SQUADRON LOG

BY THE STOWAWAY

Not every one is submitting to the domination of Old Man Winter. Over on the bay shore one can often see yachts wallowing through the rough water. Large or small, all have one point in common—all are bound southward.

Here at home the first ice of the season appeared on the Chester River Country Club lake. Only a thin skim of ice along the shore and around the dead reeds, to be sure, but it was ice. The hunters doubtless will rejoice and the would be skaters may see in it a hopeful sign. To the rest it means that summer is definitely past for another five or six months.

In Chestertown a hint of summer green appeared on Wednesday. The small park opposite to the court house took on a boxwood hedge, the first step toward further development and improvement by planting. The gift of the boxwood is from Our Garden Club to the people of Chestertown and Kent County. Cooperation of every one is asked to help preserve it. The baby hedge may look small today but the plants are the best size to use and are the same size as those usd in Centerville and Easton a few short years ago. A glance at the public squares in those two towns the next time you pass through will show you how the Chestertown park will look before long.

By setting the example of town beautification in the park, the members of Our Garden Club hope to inspire householders to 'go and do likewise' by permanently improving their properties. Trees will soon be planted by the 'Town Fathers' to further enhance the loveliness of the already beautiful little city.

Few towns and cities are so intrinsically beautiful as Chestertown. It would be easy to make it the most beautiful place on the Eastern Shore.

Rock Hall is a very flower minded community, and it is a pleasure in summer to visit there. Almost every house, it seems, nestles in a flower bed.

The planting at Washington College and the gradual improvement of the parks in the center of the town are not enough. What can you do next spring to make your home ground attractive? A new tree, a shrub, or just some zinnias?

Shipping companies report that the depression is rapidly passing for them and that passenger travel is picking up. No wonder it is with all the two and three page advertisements of places to go and ships to go on.

For the chap with a tripping toe they are alluring, and highly tempting to those ordinarily contented to stay at home. Prices are down to where they used to be before the War for trans Atlantic passage, and lower than ever before for South American ports and trans Pacific destinations.

After the pictures shown by Colonel Schwab at the American Legion Armistice Day dinner on Monday no doubt many would be content just to go to Panama for the winter. Ducks or no ducks, there is something very appealing about the thought of the tropics these frosty mornings.

DOAN'S PILLS

Do You Own "GROUND HOG" HENS?

• "Ground hog" hens . . . that's what they are if they hibernate through the winter and don't lay enough eggs to pay their keep.

• But don't blame the hens! They can't lay in their winter pens if the feed is wrong. Put them on a diet of "Daily" Feeds and they'll soon get the laying habit.

• "Daily" Feeds contain the elements hens need for egg production during winter confinement. And they are complete feeds in themselves, always made of selected, clean, fresh ingredients.

• For plenty of eggs in winter, when egg prices are highest, start using "Daily" Feeds now. "Daily" Feeds are surprisingly economical at A & P Stores.
