BETTERTON

The Breach of Promise Case—Bly versus Silcox took place in the school auditorium on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. This was a play under the direction of Miss Kublick of the International Producing Company, of New York, and was sponsored by the Ladies Aid Society of the Methodist Church. The door receipts for the two evenings were seventy eight dollars and the play was enjoyed by all who saw it.

The election of the lay delegate to the annual conference of the Methodist Church will be held on Sunday at the afternoon service.

Prof. and Mrs. Horace Wheeler, of White Hall, Maryland, spent the Thanksgiving holiday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Wheeler. Prof. and Mrs. Wheeler were married at Frederick on November 14th.

The wedding of Mr. Henry Hammil, a salesman for Mr. Clarence Newsome, and Miss Elliott took place at Fairlee on Friday.

Dr. and Mrs. Talbot Brice, of Frederick, and Miss Elizabeth Brice, of Baltimore, spent several days last week with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Brice.

Mrs. Evelyn Harris is spending several weeks with relatives in Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. G Herbert Moore and son, Herbert, Jr., of Boston, were the guests of his father, Captain George W. Moore this week.

Mrs. Norman Lewis and daughter, of Brooklyn, are visiting her mother, Mrs. Thomas Wilmer.

Mrs. Myrtle Loud and her mother, Mrs. Mann, of Chestertown, are spending the winter in Mr. and Mrs. Littleton Crews' home on Ericsson Ave.

Mrs. M. V. Turner was the guest of friends in Baltimore for Thanksgiving.

The children of the elementary school gave a very good Thanksgiving entertainment last Wednesday afternoon.

REASONS FOR NEW HIGH SCHOOL

This is one of the series of arguments for a new high school building in Chestertown as prepared by officials of the P. T. A.

THAT KENT COUNTY NEEDS A MODEL HIGH SCHOOL WHICH AFFORDS ADEQUATE FACILITIES IN AN AUDITORIUM FOR COMMUNITY MEETINGS, AMATEUR DRAMATICS, FARM BUREAU MEETINGS, ALONG WITH A CAFETERIA WHICH CAN BE A COMMUNITY CENTER.

In colonial days we were primarily an agricultural people and lived in the open country and in small towns. For protection, subsistence, education, recreation, and other conveniences and benefits the people found it necessary to cooperate. In those times the people did not—in fact, could not—live to themselves. A well developed spirit was one of the chief results of the necessity for cooperation. As an organized expression of this neighborhood spirit, community centers grew up and these centers early selected the school house as the most practicable meeting place. The school house was—still is—the most practicable meeting place because it was public property; moreover, the influence of the school upon community life was potent and widespread because almost every home had at least one representative in school, either as a pupil or as an employee; still more, the school was non-partisan, non-sectarian, and non-exclusive.

Thus it happened in the early days that the school became the natural center of community life. In the schoolhouse the people of the community met to deliberate upon and to decide matters of government, to worship, and to attend and participate in socials, 'spelling bees,' debates, musicales, and literary exercises. In those days it could be truly said that the school was the 'community capitol' and the center of a 'little democracy.'

The early conditions above described do not, however, exist today, nor have they existed for several years. During the last century we have been rapidly becoming an industrial nation and the centralization of population in the cities has grown apace. Coincident with our industralization and the growth of the cities have come more conveniences and comforts of life; these conveniences and comforts are blessings. On the other hand, our industralization and the growth of cities have tended to make us forget the values of community life and in consequence to permit our neighborhood centers, which early flourished, in the schools, to decay. Eleanor T. Gueck writes as follows regarding the problems which the communities of today are facing: 'Industrial specialization though bringing greater comfort and ease of life, is severing the close bonds of friendship and mutual understanding, and is resulting in the disintegrating of the neighborhood spirit.'

Within the last two decades, however, there has been a well defined movement toward making the school the center of community life as it was in colonial days. Although the number of school buildings which are now used by the community may not be proportionately as large as in colonial days, the number of community activities are better organized than formerly. Everywhere today the school buildings are being opened for the use of the general public. A casual survey of the community use of school buildings will show that a myriad number of associations, clubs, societies, and other organizations are using the buildings. In many of the buildings, especially those of the cities, it is common to find a large number of different organizations holding regular or occasional meetings. Some of the organizations which make frequent use of school buildings are Parent Teacher Associations, Mothers' Clubs, Red Cross, community clubs, peoples' forums, social service federations, welfare associations, health organizations, farm bureaus, farmers institutes, granges, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, model high school for the county would take care of all questions regarding a meeting place, because first consideration would be given to an auditorium which could boast of adequate seating facilities that would take care of large groups as well as small. In the past Chestertown High School has been forced to look to Washingotn College for an auditorium for her varius plays and commencement exercises, while these activities should have been held in an auditorium of our own. Under the present conditions we have had to give up our school assemblies for the reason that adequate seating space is not available for the entire student body; instead we have Class literaries and assemblies. With this system the student body is deprived of meeting together and therefore does not know each other as they should. Would not it be much nicer were their an auditorium where the students of C. Chambers of Commerce, Y. M. C. A's., Y. W. C. A's., etc.

Surely Kent County is not going to sit by and not be included among these progressive communities. A H. S. could meet, at least, once a week as a student body for some profitable entertainment?

As Kent County is an agricultural county which boasts of such clubs as the Farm Bureau, 4H clubs and various other agricultural organizations, it seems that a central place for their meetings would be in the county seat, and the county seat should have a place to offer to these organizations.

The subject of the Cafeteria is becoming more popular everyday. All progressive schools desire to have a lunch room where the pupils may eat their lunches in comfort and some privacy. More and more children are eating their lunches at school, and the lunch room or cafeteria in a high school of any size is a necessity. Not only would the cafeteria be a benefit to the pupils but also to the organizations which would use the school. There is no organization of today which does not have a banquet at some time, and were there a cafeteria at their place of meeting the banquet could be provided with much less trouble and could therefore be held more often. Organizations could always find a use for the cafeteria because in small communities such as we live in, suppers are held quite frequently and would be held more frequently yet, if they did not have such a time to find places to hold these suppers. In a progressive community, which could be more progressive yet, it seems a shame that no central place has yet been provided that could belong to the community as well as to the educational program. Do not stand by and see our school system and community gradually decay because of lack of sight into the future.
