Friday Night, November 14

Jack Parsons, of Berlin, vs. Joe Imbriguillio, of Baltimore. Imbriguillio was very popular with the fans in his former appearance.

Sid Barrett, of Smyrna, Del., vs. an unannounced fighter. Barrett fought at draw with Imbriguillio at the last meeting and the fight was a wow.

'Smiling' Bob Cosden, of Cordova, vs. Ben Parsons of Berlin. 'Smiling' Bob needs no introduction. Ben Parsons fought a draw with Henry Gonzalas at the last meeting and that is saying plenty.

Kid Cosden, of Cordova, vs Kid Gutherie, of Salisbury. Kid Cosden like his brother needs no introduction. Gutherie lost to Gonzales earlier in the year but claims he was not in training. Now he is in the pink of condition and claims he will give Cosden a licking.

The wrestling bout will again see Rusty Austin in action. His opponent will be 'Wild Bill' Parks. 'Will Bill' is noted for being a dirty wrestler and that is what the crowd seems to like.

NOW AND THEN

THE KNEELING CAMEL

The camel, at the close of day,
Kneels down upon the sandy plain
To have his burdens lifted off,
And rest again.

My soul, thou, too, shouldst to thy knees
When daylight draweth to a close,
And let thy Master lift thy load
And grant repose.

Else how canst thou tomorrow meet,
With all tomorrow's work to do,
If thou thy burden all the night
Dost carry through?

The camel kneels at break of day
To have his guide replace his load,
Then rises up anew to take
The desert road.

So shouldst thou kneel at morning's dawn,
That God may give thy daily care,
Assured that He no load too great
Will make thee bear.

—Anna Temple Bailey.

It is well to lay aside one's load of care when night falls even if it has to be taken up again after the nights rest, like the camel in the above poem.

In reading over some of Dean Swift's works one is struck with the many witty saying which have become household words. Some of them are:

'Bread is the Staff of Life; A penny for your thoughts; The sight of you is good for sore eyes; A carpenter is known by his chips; I thought you and he were hand in glove; Hail fellow, well met; There is none so plind as they who will not see; and All the world and his wife.'

A year or to ago, there was published in the Atlantic Monthly, 'The Story of 'Adam and Eve in Paradise.'

It was written by a German Professor who was weary of the demands of his office and he and his wife had gone to the Galapagos Island where they found plenty to do in building shacks and planting their garden the only real trial being the wild hogs which tried to destroy their buildings and garden.

But the Paradise has been invaded by others seeking quiet. A German Baroness and two men landed there. For a while all was well and then stormy scenes arose between the trree new comers. One day after such a scene the German professer went there to see what was the matter. He found one man, standing in the midst of wild disorder, who told the Professor that the others had left, and he wanted to go too. He went down to the seashore and hailed a passing boat. Recently some navigators stopped at one of the barren islands of the group. They found there 2 bodies in so bad a state of decomposition that they could tell little about them. Which of the two pair were they? is still a great mystery.

When daddy signs his name
He always writes M. D.;
That's so the people all will know
That he belongs to me.
For M. D., means My Daddy,
Or something just the same,
And that is why he always
Puts those letters on his name.
Some letters in his name are small,
But these are not, you see;
He always makes them big like that
Because he's proud of me.

—Anon

There were two garment hanging on the line today, a pair of pants and a dress. The wind had filled them both, and they began to dance in a stately manner. How they went forward to meet their partners and chasseed, just like the Spanish do in their fandango forward to and back again in the most ludicrous way. How we laughed at the different attitudes that they assumed; Lowell has written a book called. 'Out of my Study Window.' If one would take a little time to look out of his window, he would see much to please his eye, and also much to amuse him.
