NOW AND THEN

L'ENVOI

When Earth's last picture is painted, and the tubes are twisted and dried,
When the oldest colors have faded, and the youngest critic has died,
We shall rest, and, faith, we shall need it—lie down for an eon or two,
Till the Master of all Good Workman shall set us to work anew-

And those that were good shall be happy: they shall sit in a golden chair;
They shall splash at a ten league canvas with brushes of comet's hair;
They shall find real saints to draw from—Magdalene, Peter, and Paul;
They shall work for an age at a sitting and never be tired at all!

And only the Master shall praise us, and only the Master shall blame;
And no one shall work for money, and no one shall work for fame;
But each for the joy of the working, and each, in his separate star
Shall draw the thing as he see it for the God of things as they are.

Rudyard Kipling 1865.

Some time ago. I was in a Museum, and on going up the stairs, found myself surrounded by old, old, paintings.

The effects was most uplifting to see the works of past ages, and to realize what obstacles they had to overcome in panting their pictures; how they dug in the earth to find the colors they needed; the search for canvasses on which to paint them.

Then there were no ready mixed paints to use and they truly found that 'art is long and time is fleeting.' They say of Fra Angelica that he kneeled while he was painting and each toiled for the joy of creating. 'And no one worked for money and no one worked for fame.'

Old Josh Billings was quite a character in the latter part of the past century. In those days there were no movies that he could act his part as Will Rogers does, and no radio to record his sayings, but he was very terse and humorous and his jokes and adages were quoted every where.

He said:

'I never argy agin a success. When I see a rattle-snaix's head sticking out of a hole, I head off to the left and say to miself that hole belongs to that snaix.'

—Josh Billings

Some are complaining of the antique condition of the Governor's mansion. They do not think it is nice enough for Nice, though it has housed Ritchie and his charming lady mother, Mrs. Ritchie for many years. Perhaps it is Victorian, but that is the thing that is in vogue these days. Now that taxes are staggering it is hardly time for improvement of the Gubernatorial mansion.

Some are proposing that it should be open for exhibition and that a fair sum be charged as entrance fee thus raising the funds to modernize the building.

What a pity that speakers at meetings should speak so long. Sometimes one who is to introduce the speaker of the evening, makes his speech longer than the Speakers. In the House of Representatives they have cloture which limits a speech to ten minutes.

At a Grange meeting a national leader of agriculture was invited to be the principal speaker.

He listened to an interminable list of other speakers and was not introduced until nearly midnight.

Finally the toastmaster said, 'And now, Mr. Brown, will you give us your address?'

'Sure,' said the big man, 'It's 48 A Street, Washington, D. C., and I propose to go there immediately.'

SURPRISE PARTY AT FAIRLEE PARSONAGE

The Methodist Episcopal parsonage at Fairlee was the scene of much gaiety and laughter Tuesday evening.

The pastor and wife were expecting callers but when the guests began to arrive they brought bundles and packages, bags and baskets of various sizes and shapes and the party began to take the form of what some of us who are older may remember as a pounding party.

After the folks were seated and had talked of the weather and other subjects of interest some one suggested that they play games. They all searched their memories and resurrected some of the games they played when they were younger. These games were played with no little interest and amusment. During the period pieces of paper wer distributed with the name of an animal on each and the holder was asked to draw the animal.

Now you may have visited the 'zoo' but you did not see such species as these.

After the period of games refreshments were served. All too soon the evening passed and the guests began to take their leave.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Leaverton and daughter, Hettie Mr. and Mrs. William Leaverton and daughter, Shirley Mae; Mrs. James Forman and sons, James and Chas., Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Groves, Mr. and Mrs. Findley Sparks, Mrs. T. H. M. Bramble, Mrs. J. P. Price, Mrs. Harry T. Hoyle, Mrs. George Neal, Miss Ellen Anne Christopher and the Rev. and Mrs. S. T. Hamblin.

LECOMPTE OPPOSES CLOSED DUCKING SEASON

FAVORS LONGER HUNTING SEASON

Mr. E. Lee LeCompte, State Game Warden, stated this week that he will oppose the talked of closed season on water fowl and would favor a longer season.

Stating he expected to make a fight to prevent a closed season on water fowl, Mr. LeCompte pointed out that advocates of a closed season will come from Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Nebraska, and North and South Dakota with the claim that such steps are necessary to prevent extinction of canvasbacks and redheads, he said.

'The conditions which exist in those States are not the same as they are here,' Mr. LeCompte explained. 'Out there they have been bagging about a million ducks a year. The drought last summer caused most of their lakes to dry up Naturally they had a shortage of ducks this year, but it is all rot to say the fowl will become extinct.'

In Maryland, the warden said, the ducks came late in the season. A large supply of natural food was found, so they were not attracted by bait thrown about blinds. For this reason, he explained, bags here were small.

Large flocks made their winter homes around the flats at the head of the bay, in Somerset Straits, in the South Patuxent, Wicomico and Chester rvers and around Deals Island, the warden said.

The report of Chief Herman Blackway showed that the fire loss in Chestertown during the past year did not exceed $17.50 with the exception of the recent damage of the oil burning equipment at the jail which was not attributed to fire. The estimated loss in the country above the insurance receipts totaled $1630; this covers only the fires to which the local company was called.

Of the 58 alarms answered during the year 40 were rural calls and 18 were in the limits of Chestertown. 24 of the 58 alarms were attributed to dirty or defective chimneys.

BUYS CHAMPION BULLS

Last week Mr. Sherman, of Queenstown purchased from Andelot Stock Farm, of Worton, Kent County, two of the best bulls in that famous herd. Evaxus 29th of Page is sired by Imported Evaxus of Ballindalloch, a sun imported from Scotland. He will be used on the main breeding herd and is considered one of the best bulls ever to be used in this state. For use on the younger cows and heifers, Mr. Sherman selected Revolution 46th of Page. This bull is sired by Revolution of Page 11th who sired the International Grand Champion steer and the International Grand Champion Group of three steers at the 1934 International Livestock Exposition. With two such splendid bulls, Mr. Sherman should soon be able to take a leading part in the Aberdeen—Angus busness of the East.

Aberdeen-Angus are strictly a beef breed of cattle noted for their early maturity, quick fattening and for the quality of their meat. They are very popular in Maryland where we now have many very high class purebred herds. The Eastern Shore is fast becoming famous for its splendid herds of this breed. Herds are maintained by Mr. R. D. Bonney, of Elkton, Geo. K. Bailey, of Earleville, Andelot Stock Farms, of Worton; M. C. Sherman, of Queenstown, Mrs. Dixon, of Worton, F. W. C.H. S. PARENT TEACHERS MEET

HIGH SCHOOL CLASS SPONSORS PROGRAM

EMMA BARNETT PRESENTS SCHOOL PROBLEM

The program of the monthly Parent Teachers' Association of Chestertown High School sponsored by Miss Riches' Senior Problems of Democracy class. They illustrated the influence of public opinion in regard to a new high school.

The program was opened by the Glee Club under the drection of Miss Russell, giving their own version of 'O Sole Mio,' and the school song. Then Elizabeth Elliot, as chairman of the Problems of Democracy class introduced the speakers of the evening.

Janet Briggs presented 'Public Opinion in Relationship with a New High School,' and after her most adequate review of the present situation, Emma Barnet gave the 'Causes of Favorable and Unfavorable Public Opinion.'

Illustrations of the indifferent, ignorant, selfish and prejudiced persons were given by Townsend Anthony, William Benjamin, Phyllis Greenwood and Shirly Fox. They were aided by Gilbert Mead, Betty Strong, Barbara Biglow and John Bibb.

Joseph Harper concluded the program with suggestions on 'How Public Opinion May Be Aroused.'

A short business meeting of the Parent Teachers' meeting ended a most enjoyable and successful evening.

The speech presented by Emma Barnett follows:

The subject of schools should naturally appeal to every community, and even more so to every parent.

In some states the state is the dominating factor, that is they take the initiative to serve each individual community; other states do not legislate in this manner ,but leave the problem to be solved by the local districts. For example our own. And when we are left to our own choice and opinion there is likely to be controversy.

As we all know this is the age of 'modernism,' and there seems to be a natural opposition to modern methods in school. This is not true only of the unintelligent class of people, but also of the man with no family and a large income, rather than the man with a large family nd a moderate income. To enlarge upon this:

Take the man with a large family and a moderate income, he is the man to whom we should turn all our attention for it is he who sees and tells of our needs. Knowing the necessities from his own children's experiences he sympathizes with others, and does his best toward a better education. His is the opinion which wise men listen to and benefit by.

But the man with no family and a large income opposes strongly to the idea of supporting something in which he has no direct part. This man's opinion is deadly, for it carries the wrong kind of weight. He is the sort of man who thinks only of himself as an individual and not as a part of his community.

E.WSJlcTMrv .nirh;rcmfwypshrdlucm

This is clearly unreasonable opposition, and the schools we have today are not going to serve our community. When progress in school is suspended, then local interest is also suspended.

Who would ask for an addition or an improvement that wasn't needed! Would a doctor ask for medicine if it wouldn't help his patient? Would a child seek mother love if it wasn't normal in the child to do so?

One of the things which blockades our way to a new high school is the ignorance, indifference, and even sheer prejudice of the people. And we cannot have one until the majority of the people vote for it.

And thought we both need and want an improvement in our educational facilities, it is not in our power to get them, but it is left entirely up to you to get them for us. For it is your opinion which settles our future.

TRIANGLE CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS

Mrs. Evelyn Hadaway was elected president of the Triangle Club of Christ M. P. Church as that body held its annual meeting Sunday night.

Other officers chosen were: Mrs. Jessie Usilton, vice president; Miss Martha Crossley, secretary; Miss Frances Hodgson, treasurer; Mrs. Helen Bowers, chairman Sunshine Committee; Mrs. Thelma Vansant, chairman Social Committee; Miss Kathryn Smith, chairman Literary Committee; Mrs. Dorothy Bartley, chairman Membership Committee; Mrs. Nina Fisher, chairman Initiation Committee; Mrs. Frances Needles, chairman Visiting Committee; Mrs. Helen Lancaster, chairman Flower Committee; Mrs. Nancy Turner, chairman Publicity Committee.
