KING'S JUBILEE

Listeners In in all parts of the world heard the various voices and the music that came over the radio, from all parts of the Kings domains each country sent a message of greeting and congratulation to the King at his Jubilee.

It must have been gratifying to the King who for twenty five years has ruled. Perhaps he has not been as strong in character as some of his predecessors, but the powers of the monarch are much more limited than it used to be. But his life has been clean and upright, very different from that of many of the former kings of England. His four sons, too, seem to be good men. The Prince of Wales is said to be the busiest man in the world; so busy is he, that they describe him as having deep lines in his face and looking far older than his years. The Duke of York, the second son, has been married some time, and his little daughters Elizabeth and Rose Marie have a chance to become Queen of England should the Prince of Wales remain unmarried, though the chance is less now as George, the Duke of Kent has recently taken a wife and if he has a son, according to the Salic law which was once the rule of England, the boys are preferred to the girls, although England has ever flourished under her queens.

The Duke of Gloucester the third son of the King is also single, and his chance of succession is very dim.

'Uneasy lies the head that wears the crown' is a true saying and George V has had a very trying time. Internal unrest among his many dominions keep him ever uneasy, the four years World's war which killed the flower of the English people and brought on untold hardships and overwhelming taxes have been a terrible blow to him, Ireland, the sore spot of the Kingdom, is always giving him trouble while internal unrest in India, keeps the police force very busy in that part of the world. Is it any wonder then that many of the sons do not wish to undertake so great a responsibility.

The King has one only daughter, the Princess Royal, she is a very sweet lovely character. She married Lord Lascelles, now the Duke of Harward, and she has two fine sons. These sons have no chance to become kings but we hope that they will find happiness in the working world for there is one thing that never has been discovered and that is how to be happy without working.

Perhaps that is the reason why so many rich young men fall into evil ways. Those who listened in were unpressed by the king's voice. It was weak and quavery, like the voice of an old man, though he is still in his sixties, while the voices of those who addressed him were so strong in comparison. Queen Mary, too, is a very busy woman, not only is she a good housekeeper and needlwoman, but she has many charities and constantly visits the sick and distressed, beside her various social duties.

Altogether the royal family of England is a very popular and self sacrificing one.

There is nothing that adds more to the comfort of people than good housekeeping.

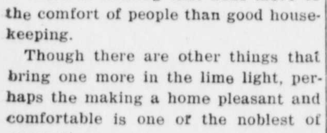

Though there are other things that bring one more in the lime light, perhaps the making a home pleasant and comfortable is one of the noblest of occupations.

HIVE OF BEES

Here is a swarm of BEES. If you attend to them they will make you the honey of success, and if you neglect them you are apt to get stung.

1. BE polite. Politeness will get you out of more difficulties, climb you more hills, cut you more barbed wire, find you more smiles, than any quality you can acquire.
2. BE sure. Don't guess. Don't suppose. Find out exactly. Know. And if you don't know, ask.
3. Be clean. Water and whiskbrooms are cheap.
4. BE honest. Even when nobody's looking.
5. BE on time. People that have to wait for you don't like you.
6. BE patient.
7. BE cheerful. And if you can't be cheerful, look cheerful anyhow.
8. BE considerate. Don't be officious, nor meddlesome, nor a nuisance, but—you know,—be considerate.
9. BE careful. Better be careful one hundred times than get killed once. Look out for these BEES.

OUTDOOR SPORTS

By DR. WILLIAM J. SCHOLES

Of all nations the English-speaking peoples are the most devoted to sports. They love the great outdoors and all it offers above everything else. And this devotion has paid big dividends in the superlative mental and physical vigor they possess.

Among the outdoor sports golf is rapidly moving into first place in popular flavor, and is destined to supersede baseball and cricket as our national games. Thousands, who a few years ago were in the bleachers, are now on the links. And there is a reason—no other outdoor sport can approach golf in the training of mind and body that it affords.

Swimming probably comes next in popularity and there is no more healthful sport, provided one refrains from diving into two feet of water. From the 'old swimmin' hole' of the past generation to the marble pools of today, swimming has been the great summer pasttime. There is nothing more invigorating and rejuvenating than a good swim. Some spoil its good effects however, by going into the water too soon after eating, staying in too long, and other indiscretions.

Baseball Always Enjoyable

No discussion of summer sports is complete without including that most popular of all games—baseball. There is nothing more diverting and exhilarating than a snappy baseball game. It is full of action, and no one ever gets too old to enjoy it. I am speaking, of course, of playing, not watching, a game. The increasing use of 'indoor' balls contributes something toward making the game less hazardous—people have been killed by a blow on the head with the official hard ball. But the percentage is so small as to be negligible.

Perhaps the most important feature connected with outdoor sports in one's selection of that form best suited to his particular needs and requirements. People with heart disease should indulge in golf rather than tennis. Many persons feel that they get enough exercise in connection with their regular occupation, but that theory is all wrong. A laundress gets plenty of exercise, but you wouldn't say that she enjoys it. The benefit in sports is that they are different and diverting, and their good effect is as much mental as physical. The mind is taken off one's daily routine, giving it a change that is to the brain what a bath is to the body.

Even though a man's work is largely physical he needs to indulge in sports that call into action unused sets of muscles, thus keeping himself from becoming lopsided.

Hints for the Household

By BETTY WEBSTER

Everyone knows from marriage license bureau statistics that there are brides in each month of the year. But somehow, June seems to have ao sort of monopoly on them in song and story anyway. And, when there are no brides there must be showers and other sorts of parties galore.

Sometimes it is hard for the harried hostess to think of enough clever entertainments to go 'round.

Not long ago, I attended a shower for a bride-to-be which the hostess called a 'Balloon party.' It was very amusing—so I know you'd like to hear about it.

Instead of flowers, the room was decorated with vases filled with balloons—you can get them at (Blank's) by the way—and a cute little balloon man was painted on the tally cards which were given to the guests as they arrived. Bridge was played on tables covered with black oil-cloth on which were stenciled clusters of balloons. Each table was supplied with a dish filled with round candies to carry out the balloon idea.

Balloons Attached to Gifts

Before refreshments were served, the hostess removed all the tables but one which was placed in front of the guest of honor. Then the gifts were carried in and to each package had been tied a gas-filled balloon which floated to the ceiling as each bundle was opened. It was most effective.

The refreshments consisted of ice cream molded in balls—(Blank's drug store will supply you with ice cream in any form you wish—round cakes daintily iced and vari-colored patties. Filberts, shelled and salted were passed and iced lemonade was served in tall colored glasses.

The first and second prizes for the bridge games were a round bottle filled with bath crystals (Druggist's have them in all colors and fragrances) and two circular handkerchiefs.

This was one of the loveliest parties I ever attended and the idea can be worked out successfully by anyone. Try it.

For the Porch and Sun Parlor

Straw and grass rugs to spread underfoot these bright days are unusually decorative this season. From wee round mats to large square and oval rugs which will cover whole floors they are uniformly good looking.

To Keep Fudge From Boiling Over.

Grease top of kettle in which fudge is cooked and it will not boil over.

Care of Silk Stockings

Wash silk stockings in a luke warm suds after each wearing. Rinse well. In this way they will last much longer, as it is perspiration that rots them.

Dr. Miles NERVINE "Did the work" says Miss Glivar WHY DON'T YOU TRY IT?

After more than three months of suffering from a nervous ailment, Miss Glivar used Dr. Miles Nervine which gave her such splendid results that she wrote us an enthusiastic letter.

If you suffer from "Nerves." If you lie awake nights, start at sudden noises, tire easily, are cranky, blue and fidgety, your nerves are probably out of order.

Quiet and relax them with the same medicine that "did the work" for this Colorado girl.

Whether your "Nerves" have troubled you for hours or for years, you'll find this time-tested remedy effective.

At Drug Stores 25c and $1.00.
