

Lillian Harvey and Tullio Carminati in "Let's Live Tonight"
A Columbia Picture
2 col. Scene cut or mat LLT-338

This is Will Rogers Week. Hence laugh week.

The latest fun-spattered comedy, 'Life Begins At 40,' comes on Monday, and Tuesday, April 15 and 16 to the New Lyceum Theatre as the feature attraction, and with its mirth-provoking situations proved once more that Will Rogers is the maestro of laughter.

This is a funny-bone breaker. While writing this review, we have to hold back chuckles that come in recollecting the antics of this mellow life-loving country editor, played by Rogers, who sets out to prove that the best years of life follow forty.

Rogers gives romance a clear track, turns hog-caller with seasoned hillbillys, fights a pistol duel and exchanges wit for lead, produces a tornado of hilarity, and incidentally utters a batch of quaint and homely philosophy.

'Life Begins At 40,' is entertainment for young and old. It's healthy. It's mellow. It's just grand. And far far better than were 'Judge Priest' and 'The County Chairman.'

Walter B. Pitkin's book hit suggested this laugh hit. Sol M. Wurtzel produced, and George Marshall directed the Fox Film picture.

Superb entertainment this!

Stage and screen topnotchers supportRogers. They include Rochelle Hudson, Richard Cromwell, George Barbier, Jone Darwell, Slim Summerville, Sterling Holloway, Thomas Beck, Roger Imhof, Charles Sellon, John Bradford and Ruth Gillette.

You'll enjoy 'Life Begins At 40.'

It sends ol' man gloom into permanent exile.

'Let's Live Tonight,' which comes to the New Lyceum on Wednesday, and Thursday, April 17 and 18, is a diverting potpourri of sophistication, romance, music and enchanting atmosphere. Its poignantly told love story is exquisitely mounted n the colorful kaleidoscope of Nice, Monte Carlo and the fashionable watering places of the Mediterranean.

Lillian Harxey, blonde and ravishing European star, is co-starred with Tullio Carminati, who is still taking bows for his performance opposite Grace Moore in 'One Night of Love.' It is Miss Harvey's first real hit since arriving on our shores about two years ago, for which she might add a few kind words of gratitude to Director Victor Schertzinger and to Gene Markey and Bradley King, who are credited with the story.

For Miss Harvey's performance in this Columbia production justifies every superlative used to describe her talents in the past. As the young girl eager for romance, she is captivating lovely. She has an exquisite charm, a wistful naivete, and a youthful bouyancy that have never appeared to better advantage than in this tailored to fit her talents script.

Carimanti's performance is superb. He proves himself the 'top'romantic screen hero, and his renditon of the song, 'Love Passes By' will thrill film fans. Tala Birell, Janet Beecher and Hugh Williams, in the other principal roles, are splendid troupers all, whose portrayals lend immeasurably to the film's strong appeal.

Victor Schertzinger has directed with marked ability, lending brilliant touches of whimsy, poignant drama and delightful humor. He also wrote the music for the picture.

'Lightning,' the talented dog playing the title role in RKO-Radio's 'A Dog of Flanders,' featuring the talented Frankie Thomas, is turning handsprings and leaping over fences as a result of his role in this picture.

This is the first time 'Lightning,' a big German shepherd dog has really played a role in his own environment. He is seen as a kindly, tolerant, faithful domestic animal.

In 'Born To Fight,' a recent picture, he portrayed an animal that was half wolf and half dog. In 'The Case of the Howling Dog,' he played a dual role, acting as a household pet and a ferocious watch dog. In 'Wings in the Dark,' he played the role of a guide for a blind man.

He is more at home in his current role, as it portrays the intimate part played in the domestic life of Flanders by many of his brothers and sisters—and that is one reason why 'Lightning' is so happy in his role.

'Lightning' is more appealingly cast in 'A Dog of Flanders' than in any of his previous pictures. Young Thomas, as his master, and charming little Helen Parrish, as his mistress, form a delightful trio with the dog.

'Dog of Flanders' plays at the New Lyceum on Friday, and Saturday, April 19 and 20.
