The Social Wanderer

Dear Roamer:

If on warm, spring-like Wednesday the young man's fancy turned to thoughts of love, I hope he didn't drop her as cold as the next days turned out to be. However, budding romance is in the air, and someone who read last week where I said, 'I haven't even a wedding to write you about,' must have whispered to Dan Cupid to get busy, for I have results of my complaint. Mrs. D. W. Ingersoll is announcing today, the engagement of her daughter, Mary Meigs, to Mr. Eben Clark Jenkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Jenkins, of Hyattsville. Miss Ingersoll who not only graduated from the University of Maryland but also has her Masters degree from there, has all kind of honors to her credit, having excelled in her scholastic work. Mr. Jenkins is a graduate of the Virginia Poletechnic Institute at Blacksburg, Va., and also has a Masters degree from that institution. Both Miss Ingersoll and Mr. Jenkins are employed in Washington with the Economics Department, of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, and in this propinquity, the romance budded. The wedding date, although not yet announced, is to be in the near ftuure. The prospective groom's father, well known here as 'Daddy Jenks,' is the Boys 4-H Club agent for Maryland. Hearty congratulations are extended by us all, to the young couple.

And now while I am in the Quaker Neck neighborhood, I want to tell you of a happening last Saturday. One flying low in an airplane looking down, might have thought scenes from 'The Covered Wagon' were being re-enacted. Well, it was this way. Paul Pippin, an instructor at the Kellogg-Smith Camp was the host at a delightful musicale held in the Craft House. Many guests were invited and the hour arrived. But alas, the road, the mud, even three cars from the camp were already stuck fast. So, to the rescue, The Covered Wagon was brought forth, the guests were met at the lane, conveyed to the musicale and late at night, over the bumpy muddy way, back to their modern cars they were jogged along. But such fun, and the novelty of it in the bargain. Now, a word or two about the musicale which began in the afternoon. Mrs. Amanda Harman of the Peabody rendered selections on the violin, while Miss Louise Russell and Mr. Bob Pippin gave piano numbers. Miss Nancy Ray, of Severna Park, delighted her audience with several readings. Supper time came, and the program was interrupted long enough for a regular old time fire-place supper, weenies on sticks were roasted, and all that goes with it. Later, the guests participated in dancing and as the old saying goes, 'A good time was had by all.'

There seems to be quite a migration to Philadelphia this week end for some reason or other which simply amounts to the fact that this is the time of the year when we all get restless and want to go somewhere, and as someone I used to know said, 'Country people, (that's us) might as well visit the city people in the winter, because we'll sure get it back in the summer.' More truth than poetry! Well, not that that applies in this case, it's just an aside in your ear, so here goes those who will vacate the metropolis of Chestertown. Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Strong will visit Mr. and Mrs. Richard Decker; Mr. and Mrs. Bonwill Dukes and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Cooper will be guests at the home of Mr. Duke's brother, Mr. Paul Dukes; and Mr. and Mrs. Ringgold Strong will visit friends, I didn't learn the name, but all are to be visitors either in or right outside of Philadelphia.

Heading farther north, Mrs. S. Scott Beck and Scott, Jr., motored to New York on Wednesday to stay until today, where they were guests of Mrs. Beck's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Skinner. Leaving New York, Mrs. Beck and Scott will join Mr. Beck in Baltimore, remaining over the week end there.

Mrs. H. Clay Brown was the guest of her sister, Mrs. Gilpin in Baltimore last week end, and on Sunday was joined by her daughter, Elizabeth, who, with Mr. and Mrs. H. Gilpin Brown motored down for the day from Philadelphia. Mr. and Mrs. Brown, known better as Gilpin and Kitty, came to see, specially, Mr. Jimmy Beck, who is still very sick at the Union Memorial. I am sorry there is no encouraging news of him so far, to write you, but I hope ere this time nextweek, there will be.

Mrs. Massey Hines and little daughter, Mollie, have both been quite sick in bed with the grip, but are somewhat improved.

Mrs. Dorsey Hines is expected to return to Riverside on Sunday. Her rapid progress in recovering from her operation has only been hampered by a bad sinus attack, but even this is fast disappearing. We have all missed her and will be so glad to have her in our midst again.

As some go away, others come, and this week end, Mr. and Mrs. James G. Metcalfe will be hosts to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilson, of Lansdowne, while Miss Ruth Riepe, of Baltimore, will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Collins, Jr.

Little Harry Russell celebrated his 3rd birthday on Monday, by entertaining several of his little friends at a birthday party in the afternoon. And as these little one's birthdays creep up, so do ours, and we don't celebrate with a party but more with a closed book, which reminds me it's time to stop this rambling and close this epistle right now. I'm past my mark.

Yours, too prolix,
THE WANDERER.

'L'AIGTON TO BE AT FORDS'

'L'Aiglon' ('The Eaglet'), in which Eva LeGallienne and the New York Civic Repertory Company will appear at Ford's, Baltimore, promises to be one of the most important plays of the present season. This production will open at Ford's, Monday evening, March 11, for three nights and one matinee (Wednesday.)

In France, when 'L'Aiglon' was first produced, it created a political furore. The present version, adapted by Clemence Dane from Rostand's drama, brings to the theatre a romantic and powerful play, dealing with the only son of the great Napoleon. The period is 1830, a time of political intrigue when the shadow of revolution hovered over Europe.

Eva LeGallienne will be seen as 'L'Aiglon,' Duke of Reichstadt, the famous prisoner of Austria who was held in Vienna by Motternich for fourteen years. The play covers the most dramatic events in the life of this young French prince.

Richard Addinsell has written a special musical score that will be synchronized with the play. The settings designed by Aline Bernstein re-create the period of the Imperial Austrian Empire, then in the height of its glory. The play is in three acts, six scenes. The New York Civic Repertory Company including Merle Maddern, Paul Leyssac, Averell Harris, Sayre Crawley, Leona Roberts, Walter Beck, Donald Cameron, Marion Evensen and Florida Friebus, will be seen in the role of many historical personages connected with the Imperial Court of Austria.

CENTREVILLE AUTO SHOW

PLANS INDICATE SMARTEST ARRAY OF NEW CARS EVER ASSEMBLED IN QUEEN ANNE'S.

The smartest array of motor cars that has ever been assembled in Queen Anne's County will go on show at the Centreville Armory on Monday, March 2, and through the week the public will have the opportunity of seeing and examining the finest products produced by the automobile engineering brains of the country.

But that is not all. With the show will also be presented a number of interesting features to entertain the crowds. On Monday night. Polk Howard's orchestra will furnish the music and there will be music every night, as well as cash prizes for the lucky. But there wil be no charge of admission.

On Thursday evening Miss Margaret Jefferson, of Chestertown, will present a fashion show of the latest creations for Spring wear. These will be displayed by attractive models from Centreville, Chestertown and Washington College. Every woman in Queen Anne's County will want to see the attractive Spring gowns. Queen Anne's County will be interested in these lovely creations for which the Jefferson Shop in Chestertown has become quite well known. Miss Jefferson presented a showing last Fall at the Blue Lantern and also during the summer at the Garden Show in Chestertown.

On Saturday night at the close of the six-day show, cash prizes amounting to considerable sums, donated by merchants and distributors will be awarded.

Decorationse at the armory will be under the supervision of Miss Mary Parks, who is chairman of decorations for the Alumni Dance at the armory at Christmas which setting won wide praise.

Apart from the added attractions practically every one whether interested in purchasing a car or not will want to see these new cars. Most everybody today owns a car and everybody is interested in car improvements, new designs, new models that will be shown and demonstrated.

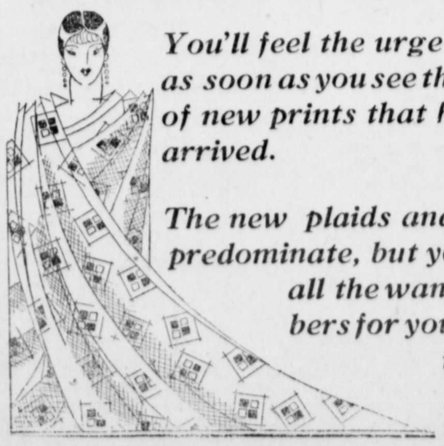

Those placing exhibits on the floor are: Mid-City Garage, Easton; Noble Motor Company, Easton; Matthews Motor Company, Dover, and Sudlersville; W. H. Bishop, Queenstown; E. S. Valliant, Centreville; William E. Denney and Son, Stevensville; Johns-Kissinger, Easton; Maurice E. Newnam and son, Easton; Carter and Yates Milling Co., Centreville and Church Hill; and Green's Electric Store, Centreville.
