The Social Wanderer

Dear Roamer:

June, roses, and the wedding gay of Mss Mary Meigs Ingersoll and Mr. Eben Clark Jenkins, which will take place as scheduled at Emmanuel Protestant Episcopal Church at 4 o'clock.

Dances seem to follow weddings of late, and as time grows close to the June Frolic at the Country Club, which will take place tonight, interest and enthusiasm increase, particularly with the younger set. Many out-of-town guests will be on hand for the affair, and among those coming from Baltimore will include, Miss Rachiel Thomas, Miss Virginia Jones and Mr. Bill Rogers. Miss Nancy Jean Usilton will have three house guests for the week end: Misses Ann Dale and Carolyn Austin, of Bellfont, Pa., and Betty Peach, of Washington.

Over Decoration Day, Mr. John McCauley Kiskadden, and two friends of his from Ohio were guests of Mrs. Catharine Beck Jones.

Miss Mary Hines, of Baltimore, will visit her brother and sister in law, Mr. and Mrs. Dorsey Hines for the week end and before returning to the city will spend a couple of days with her aunts, Misses Grace and Jennie Wilkins.

Mr. James G. Beck has returned to his home, accompanied by Mrs. Beck who remained with him in Baltimore during his long siege in the hospital there. We extend a hearty welcome home. Mr. and Mrs. H. Gilpin Brown, of Overbrook, will spend the week end with Mrs. Brown's mother and father and be among those present at the dance Saturday evening.

I am loathe to tell you of the departure of one of our recent brides and grooms, leaving our community to establish residence in Sudlersville. Yes it is none other than Barbee and Bus Humphreys, who are so popular here in town and will be greatly missed.

Mr. William S. Collins, Sr., Mrs. Claude Truslow and little daughter, Nellie, left on Wednesday for a motor trip to Mount Hope, W. Va., where they will visit, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Collins. Mr. Collins returned on Monday, from a week end trip to Montclair, N. J., where he and Mr. Z. R. Collins, of Centreville, motored and were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Ross Collins.

Mrs. Allan B. Harris and her two sons, who planned to leave on Decoration Day for the West, were delayed owing to the illness of little Louis, who probably had too much farewelling on Wednesday. They now plan to leave on Sunday.

Mrs. Harris and Mrs. Catherine Beck Jones were guests of honor on Tuesday at a luncheon given by Mrs. S. Scott Beck and Mrs. James G. Metcalfe, given at Mrs. Beck's home.

Mrs. Thomas G. Horsfield who is visiting her father and mother, Dr. and Mrs. Julian Power, was guest of honor Tuesday night at a bridge party, entertained by Miss Minnie Massey.

Mrs. Harrison Cooke and her little daughter, Anne Washington, of Elizabeth, N. J., came on Thursday to visit Mrs. A. T. H. Harper at her home on Front St. Mr. Cooke will probably be down for the week end.

Major Marshall Mayes and Mr. John Smiley, of Washington, were guests last week end of Col. H. S. Brown at Godlington Manor.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrison W. Vickers, whose son, Harrison W. Vickesr, 3rd, graduates at the Stony Brook School, Stony Brook, Long Island, will leave shortly to attend the commencement exercises there on Saturday, June 8th.

Billy Atwater graduated Thursday of this week at Hobart College in N. Y. State. Rev. Charles Atwater attended his son's graduation, and returned with him, following the exercises.

Dr. and Mrs. Frank B. Hines who motored to Old Hickory, Tenn., to visit their son, Frank, Jr., have returned, making their return trip via, Jamestown and Williamsburg, Va.

I'm not playing a guessing game, but even before I tell you of the romance, mentioned a few weeks ago, there may be another that I hope to tell you of soon. It will be even a greater surprise than the previous one mentioned. Of course there may be slips between cups and lips, but let's hope not, because I think it's quite a fine thing. No I'm not trying to get your curiosity aroused, but keep your eyes open.

Yours observing,
THE WANDERER.

The Fairlee M. E. parsonage was the scene of a very pretty wedding Tuesday, May 21 when Miss Hazel Arvey, of Parsonsburg, Md., and Frank Middleton, of Pittsville, Md., were united in marriage by the Rev. S. T. Hamblin.

Chester River is staging a strong comeback on boating. For the past two or three years, pleasure boats are increasing. Sailboats are having a big day.

The largest class of sail boats is the Barnegat class. There are ten of these; five at deep point and five at Chestertown. The ones at Deep Point are owned by Bill Grieb, Gilbert Ingersoll, Bill Baker and the Wood family has two. Chestertown's five Barnegats are owned by R. Hynson Rogers, Scott Thompson, T. H. Moyer, and two making their first appearance this year, Jimmy Metcalfe, Jr., and William Belt Townshend.

Mr. Herbert T. Hartman has purchased a snipe. This is a class boat but is the only one on the river.

Jack Kibler has purchased from Mr. Eben Perkins his sailing bateau. Doc. Sterling has a new Crisfield skipjack. Carl Bordley is building a boat from boat builder's plans. Harry Barnett has purchased a bateau, Joe Russell has purchased from the Truslow's their Great Scott. John Truslow has built himself something new for these waters and expects to have it launched soon. This boat is known as a Black Island Sharpy and carries a large amount of sail.

Rumor has it that Townshend Anthony is contemplating the purchase of Elmer Sterling's skip-jack and that Howard Strong is moving around for a purchase of a sail boat for Junny. Eben Perkins is also suspected of having his eye on something in the way of a small sail boat.

The ten Barnegats make a nice class and should furnish some good races. In buying boats it is a wise plan to buy a class or standard built boat if you intend to do any racing. Handicapping is hard to work out and that is necessary where boats are of all sizes and designs.

Cambridge, Md., is a good example of the difficulty of racing boats that are not in a class. All entries for their races have to be in several weeks ahead of time as it will take the committee that long to figure out the handicaps. The boats there are of all kinds of designs and sail areas, hardly any two alike.

FAVORS AAA AMENDMENTS

A committee of ten representatives of Maryland's farm and dairy interests went to Washington last week in behalf of the much contested amendments to the Agricultural Adjustment Act. The committee was headed by Messrs. C. E. Wise, Jr., and P. C. Turuer, of the Maryland Farm Bureau, and included representatives from the Maryland State Grange and the Dairymen's Association.

Recent attacks in which the amendments were labled a form of regulation which was rapidly pushing the government into competition with its own taxpayers, were held groundless and absurd by Mr. Wise, who acted as spokesman for the committee. "In its administration of the Adjustment Act," Mr. Wise said, "the government has propably been less in competition with private business than in any of its recent undertakings in behalf of industrial recovery, and has merely performed for agriculture a service it has long rendered American Industry through the collection of imposts and tariffs."

COMMISSIONERS TO MEET ROADS BODY

The Commissioners of Kent County will meet with the State Roads Commission in Baltimore next Thursday, May 6th for the purpose of discussing Kent County's road obligation previous to striking the levy on June 12.

The result of this meeting will have a decided effect on the tax rate for the coming year. It involves the shortage in Kent's share of the State gasoline tax for application to the retirement of the bonds due of the million dollar bond issue.

LIBRARY CARD PARTY SUCCESSFUL

One hundred and twenty-five people attended the card party held at Washington College for the benefit of the Chestertown Public Library Wednesday evening. Approximately $55 was cleared from the benefit.

Marathon Races Started With Olympic Contests

The ancient Marathon was a small town on the eastern coast of Attica, about 20 miles northeast of Athens. There is a modern village of the name, but the site of the ancient Marathon is occupied now by a town called Vrana, observes a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Along with neighboring towns, the old Marathon belonged to an ancient Hanseatic league called the Tetrapolis. This league claimed a very early origin, legend carrying it back to the time of Theseus, and it survived until after the Fourth century B. C.

The plain of Marathon is famous as the scene of the decisive battle in which Miltiades led the Athenians and Plateans to victory over the army of Darius under command of Datis and Artaphernes in B. C. 490. The Greeks numbered about 10,000, while the Persians had a much larger force. But the invaders were put utterly to rout with heavy loss, while the Greeks lost only 192 men. The great mound in which the remains of these dead were placed is still conspicuous on the plain. The battle turned back the eastern invasion of Europe and saved Athens; and, according to tradition, a Greek runner sped without stopping from Marathon to Athens bearing the tidings of victory.

The modern Marathon race, commemorating this feat, originated with the first Olympic games, at Athens in 1896. It is a run of 40 kilometers (24 miles, 1,495 yards), held mostly on the open road. The name is also applied to any similar long distance race.

Civil War Tokens

From 1861 to 1864 the dearth of small coins gave rise to an enormous private issue of tokens and merchants' cards. The former bore inscriptions giving vivid expressions to the partisan slogans of the day, while the other bore simply the advertisement of the merchants who issued them. It was estimated that not less than 25,000,000 of these private tokens were issued throughout the eastern and middle western states until the government, by act of congress in 1864, put a stop to their issue. They are worth about four or five cents each. The name "Dix" in the center of a token was for the American general and statesman, John Adams Dix, who was secretary of the treasury from January 11 to March 4, 1861.
