

HERE IS MY HEART

Bing Crosby and Kitty Carlisle, whose close harmonies in 'She Loves Me Not' proved so popular, start a glee club of their own by the addition of Pete the Parrot in their new Paramount picture 'Here Is My Heart,' coming on Wednesday and Thursday, January 16 and 17 to the New Lyceum Theatre Adapted from the play by Alfred Savoir, 'Here is My Heart' is the story of a millionaire crooner who turned waiter to court a Russian princess, with a great deal of resultant comedy. Frank Tuttle directed and Alison Skipworth and Roland Young are featured.

Tearing at the heart strings with its human appeal, stirring the pulse with is tense drama and flooding the soul with its ecstatic love story, the RKO-Radio Picture, 'Romance in Hanhattan,' which comes o the New Lyceum on Monday and Tuesday, January 14 and 15, is one of the most satisfying production, that has been presented to movie-goers in recent months.

Francis Lederer, fiery international stage and screen idol, and sparkling, Titian-haired Ginger Rogers, head a strong cast.

The story tells, convincingly and realistically, of love and drama in the teeming tenements of New York City, with their attendant joys and sorrows, inspiraions and disillusions, glorious dreams and stern realities.

Francis Lederer is superb. His naive and appealing manner, his romantic idealism and his sunny enthusiasm, make the audiences see America with new eyes and life with new under standing.

Pressing him close for honors comes Ginger Rogers, whose flippancy fails to hide a heart of gold and a generosity that envelopes all of suffering humanity. Jimmie Butler, as the young brother, gives a masterful performance of the little newsie. J. Farrell Macdonald is a convincing and sympathetic Officer Murphy.

Stephen Roberts, who directed 'Romance in Manhattan,' has handled his story and his actors with a delicate touch and skill. 'Romnce in Manhattan' is from an original story by Norman Krasna and Don Hartman. The screen play was written by Jane Murfin and Edward Kaufman. Pendro S. Berman is the producer.

Bing Crosby's new Paramount picture 'Here Is My Heart,' coming on Wednesday and Thursday, January 16 and 17 to the New Lyceum Theatre, presents America's favorite radio songster with another opportunity to display his comedy talent as well as his singing ability.

Adapted from a play by Alfred Savoir, 'Here Is My Heart' is a bright and frivolous little comedy written about a millionaire crooner's heroic courtship of a haughty princess with whom he falls in love at sight in an elevator.

Unable to meet the princess, Crosby buys the hotel in which she lives and, with the aid of a false mustache and beard, disguises himself as her waiter. Then, litle by little, the princess warms to his charm and comes under the influence of his singing.

And, although Crosby has to tend the princess' dogs and parrot and support her profligate family, he finally wins her, although a misunderstanding threatens their hapiness for a time.

Kitty Carlisle is cast as the princess, opposite Crosby, and Alison Skipworth, Ronald Young and Reginald Owen are prominent in the supporting cast.

Ralph Rainger and Leo Robin, wrters of the hit song, 'Love in Bloom,' have composed several now tunes for Crosby in this picture, including, 'With Every Breath I Take' and 'June in January.'

Out of a gorgeous fabric of murder mystery threads, 'Lightning Strike Twice' weaves a melodramatic comedy with a cast of comedy favorites. This RKO-Radio Picture is a swiftly paced tale of mistaken identities, with a background of credible mystery which serves to increase the fun.

The story takes place in a few hours, and the swift action is due to the deft interweaving of plot and sub-plot. A frantic butler with a phobia for black cats causes him to fire at one caterwauling on the backyard fence. The butler misses its mark but knocks off the cap of a policeman, who simultaneously drops into nowhere through an open manhole cover.

The butler believing he has committed murder becomes a frenzied figure fliting from hiding-place to hiding-place; and the fact that he has left a bloody coat in one of the rooms, lends color to hs employer's conviction that the butler, too, is a victim of the supposed slayer.

All his ushers in the early morning of the biggest day in the life of that employer, a wealthy youth, who is anxiously awaiting the arrival of his aunt, and from another direction, of his fiancee, whom the aunt is to meet for the first time. The youth and his pal had been going places the night before, and during their tour they crashed into an automobile containing a fan dancer and her garrulous husband. They had taken the couple home, and now the ball of mistaken identities starts rolling, as the fan dancer wears the fiancee apparel and the husband dons the admiral uniform of her father The aunt arrives and accepts the entertainer as her future niece.

From here the comedy leaps along delivering its punches in a ticklish way to the ribs. There is general confusion among the characters as to who is really who until the cunningly contrived climax solves the apparent murder mystery and reunites the estranged engaged couple.

RKO-Radio Pictures lavished a cast of cemody luminaries on 'Lightning Strikes Twice.' Ben Lyon, Thelma Todd, 'Skeets' Gallagher, Pert Kelton, Chick Chandler, Walter Catlett and Laura Hope Crews carry the principal roles under Ben Holmes' direction.

This feature along with Buck Jones in 'Red Rider' will be the attraction at the New Lyceum on Friday and Saturday, January 18 and 19.

Field of Cloth of Gold
Story of 15th Century

In June, 1530, two kings met in the fields near the small town of Andres in France. These two kings were Henry VIII of England, and Francis I of France. The meeting was held by special request of Francis, according to a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer, who wished to gain the friendship of the English king to aid him in his ambitious projects for curbing the power of his great rival, Charles V of Germany.

In consideration of the fact that Henry had crossed the channel to grant the interview, the meeting was held on land that still belonged to the English crown. Many of the nobility, of both France and England, were present, and endeavored to outdo one another in the magnificence and gorgeous decoration of themselves, their banners and tents, and their retinues of followers. The whole ceremonial was under the direction of that inordinate lover of pomps and vanities, Cardinal Wolsey, and from the extravagance and display attendant upon it, its scene has been known to history as "the field of the cloth of gold."

Animals and Birds Feel and Act as Human Beings

Instances to show that animals have largely the same feelings and emotions as human beings were cited by the director of the Taranga Park zoo, when he told how several members of a herd of elephants in Africa had been observed to go to the aid of a wounded comrade, and a wallaby to give assistance to another wallaby that was blind. As another example of the protective instinct in animals, says the Detroit News, a male kangaroo will take up the rear in retreat in order to draw the brunt of possible danger while the does and their young escape.

Birds, such as Sarus cranes, dance as we do for the fun of the thing, and they exhibit great thought in their gyrations. Cockatoos employ the sentry system, posting one bird as a lookout while others feed on the ground; the quality of leadership possessed by animals is evidenced in the V-shaped formation of wild geese while flying.

The variations in behavior encountered among different kinds of animals are attributed largely to environment. Animals act generally in the same way in given circumstances.

An Army of Goodwill

When members of the Junior Red Cross learned that schoolbooks had been destroyed in the Kentucky floods last August they gave $100 from the National Children's Fund to buy new textbooks for use in the schools. The maximum membership for the Junior Red Cross last year was 7,350,280, an increase over the previous year of more than 250,000. They carry on civic and service programs in their own communities which each year bring comfort and pleasure to thousands of needy and unfortunate people. An international friendship is built up through correspondence with Junior Red Cross members in foreign countries.
