Women's Page

There is the ancient story of the building of Rome by the twin brothers, Romulus and Remus, that when the city was built, it was found there was one very important thing lacking and that was women. As Rome at that early date, 753 B. C., had the reputation of being settled by ruffians and robbers, Romulus knew that his men had little chance of winning the lovely women who lived near, the Sabines.

The Sabines were a hardy, dignified set and they looked with contempt upon the Romans. Romulus at last thought of a way. They would have a series of games and invite all the Sabines to attend, bringing with them their wives and daughters. The Sabines came and the games proceeded, and each man had time to choose the maiden whom he desired most. Then at a given signal, there was a rush and each man seized a maiden and bore her away. The Sabines were furious and made preparations for war. The maidens in the meantime had grown to love their husbands and when the Sabine Army appeared they went out in a long line weeping, and begged that there would be no war between their fathers and husbands.

When the Sabines found that their daughters were happy they called a halt, made peace with the Romans and became their warm friends and allies.

JUDGE FLORENCE ALLEN

Judge Florence Allen, of Cincinnati is a gifted woman who has found time a gentle deity. The first woman ever to be appointed to the Federal Bench, she dissents in the decision of the Sixth District United States Court of Appeals, which denies governmental power to condemn land for low-cost housing. She insists that "the Government may undertake projects which benefit the health, the morals and the general welfare of the people."

Formerly elected to the Cincinatti Court of Common Pleas, Judge Allen was appointed to her present post by President Roosevelt March 6, 1934. This was her first notable opinion. It is in line with her farfare for many years against slums.

She was born in Salt Lake City, the daughter of a teacher in Western Reserve University, learning Latin and Greek at the age of 7. She was graduated from the University of Chicago and New York University. From 1904 to 1906 she was assistant Berlin Correspondent of the Musical Courier of New York. She paid part of her college expenses as music critic of the Cleveland Plain Dealer. She is a Democrat.

Judge Charles H. Moorman, writing the majority opinion with Judge Xenophon Hicks, is a Kentuckian, appointed to the Federal Bench by President Coolidge in 1925. He was one of the most vigorous upholders of the eighteenth amendment, Nemesis not only of bootleggers but of drinkers. He was one of the few Federal judges who maintained constitutional authority to punish those who drank liquor as well as those who sold it.

Judge Hicks, also a Southerner, born and reared in Clinton, Tenn., where he now makes his home. He was appointed United States Circuit Judge by President Hoover in 1928.

PERSONALITY

What is "Personality"? Many a woman would like to know and so would many a man. The psychologists have been delving into this weighty matter and have identified eight personality types: the entertaining the brilliant, the culture-talented, the just, the pretty, the good fellow, the good neighbor and the diplomat. The most interesting point is that underlying every one of these eight popular types were the same four qualities: a sense of fairness, originality, liveliness, and a pleasant voice.

The list is rather surprising. Note the omission of facial beauty. Most gratifying is the emphasis on the pleasant voce. It is the sign of ripening culture that we now begin to set some store upon the quality which Shakespeare long ago called "an excellent thing in women"—a voice that is "soft, gentle and low."—William Norwood Brigance in Woman's Home Companion.

Various fumigants and deodorizers have been used in the past to destroy odors left after cooking strong foods, but more often they simply blanketed the odor with a more powerful scent of some kind. A new deodorizer has just been tested which seems to fulfill its purpose admirably and leave but a slight scent of its own. It comes n the form of matches, called Fumettes, which, when struck as one would strike an ordinary match and inserted in a hole in the box, smoulder without flame for two or three minutes. Each one is said to clear the air of such odors as those remaining after cooking fish or cabbage.

Every pound of fat in the human body requires six-tenths of a mile of blood vessels. Therefore a person carries three extra miles of them for every five pounds of superfluous flesh.

Visitors to the house in the daytime made so much noise that the night nurse could not get sufficient rest to prepare her for her work.

One day she happened to mention it to the doctor, who wrote a large notice with the words: "Please Remember the night nurse," and placed it on the hall table.

Next evening, when she same on duty, she found beneath the notice a shilling, a sixpence and a few coppers.

Geneva, Paris Telephone Calls Double League Days

Swiss telephone central office showing operators establishing connections and passing out of town calls.

Telephone calls at Geneva, Switzerland, headquarters of the League of Nations more than double in volume when important assemblies are in session, according to the Berne Telecommunications Journal.

On such days out of town calls particularly to Paris are more than 100 per cent above the average day. During these assembly periods there is an average of 1,600 telephone calls to Paris daily with about 700 calls from Paris to Geneva, as compared with approximately 1,100 calls being made between the two cities normally.

Use of the telephone last year, according to the Journal article, averaged about 570 calls daily between Geneva and London, with 175 between the League city and Berlin.

Geneva, with a population of 146,000, is served by about 26,600 telephones. This city, third in size in Switzerland has more than 18 telephones for each 100 people, according to Telephone and Telegraph Statistics of the World, recently compiled by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Switzerland, is served by 363,655 telephones, from which were made last year 270,800,000 calls, which is equivalent to about 66 telephone conversations per capita.

"Nerves" "NERVES" "Nerves"

Dr. Miles NERVINE "Did the work" says Miss Glivar WHY DON'T YOU . TRY IT?

After more than three months of suffering from a nervous ailment, Miss Glivar used Dr. Miles Nervine which gave her such splendid results that she wrote us an enthusiastic letter.

If you suffer from "Nerves." If you lie awake nights, start at sudden noises, tire easily, are cranky, blue and fidgety, your nerves are probably out of order.

Quiet and relax them with the same medicine that "did the work" for this Colorado girl.

Whether your "Nerves" have troubled you for hours or for years, you'll find this time-tested remedy effective.
