SQUADRON LOG

BY THE STOWAWAY

The ducks on the Chester River Yacht Club lake, which disappeared with the big freeze a few weeks ago, hav returned. Joe, the swan, is still missing.

Once more an appeal is made to everyone to keep an eye open for the swan and to return him, if found, to the lake.

It was a wierd feeling to stand on the yacht club pier, a day or so past, and listen to the ice breaking up. As the tide went out, the ice cracked. It sounded like bum shots from Aberdeen. Every so often a huge slab of ice would raise up on end and tower above the rest of the ice like a ghost ship.

Nothing has passed along the river for weeks. Wednesday night, a long blast repeated frequently sounded like a boat in distress, or a fog horn. But it was only a cow on a nearby farm.

The boats of the squadron are standing the freeze very well, indeed. One or two have gathered rather more water and ice nside than is desirable, but on the whole, their condition is excellent.

The Chester River Yacht Club has an alphabet soup of its own.

For example, The C. B. Y. R. A. which in English means the Chesapeake Bay Yacht Racing Association. Some of the members of the C. B. Y. R. A. are the C. B. L. C. A., I. S. B. A. and A. P. B. A. Quite an imposing lot of letters, is it not? Translated they mean the Chesapeake Bay Log Canoe Association, the International Star Boat Associaton and the American Power Boat Association.

Commodore Philip Wilmer will attend a meeting of the C. B. Y. C. A. in Baltimore on Saturday.

Much credit is due the Junior Members Association of the Chester River Yacht Club, because their activities and interest in boat racing plunged the staid old Chester River Yacht Club into this alphabctical jumble.

This year the Juniors will have a lot to do with the annual regatta, and in addition they are putting on again the outboard motor race from Crumpton to the bridge. It will be held two weeks later than last year.

The date for the Chester River Regatta still remains unsettled. August 16 and 17 the dates originally set, are now found to conflict with the Chesapeake Bay Yacht Club races which will be held at Oxford.

It is expected that the regatta this year will be bigger than ever before. Heretofore only a few members of the Chester River Yacht Club were available to carry on the heavy duties attendant upon running a regatta properly. This year the responsibility will be shared by the Junior members who have contributed some vital plans and suggestions for next summer's chief event.

The infusion of young blood and hot enthusiasm into the Squadron is having a telling effect in pepping things up generally.

It is hard to believe on this cold, raw February day that the time will soon be here when coats will be exchanged for palm leaf fans, but just listen for a moment to the hot talk of the new regatta committee, and you can almost smell the balmy summer breezes, and feel the perspiration trickling down your cheeks. It's better than a trip to Florida.

Even Skipper Albert Johnson in Swarthmore is infected with the spirit of fun to come. He telephoned to Chestertown one evening this week, to find out what was doing in the Squadron.

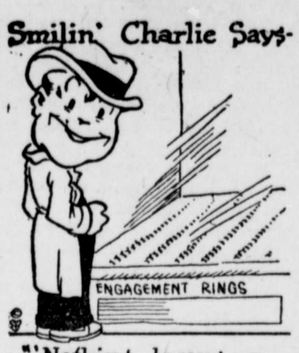

Doc Hughes has made his contribution, too, to the Chester River alphabet. He is president of the C. C. L. F. A., Country Club Lake Fishing Activitis.

WILL ADDRESS COLLEGE ASSEMBLY

DR. GEORGE F. ZOOK

Dr. Zook, acknowledged authority on higher education, will address the Washington College assembly at the mid-winter Convocation next Thursday, February 21. Dr. Zook is Director of the Maryland Council of Education and until recently was United States Commissioner of Education. The public is invited to attend these exercises at the college which will start.

BETTERTON

The Betterton Troup of Boy Scouts attended the services at the Methodist Church last Sunday afternoon. Mr. Howard Beauchamp Owens and Mr. Allan Bonwell who have been untiring in their work with the scouts since in the troup was organized a long time ago, were present. These young men are now teaching at the McDonogh School for Boys in Baltimore. Since the organization was started here there have been one hundred fifty boys in the vicinity of Still Pond and Betterton, have belonged to the troupe and they have had three members to become Eagle Scouts.

Mrs. Evelyn Harris gave a most interesting broadcast on Thursday morning over W C B M, at ten o'clock on the Betty Howard Hour. She was interviewed on her book 'The Barter Lady.'

Mr. Floyd Smith, who was operated on for appendecitis at Easton hospital last week is expected home this week.

Mr. Paul Crew and Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Crew, of Philadelphia, were the guests of their parents for the week end.

The members of the Ladies Aid Society were entertained at the home of Mrs. Charles Willis on Friday.

Mr. Clare Turner is spending the week with relatives in Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Sutton visited her father at Easton Hospital this week. Mr. Casey fell on the ice and broke his arm in two places.

About forty members of the Sunday School Club attended their meeting on Monday evening in the church basement. Mrs. James Curry and her class of young ladies entertained. This club is the social organization of the Sunday School and meets each month. The men and boys of the school entertain in March.

The Men's Supper will be held next Wednesday in the church basement. Due to weather conditions this is the first supper since the one in December Mrs. William Owens will be the chairman of the supper committee.
