The Curbstone Diplomat

WILLIAM S. COLLINS

If the overflow of heat from the town election is causing this wonderful weather now, let's have a hot election next February.

One of the big issues of the recent campaign was whether Officer Cooper would be retained or not. The retainers lost but now I understand an effort is being made to swing enough of the councilmen to have him retained. Maybe it will be another case of when you win you lose.

The result of the election did not wipe the smile off Mayor Satterfield's face. It is understood that he did not want to run, but was finally persuaded to make ther ace. It is reported he welcomes being rid of the job.

Chestertown is a small town and so all the troubles of the officials are little ones. However the trouble family increases and increases and taken as a whole they are a tough bunch of brats.

Mayor Wilmer is willing and should be able to handle the tough babies.

Mrs. Whaland, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee jumped the lines and supported Mayor Satterfield. She says her influences is not in the first ward which is her home ward.

There is one thing that is hoped the new regime of town officials will do. Plot and locate all new water mains and sewers that are put in and do the same with any of the present ones that are repaired.

One of the points brought out in the recent election was the fact that Officer Cooper was the only one that had any records of them and that they were his and did not belong to the town. Of course his having no education along such lines, it is understood that no one can understand his plot but himself. When he dies they will be lost.

Why the town officials of the past did not have at the town office a record of the location of the pipes is hard to understand? It would be a good idea now to start and do the best with the mess that is possible.

Another good idea for the new deal to attend to, is to see that enough cement goes in the concrete. When a property owner pays half the price of a cement walk it is a shame to gyp him like the people on Court Street were gyped. My authority on this lack of cement is one who has built miles and miles of concrete and in a neighboring state and whose work is of the highest standard.

Both sides in the recent election pledged themselves to fight the erection of a disposal plant unless by an election the majority of the citizens favored the project.

Why should Chestertown have the say. A parable. If John Jones has a pig pen that is objectionable and dirt from the pen runs into Tom Smith's yard and besides being disagreeable, affects the sale of his vegetables; should Tom Smith have to abide by the decision of the majority of John Jone's household as to whether they would clean up or not?

This is a parallel case with the disposal plant. We are John Jones. Tom Smith is the waterman who is dependent on the sea food for a living. Tom Smith is also the property owner out side of the limits of Chestertown along the river. For miles up and down the river in the two counties, people want the river cleaned up.

It looks to some of us as if it would be hard to compel the town to build the disposal plant. But, it looks like it would be very easy for them to stop us from emptying raw sewage in the river. If they get out an injunction and stop we would be in a fine pickle, eh what?

Down in Centreville the new newspaper has a very well equipped plant, put out a very good paper and the editors can handle the English language like professors.

One of the editors however, is a newcomer and his editorials, though very well written often show a lack of familiarity with local conditions. The latest bungle is the Chesapeake Bay Bridge. We suggest that he go back about four or five years, study the files of the newspapers and get a clear understanding of the plan.

An apology long over due. In Mr. Fred G. Usilton's history of Kent appears the following.

'It has recently been stated in one of the weekly papers printed in Chestertown that Sir Peter Parker made the statement on leaving the vessel that night that he would eat his breakfast in 'Chestertown or hell.' This statement is entirely without foundation and is an unwarranted aspertion on the character of the man.'

That paper was the Transcript and we apologize for defaming Sir Peter Parker's character by the word hell. Certainly he would not use such a naughty word in giving his men a pep talk before attacking an army of a thousand Kent Countians. We apologize.

Doc Sterling's name must be added to the new boat owners this summer. OF COURSE it was built in Crisfield. The boat was a Christmas present from the family, is new, arrived this Thursday, is 20 feet long, skip-jack type and will probably be named 'The Rexall.'

Mr. Owen C. Blades also has a sailboat which he keeps at Quaker Neck wharf.

Mr. Harry Barnett has bought one at Betterton and will transfer it to the Chester.

Carl Barclay is making rapid strides on his new boat. He is building a boat from plans in Motor Boating magazine and is making a first rate job of it.

How hot can an electric light bulb get Don't use one for a hat-rack or you might be sorry.

Wife: Dear, I've set my heart on a Rolls Royce.

Hubby: Yes? Well, that's the only part of your anatomy that'll ever set on one!
