The report from all of the Counties of Maryland, as of December 23rd, show an increase over last year with the exception of Calvert, Howard and Wicomico.

The receipts from Kent County show a total of $400.00 as compared with $393.30 last year. The total receipts from the counties as of the above date are $14,556.58.

GRENVILLE KLEISER

What you give to others,
Comes back in double measure;
There is true possession,
When you share your treasure.

Money closely hoarded,
Has no means of growing;
Share your life with others
Reaping as you're sowing.

What you give to others
Service, friendship, pleasure
Will be true possession,
If you share your treasure.

'Talk about the weather, it is better to be considered a bore than a gossip.'

Some time ago I saw a very large colored woman walking down the street in front of me, while just behind her trotted a little black cat. She evidently did not see it at first, then I heard her give a yell and she came running towards me.

'Why Becky,' said I 'what is the matter?'

'Why, I aint agoing to let no black cat cross my path, to bring me no bad luck,' she replied.

Today as I was walking along, a pretty white cat followed me. It was well groomed and looked well fed. So it followed me to my destination and then I left it. I must find out whether that means good luck for 1935.

The old heathen god, Janus, was always represented with two faces, one looking over the year that has gone, while the other face look to the future. It was for this same god that January was named. May the face that looks forward see happy prosperous days ahead.

In January, when down the dairy
The cream and clabber freeze,
When snowdrifts cover the fences over,
We farmers take our ease.
At night we rig the team,
And bring the cutter out;
Then fill it, fill it, fill it, fill it,
And heap the furs about.

WATERMEN AND SPORTSMEN TO MEET AT ROCK HALL

WILL PLAN FISHING LEGISLATIVE TOGETHER

For many years there has been agitation in the Maryland Legislation between the sport fishermen's organizations, meaning those who fish for sport, and the watermen's organizations, meaning those who make their living out of commercial fishing. This agitation has created considerable feeling among these two groups with the result that desired legislation by either group has met many stumbling blocks.

With the recent alarming scarcity of fish in the Chesapeake Bay, both the sportsmen and the commercial fishermen favor changes in Legislation and realize that more can be accomplished through cooperation and understanding.

Mr. G. E. Leary, of Rock Hall, president of the Watermen's Protective Association brought the two groups together last Saturday when a meeting was held at Rock Hall to draft Legislation for the coming session of the Maryland Legislature. In announcing the meeting, the following article appeared in Fishing News, a paper published by the Eastern Fisherman's Association of which Mr. Leary is a director:

Former Opponents Meet in Maryland

ROCK HALL, MD.—Sportsmen and commercial fishermen of Maryland are at last being brought together in an earnest and friendly effort to have peace, harmony and sound conservation along with protection of the business interests of the commercial fisheries.

Due largely to organization work by G. Ellsworth Leary, president of the Waterman's Protective Association of Maryland, arrangements have been made for a committee selected at the recent sportsmen's convention in Baltimore, to meet with the representatives of the fishermen's organizations here on the afternoon of December 22.

The two factions will meet at lunch and then go into a three-hour conference, during which there will be a thorough discussion of such subjects as proposed legislation against the deep anchor nets and Chesapeake Bay black bass.

PREVENTION OF TOOTH TROUBLES

Characterizing tooth decay as a disease, Dr. R. C. Lednard, Crief of the Division of Oral Hygiene of the Maryland State Department of Health, pointed out recently, that tooth decay like diseases of other organs, can be prevented, to a large extent, by exercising certain precautions. The most important of these preventive measures, he said are, correct diet, periodical examination by a dentist followed by prompt correction of defects, if any are found, and great care in keeping the mouth and teeth thoroughly clean and in good health.

'Tooth ache,' he continued, 'is like the red light that warns of danger ahead. Painful as it is, tooth ache is the least serious of the consequences of tooth decay. Extensive decay, if neglected, may lead to the formation of an abscess which may be the source of an infection felt throughout the entire system, or in some part of the body quite remote from the mouth.

'The three preventive measures I have mentioned, are so closely related that they cannot well be separated. A diet that includes plenty of milk and other dairy products, whole grain cereals, fruit and green leafy vegetables, contains the elements necessary for the mainteance of tooth health. Regular dental supervision requires an inspection of the teeth by the family dentist, at least twice a year, with prompt correction of condiions in need of treatment.

'That brngs us to mouth cleanliness as a means of maintaining mouth health and there is a much closer relation between mouth health and the general health than is ordinarily realized. There are just one hundred tooth surfaces to be kept clean in the mouth of a child who has all of his 'baby' teeth. An adult, with a full set of teeth, has one hundred and sixty such tooth surfaces. You wouldn't eat a meal served on dishes that were washed only once in a while, would you? But you are doing something like that when you are careless about habitually brushing your teeth and when you neglect to keep your mouth and teeth thoroughly clean.

'Think about that the next time you are inclined to hurry through the job of cleaning your teeth. Then stop long enough to do it, carefully, and completely.'

UNEARTHS OLD $3 BILL

Mrs. Etta Fountain, in looking over some old papers, found an old three dollar bill which had been given her by her husband before his death.

This bill is numbered 41742 and has the signature of Samuel Morris.

The paper is headed 'The United Colones' and entitles the bearer to receive 'Three Spanish Milled Dollars in Gold or Silver, according to the Resolutions of Congress held in Philadelphia the 10th of May, 1775.'

This bill is probably far more valuable than its face value, as it must be one of the first issued and is dated 1775. It was probably script money used to finance the Revolutionary War.

A fire which started in the furnace pit of the heating plant for the Court House and Jail threatened the Police Court room on Wednesday of this week.
