typhically Crosby tunes, the film is also full of comedy and suspense. A young night-club girl sees a murder committed and, fearing to be questioned by police, she runs away, getting as far as Princeton, New Jersey.

Broke, hungry and desperate she walks boldly into the room of Crosby, a student. By a clever ruse and a little disguise, he attempts to hide her in the dormitory. She is discovered and the events that follow involve Crosby, the dean and the entire college in an uproarious series of events.

Heading an impressive cast which includes Gail Patrick, Monte Blue, Raymond Hatton and Jan Duggan, Randolph Scott returns for another of his hard-riding, whirlwind fighting and thrilling roles in the Paramount picturization of the Zane Grey's 'Wagon Wheels,' coming on Friday and Saturday, Octobr 19 and 20 to the New Lyceum as part of a double feature show.

In this handsomely directed and mounted film, which details some of the actual and historic adventures that beset the sturdy pioneers who took the first wagon train across the country in 1844 to Oregon, Scott plays the role of an Indian-fighting frontier scout. He wins the love of a lovely widow and her child, when he saves the entire caravan from death at the hands of the savages.

There is one other little actor, very little in fact, who we think will bear watching in the future. He is Billy Lee, four years old, and the newest of Hollywood's juvenile actors, who brightened every scene in which he appeared with his bright smile and ingratiating manner.

All in all, 'Wagon Wheels' is about as satisfactory a combination of comedy, drama, romance and thrills as you could see.

How police combat organized crime, including the burglary insurance racket, is one of the features of the new Columbia Police-Detective production, 'Girl In Danger,' which will be at the New Lyceum on Friday and Saturday, October 19 ond 20 as part of a double feature show.

The old-fashioned 'fence' as a method of disposing of stolen jewels has almost passed away; instead, modern jewel thieves employ a racket which nets them more than they could recover from the sale of the jewels through old-fashioned channels.

Learning which company has written the burglary insurance on the gems, through a crooked attorney they communicate with the company, offering to return the jewels on payment of a portion of the insured value. The insurance company, faced with a complete loss unless they comply, many times will pay off the thieves to secure the return of the property. It is against the law, but, nevertheless, it is done.

In 'Girl In Danger,' Ralph Bellamy, as Inspector Trent, figures out a way to circumvent this profitable racket, and his scheme results in the capture of the criminals.

Why Hospitals Use a Liquid Laxative

Hospitals and doctors have always used liquid laxatives. And the public is fast returning to laxatives in liquid form. Do you know the reasons?

The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can thus be regulated to suit individual need. It forms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. Nor will a mild liquid laxative irritate the kidneys.

The right dose of a liquid laxative brings a more natural movement, and there is no discomfort at the time, or after.

The wrong cathartic may often do more harm than good.

A properly prepared liquid laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin brings safe relief from constipation. It gently helps the average person's bowels until nature restores them to regularity. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is an approved liquid laxative which all druggists keep ready for use. It makes an ideal family laxative; effective for all ages, and may be given the youngest child.

The Road To Better Health

FEET AND SHOES

By DR. WILLIAM J. SCHOLES

During the past decade or so there has been a noticeable increase in the size of women's feet. Everyone's feet get bigger—a size or two—with age. But the foregoing statement has reference to women as a class.

Unquestionable the women of the United States have the neatest and trimmest feet in the world. Their shoes fit their feet prettily. What most of these feet look like without shoes I leave to the reader's own judgment.

Why Women's Feet Are Growing Larger

Women's feet are growing larger principally because of the custom of wearing low shoes. Such shoes allow the foot and ankle to spread. As a result we find the slender, tapering type of ankle so common in past years gradually becoming obsolete. The woman of today has ankles much thicker than her grandmother's—that's plain to be seen. The modern girl wouldn't think of donning a pair of lace shoes that come half-way up her calf, even in zero weather.

What Constitutes a Proper Shoe?

The high heels of some years back have given way to a more sensible type of heel. Howver, the height of the heel is a matter each woman should decide for herself. Some can not wear low heels. They cause too much traction on the shorter calf muscles of some legs. Others can not wear high heels. Their arch is not constructed for such footgear. In other words, the low heel is just as harmful as the high heel if unsuited to a certain foot. Wear what is suitable for your foot and avoid extremes.

Many feet are tortured by squeezing them into a shoe two sizes too small. This is the usual cause of bunions (partial dislocation of the joint of the great toe with the fot. Better to wear a No. 7 now than a No. 9 later. A commoner mistake than wearing shoes that are too narrow is getting shoes that are too short. Ingrowing nails and deformed toes are the consequence.

A change from high-heeled to low-heeled shoes should be made gradually. A sudden shift is bound to cause much discomfort together with deformation of the foot and ankle. Unquestionably low heels are preferable insofar as the effect on other parts of the body is concerned, especially the spine, pelvis and internal organs. Their general adoption is greatly to be desired. And the tendency seems to be strongly in that direction. In the meantime, a foot will always be a foot.

Santo Domingo Qaaint City

Most ancient of existing settlements of white men in the western hemisphere is the quaint city of Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic. Christopher Columbus founded the city and claimed for Spain the island of Haiti, of which the Dominican Republic occuples about two-thirds. In Columbus' day the colony was named Hispaniola. One of the principal sights of Santo Domingo is the fortress wall and old gate leading into the city from the mouth of the Ozama river. The gate was heavily barricaded and the wall fortified in the early years of the city's history. Santo Domingo is capital of the republic.—Chicago Tribune.

Music Broadcast By Telephone In 1877

Transmitting music over telephone wires for broadcasting stations here, there and everywhere—now a daily occurrence—is not a new development. Alexander Graham Bell in 1877, just a year after his invention of the telephone, utilized these instruments for this type of entertainment.

In order to arouse public interest in the telephone, says Robertson T. Barrett in the Bell Telephone Quarterly, Dr. Bell gave demonstrations or lectures in various cities of the east and one of the features of these affairs was the transmission of songs, cornet solos, cabinet organ and similar musical selections from some outside point to the auditorium in which the lecture was held. In the light of present knowledge of the telephone art, Mr. Barrett says, it is perhaps safe to assume that these demonstrations, though they amazed the audiences which heard them, were reminders of Dr. Samuel Johnson's comment on the performance of a dog, which he had seen dancing on its hind legs. The good doctor remarked that the spectacle was extraordinary — "not because the dog danced particularly well, but because it danced at all."

Imaginative writers in the early days of the telephone, Mr. Barrett says, delighted in predicting the time when entire audiences, as well as individual telephone subscribers, would be entertained by opera and orchestra programs transmitted over the wires. That this prediction has come true is evidenced by the daily feature radio programs of a widely diversified nature that entertain audiences in their homes almost everywhere.

To meet the demands of radio broadcasting companies, Bell System Companies have installed equipment in central offices throughout the country to enable any program passing through a particular point to be distributed by radio stations in various directions over separate routes. In many other telephone offices special testboard equipment for adjusting, monitoring and re-arranging broadcasting networks has also been installed. Utilizing this apparatus selected types of programs can be supplied certain stations in a given area while other stations are supplied entirely different features. This emphasizes the part played by telephone communication lines in everyday radio broadcasting.
