

William Powell and Ginger Rogers, in RKO-Radio's 'Star of Midnight,' which comes on Monday and Tuesday, April 29 and 30 to the New Lyceum Theatre, bring to the screen perhaps the best of the modern mystery dramas.

Strong in story value, brilliantly enacted, expertly directed and handsomely mounted, the picture fairly exudes class. Sparkling dialogue adds greatly to its thoroughly rounded entertainment.

Powell, as Clay Dalzell, a brilliant attorney who is drawn into the solution of a perplexing mystery; and Miss Rogers, as Donna Mantin, a willful young society beauty who knows the man she wants to marry and how to get him, are seen at their best.

Outstanding suport is accorded by a versatile cast which includes Ralph Morgan, Gene Lockhart, Leslie Fenton, Paul Kelly, J. Farrell MacDonald, Russell Hopton and Vivian Oakland. Under Stephen Roberts skillful direction, characterizations and action unfolds with brilliance.

The story centers about the disappearance of Alice Markham, and the sinister complications which ensue. The missing Alice is discovered to be Mary Smith, masked star of a New York revue, but just as her identity is learned, she vanishes again.

Tommy Tennant, a newspaper reporter who is hot on the trail of the story, is killed in Dalzell's apartment and what was just a confounding mystery becomes a murder case, with lives and liberties at stake.

Dalzell is now forced to solve the mystery or face the possible charge of having murdered Tennant. Donna appoints herself as his 'Dr. Watson' and is drawn into the exciting events which follow. Complications mount swiftly, and the action moves to a suspense-charged climax.

'Star of Midnight' is based on the serial story of the same name by the late Arthur Somers Roche, famous author of mystery fiction. Howard J. Green, Anthony Veiller and Edward Kaufman wrote the screen play.

'By all means, put this picture down on the 'must see' list. Unquestionably, it is one of the best of the year.

Damon Runyon's genius for the lingo and quaint mannerisms of Broadway's 'citizens' is again brought to the screen in the Paramount film version of his short story, 'Hold 'Em Yale,' which comes to the New Lyceum on Wednesday and Thursday, May 1 and 2.

Played by a cast that includes Patricia Ellis, Cesar Romero, Larry Crabbe, William Frawley, Andy Devine and Warren Hymer, 'Hold 'Em Yale' shows what happens when Broadway's hard citizens take football seriously.

Their interest in the college game arises from their having deposited on their hands a dizzy, little heiress whose father won't take her back until she has married a certain Yale boy, Larry Crabbe.

Herpresence is so painful to these 'citizens' who must eat her cooking, wash their necks and suffer various other inconveniences while she is around, that they are determined to make a hero out of the Yale boy in order to persuade her to marry him.

How they accomplish this is shown in the hilarious climax which takes place in the Yale bowl at a game between the 'Harvards and the Yales.'

Sidney Lanfield, directed 'Hold 'Em Yale.'

The Universal Car

ONE name comes quickly to mind when you think of "The Universal Car." The description is distinctively Ford. No other car is used by so many millions of men and women in every part of the world. Everywhere it is the symbol of faithful service. . . . That has always been a Ford fundamental. Something new is constantly being added in the way of extra value. Each year the Ford has widened its appeal by increasing its usefulness to motorists. . . . Today's Ford V-8 is more than ever "The Universal Car" because it encircles the needs of more people than any other Ford ever built. It reaches out and up into new fields because it has everything you need in a modern automobile. . . . The Ford V-8 combines fine-car performance, comfort, safety and beauty with low first cost and low cost of operation and up-keep. There is no other car like it.
