AFTER SEVERAL MEETINGS of advocates of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge they have arrived at the conclusion that there is plenty of sentiment for the bridge and what they need now is action toward a definite plan to get the structure actually started. This logical conclusion has presented two definite forms of action. The first is to get the Maryland Representatives in both the United States Senate and the House of Representatives to start working for the project and not be content with merely saying they are for it.. All of Maryland's Representatives have expressed their sentiments for the bridge except Representative Lewis of Western Maryland and Congressman Goldsborough of the Eastern Shore.

The second plan is to proceed to set up some financial scheme to raise $5,500,000 to add to the Federal offer of an outright gift of $4,500,000 toward construction work. It has been said that if Maryland will back the bridge to the extent of raising $1,500,000 the government will advance the rest.

In summing up the relative merits of the two plans, the first is probably easier and as a number of other States have received large Federal grants for bridge building purposes it seems logical that Maryland should want to also share in the hand-out. Should this plan fail there is no reason to give up hope for the bridge, for while the second plan will involve considerably more work it, after all, is the best business proposition. It seems reasonable to believe that if the bridge is a worthwhile project there should be very little trouble raising fifty-five per cent of the cost with bonds that have first lein on the entire cost of the project. It is to be hoped that the Chesapeake Bay Bridge Authority, who, it is generally conceded are able men, will accept their responsibility and complete some financial plan to construct the bridge and not depend entirely on the Federal government to foot the bill. It seems to us that the offer of forty-five per cent of the cost of the project as a outright give is a fair and sporting proposition.

SAYS PROHIBITION WAS BETTER THAN PRESENT LIQUOR LAWS

Rock Hall, Md. July 24, 1935

Chestertown Transcript,

Gentlemen:

Less than three years ago we were loaded with promises of how decent they would have the alcohol beverage handled, if they could get the 18th Amendment repealed; how much less our taxes would be with less crime and less bootlegging. Taxes are mounting daily and in prohibition days we could keep the bootlegger scared back in the woods; there are, I believe, as many now as in prohibition days and road houses and saloons are in every public place where they want to sell it; very seldom is there a license refused.

I can well recall when President Titsworth, now deceased, put up a strong protest against a road house adjoining the college campus, one of the finest institutions of learning that I know of. He knew the danger, at the age of students that came under his jurisdiction, but to no avail and it was to my surprise that former bootleggers and foreigners can obtain the most learned legal talent to help them get their license, whether it be adjoining a college, church, school or hospital. J ust the dollar in sight it seems. We were promised they only wanted light wines and beer, no more corner saloons.

I find the same old saloon named taverns, the same old hard whisky, full of snakes as it ever was. They do not have to put snakes on display, there are enough concealed in bottles.

Very shortly after a little group of us were trying to keep a rum shop from being 40 feet from our church, there came a brutal murder in a road house and the sad part of it was that it was conducted by one who was once one of our officers, many times people's liberty depended on his decision.

When Ellis asked Mrs. Terry for a dance and she refused, he is supposed to have said, 'What in the H are you here for.' That one sentence covers a multitude of things; we all know she or any of those there did not expect to hear a church service although the combined services of the various churches were being conducted each Sabbath. The ministers of the various churches are, I believe, trying to do everything they can to help people but what little encouragement they get. They are usually called on after a person gets into trouble; they have a hard task to perform. If this family had visited Dr. Litsinger's Church the week before, to my mind, I do not believe he would have been called on to take charge of such an unwelcome service.

I have lived under the old saloon days and under prohibition days and now the new deal liquor days or whatever they call it; and with all its faults the prohibition days were far the better than the rum drenched days in which we are living. I for one would welcome the old saloon days in preference to the present conditions, the church people sold us for a pot of porrage.

I am calling upon the wet people to isolate their intoxicating stuff in saloons so sober people will not have to go where it is and where children will not have to be sent where it is sold.

I am sure this one murder case will cost the tax payers more than all the revenue obtained from all the rum shops in Kent County. Christian people where are you; now is the time to remind you of the administration of your pledges in regards to prohibition; show your colors and get ready for 1936. The Master expects service out of you if you claim His name. Do not come up to the judgment and hear those terrible words (I never knew you.)

Well, to you other guys, big taxpayers who have been worrying about how much Sheriff Bennett's trip was going to cost the county—here is the dope. The Sheriff got three hundred and fifty dollars ($350) from the county before he left and he stated this Friday morning that he did not think the cost of the trip would amount to over five hundred dollars ($500). They slept in the car and kept riding not even a chance to change their clothing.

Last week some surveying work was done for the new postoffice. They tell me several property owners on Washington Avenue are still surveying their properties.

The dope is that the town is going to give the Chestertown Volunteer Fire Co., $500 for new hose and $500 more in January. The Ladies' Auxiliary are planning on presenting 25 pairs of boots and there will be no carnival.

When the new Gulf Oil Station on Maple Avenue is finished, Turner Bros. are planning to tear down the fence which blocks Hick's Alley and makes a through street of Court Street from High to Maple Avenue. This has been talked of for years and now it is a reality.

The loss of the cannery at Crumpton by fire last week is going to cause an awful hardship on the farmers of that section. They have grown special crops for the cannery and now they will have to sell them on the open market. This is an example of how valuable a good fire company is to a community.

A visit the other week to the Reverend Vaughn Moore, of Still Pond, proved very interesting. Besides having a young printing plant he has one of the best model boats I have ever seen. She is a schooner and is nine feet long. Every gadget on the ship works. Mrs. Moore's father built the model and is now busy making another. Anyone interested in boat models should certainly see this one.

Sorry to hear that Mr. Harry Russell of the Enterprise was sick last week and today is in Baltimore for diagnosis by Dr. Abercrombie.

The Queen Anne's Record seems all excited about Gov. Nice playing politics with his road commission and going back on his pre-elected promises.

That just makes me think of this. The concrete wall at the corner of Water Street and Maple Avenue, is considered one of the most dangerous corners in the State. It is said, that democratic politics had it built like it is and democratic politics kept it from being lowered. With the republicans in power maybe something can be done about it. Something like the bible we will say, "Can any good come out of the republican party."

Biting the hand that fed him. Gov. Nice to some extent, rode into office by being in sympathy with Roosevelt's New Deal. Now in office he is knocking it at every chance and is hoping to get the Republican nomination for president.

All this being so he should make a very successful politician. This is the kind of stuff our Congressman pulls and he seems to keep his job well in hand.

In the boat market are Junny Strong for a small sail-boat and Vernon Kirby for something big in the way of a cruiser.

Anybody wanting entry blanks for the Miles River Regatta can get them here at the Transcript office.
