THE VALUE OF A four year record as compared with a campaign of political promises is what every voter should take into serious consideration on election day. Th record made by the Democratic party, both in the County and State during the past four years is an open book. There is nothing concealed and taxpayers and all others have profited and enjoyed the results of this record. Three of the outstanding points of political controversy in Maryland for generations past have been schools, roads and taxes and have been handled in juggled by those aspiring to political office in every way possible. The record made by the Democratic party in handling these three major political issues is their campaign for the coming election, starting with the schools let us consider what we are getting for our money. The State has adopted a school standard which is equal to the best in the country and not only have they adopted this model form of education but through the equalization fund have enabled the lesser financially able counties, including Kent, to receive the benefit of it at a very small local cost. Through this equalization fund the State contributes a large share of the cost of educating Kent County children at a high standard which would not be possible if the cost had to be born entirely by this county. The maintenance of county roads has been taken over entirely by the State and reports show that they have been maintained in a very satisfactory manner. The above two items tie in directly with taxes. The State by bearing a large part of the cost of schools and roads has been a large factor in reducing the local tax rate to a record low mark of 84 cents. Is not this record made by the present administration sufficient to assure sufficient confidence to keep them in office. The Republican efforts are based on political promises and the comparative value of facts and promises are the major issue which confronts the tax paying voters. The record made by the various local Democratic officials is most flattering and without any possible ground for criticism. Based on this fact and with Kent County Democratic by a large majority should there be any question as to the results in November. It is high important that the entire Democratic ticket listed above be elcted in November so that Kent County may be a link in the State and Federal government.

THE POLITICAL SITUATION

A Democratic meeting was held at the Hotel Rhennart in Baltimore last Monday and as a poor newspaper worker I attended.

Arriving a little early I was not the first there by a couple of hundred. When starting time came, the place was packed. The crowd was estimated by the button seller to be two thousand. Maybe he was a bad guesser of crowds like Nice's newspaper reporter but there was not room for many more at the hotel.

My job was to find out all I could about the way the campaign was progressing.

The first speaker was Dan Sullivan, a campaign manager for Doctor Conly. Don Sullivan is a firm believer in primaries to select the candidates, but when election time rolls around he believes in supporting the party. If this does not result he says 'Primaries are a failure.' In many parts of the state the Conly factions won and are now being given the support of the Ritchie factions. 'That is the real Democratic spirit' said Mr. Sullivan and he urged all those who fought with him in the primary to rally to the support of the full Democratic ticket.

It seems that a great point in the Nice campaign is that he claims to stand in better with Roosevelt than Ritchie does. Senator Tydings contradicted this and pointed out that he and candidate Radcliffe had interviewed Roosevelt only two weeks ago and had secured the appropriation for the C & D Canal. He pointed out that Ritchie had helped to elect Roosevelt and that Nice ha fought him. Tydings also asked this question, 'Who would Nice be supporting in the next presidential campaign.' Again Tydings pointed out that President Roosevelt had called on a friend to help him put across the new deal. That friend was George L. Radcliffe, present candidate for the U. S. Senate on the Democratic ticket. At Mr. Roosevelt's request Mr. Radcliffe became the director of the P. W. A. for this Eastern District which is composed of five states. At the request of President Roosevelt, Mr. Radcliffe went outstide his own district to help organize other districts. Now Tydings pointed out Mr. Nice was trying to defeat Mr. Radcliffe for the Senart by supporting Joseph I. France.

(Mr. Radcliffe in Chestertown pointed out, that Ritchie had supported him in his work.)

Following Tydings, Mr. Quinn, of Crisfield, who has always been an enemy of Ritchie made a speech endorsing Ritchie for Governor this time.

When the meeting broke up I fought my way to the side of Mr. Quinn. The big friend of the watermen. He gave the waterman's side of the situation. The oystermen want the government and state to plant oysters and feel that with Ritchie, Radcliffe, Tydings and Goldsborough pushing the matter they can get it. They also feel that a promise from Ritchie who is in office means a great deal to them. He also informed me that Mr. Earle would not be at the head of the oyster industry.

(He must have had some inside dope because this did not break in the papers until the next day.)

He says more oyster planting, removing Earle, taking the tax off work boats suited him fine. To hear this from Mr. Quinn assured me that things were coming Mr. Ritchie's way.

Another funny thing I heard from a worker in one of the dry counties. He says that the 'drys' have always voted against Ritchie and this is the 1st time in three elections that they will vote for him. He says, 'Mr. Nice being a criminal lawyer does not appeal to them as much as Mr. Ritchie.'

There were plenty standing around talking that had no great love for Ritchie but were going to support him.

Many of them are planning primaries for two years hence.

In cruising around the city and visiting friends some Democrats and some Republican they all seemed to think that the Democratic State Ticket would get a tremendous majority. Ritchie they predicted would run behind the ticket but would win. I heard that most all the lawyers in the city had endorsed Ritchie regardless of affiliation. Out of three Republicans I met, only one was going to vote for Nice. So while Nice is counting on disgruntled Democrats bolting he should remember that some of his own party have no great admiration for him. Instead of this being a campaign of two popular men it sounds like a campaign of two unpopular men. Another big help to Ritchie is going to be the Maryland tax rate and something that seemed to be talked of a great deal was the wonderful financial condition of Maryland.

WASHINGTON WINS GRID TEST

ROMPS OVER GALLADETTE 51 TO 0

Washington College's' 1934 foot ball team looked powerful last Saturday when they easily rolled up a 51 to 0 victory over Gallaudette.

Coach Ekaitis took most of his regulars out at the end of the first half and used everything that was dressed in foot ball togs. Just how strong the Washington eleven is depends on how strong Galladette is and vice versa but the real test will come today.

The real test of Washington's strength will come today when they meet Hopkins in Baltimore today, and a record number of fans are planning to attend the game.

If Washington has any foot ball Dr. J. S. W. Jones has arranged with the Tolchester Company for a special boat to leave Baltimore at 8 p. m. tonight, Saturday so that those who attend the game may return home tonight. The trip is also open to the public who wish to take advantages of a long day in Baltimore.
