NOW AND THEN

HONEYSUCKLE

All along "the Cliffs" steep slope,
With a fragrant rich appeal,
Now alive with Spring's bright hope,
Honeysuckle doth reveal.
In a stately sort of way,
Tinting mystical today,
Head-long hurry, seems it so,
Strong for eager climbing too,
Decorative would if show
Flaunting beauty for our view.
Laboring through the wavy bowers,
To the music of the Seas,
Touching sweetly summer hours,
Trembling lightly in the breeze.
Thus it covers the hedge side,
Like a gracious fair gowned bride.

The abundant Honeysuckle which has covered our road-sides, and scented the air around us has passed, but still, as one rides along he can yet catch a whiff of its fragrance and see now and then a dainty blossom looking up from the vines.

Poor Mother Goose! How often she has been written about, and the many places where she was born have been noted, some of them in England and some in this country.

How often are her rhymes repeated, perhaps giving more pleasure to the young than any book written.

Now we are told by a lady teacher at Columbia College that such a person never existed; that some of the poems were made by Queen Elizabeth, and others of her time. While we admit that her reign was wonderful in its literary work, yet we are not willing that she should have all the glory of the Mother Goose rhymes.

The following was clipped from the Atlantic Monthly:
Dear Atlantic:—

I was very much amused and interested by the letter of Mr. William H. Trapnell in the Contributors' Column in the Atlantic for June, relating to the crow at Virginia Beach who made a practice of stealing golf balls. I was at Virginia Beach four or five years ago and saw this very crow make off with a ball which had been driven down the fairway by a member of the foursome in which I was playing. On my return home I reported my experience, and a friend of mine wrote what seems to me the delightful little poem which follows:

KROFLITE

My blessing on you, lady crow,
As with my ball away you fly.
I found a hope within it too—
May you have better luck than I.

Go cherish well that luring sphere
Within your nest on crags afar.
I hoped to have a birdie too,
But all I ever got was par.

Perhaps tht poet jumped to conclusions about the sex of the bird. I think, nevertheless, that the poem is good enough to justify a little nature faking, as well as to compensate for the loss of a few dozen golf balls.

F. Lyman Windolph,
Lancaster, Pennsylvania.

The things we have not are the things which make us unhappy," said the sage philosopher.

But how about the toothache? asked the mere man.

It was ever thus:
EVEN INVALIDS WERE WARY

The recklessness of the young bloods of New York in driving carriages through the streets 125 years ago occasioned acid protest on the part of more staid citizens. One such wrote to the New York Gazette & General Advertiser on May 8, 1810. He said that the "gay young men" who ride and drive at so reckless a pace endangered the lives of all other citizens. "So great is the danger of taking an afternoon's airing in any carriage, that many invalids . . . are frightened at the hazard they encounter . . . on the common highway," he said.

TO MEET THE WORLD—
Square your shoulders to the world-
It's easy to give in.
Lift your chin a little higher!
You were made to win.
Grit your teeth, but smile, don't frown,
We must all bear our bit.
It's not the load that weighs us down,
It's the way we carry it.

WILMINGTON DOLLAR DAY

Wilmington will hold its official Dollar Day on Wednesday, August 14, under the auspices of the Mercantile Section of the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce.

This year more than a hundred of Wilmington's leading merchants are participating in the event, and after weeks of preparations are in a position to offer untold values to the shopper. Official Dollar Day stores, as usual, will display a distinctive emblem and official Dollar Day cards on which appear the emblem of the Chamber of Commerce.

The cooperation of the Wilmington Police Department has been enlisted to protect out-of-town buyers from parking restrictions, and there is published in this paper, a coupon which, if cut out by the shopper and displayed on the windshield of his car, will permit him to park as long as he desires in Wilmington on August 14th.

Arthur N. Kuschan, chairman of the committee in charge of the event, stated that he has made a survey of the preparations that the merchants have made, and that in the long history of Wilmington Dollar Days he has never seen such bargains and values. In personal interviews with many of the merchants, Mr. Kuschan said, he learned that the markets of the east have been combed for merchandise that would meet the most discriminating taste, and, at the same time, be within the means of all pocketbooks.

All the Wilmington stores participating in the event will be open by nine o'clock, daylight saving time, and extra salespeople have been hired to give prompt service to all customers.

COMMISSIONERS MEET AT OCEAN CITY

Messrs. G. E. Leary, Andrew W. Wilson and George Williams, Commissioners of Kent County, attended the meeting of Eastern Shore County Commissioners at Ocean City over the past week-end.

County roads was one of the principal topics of discussion and while some members advocated the maintenance of County roads be turned back to the counties, no definite action was taken.

Senator J. H. C. Legg, of Queen Anne's County made his usual speech against the Chesapeake Bay bridge but no stand was taken by the group on the matter. Senator Legg keeps faith with his boys on Kent Island by making his little speech against the bridge at every meeting of the Shore County Commissioners.
