AT THE MOVIES NEXT WEEK

KATHERINE HEPBURN, as 'ALICE ADAMS', plays a role strikingly similar to her sensational performance in 'Morning Glory,' which won her the Academy Award. 'Alice Adams' is a Booth Tarkington story now cinematized by RKO Radio.

PRETENSE and deception weave a tangled web in 'Alice Adams,' which stars Katharine Hepburn in the title role.

Based on the Booth Tarkington novel which won the Pulitzer Prize for 1922, the story is an unvarnished picture of the struggles and heartaches which a girl endures in her fight for love and social recognition in a small Mid-western town.

Not since Miss Hepburn won the Academy Award with her portrayal of the stage-struck girl in 'Morning Glory' has she had a role which gave her such opportunities for unusual characterization, sensitiveness and understanding.

In the story, Alice Adams, battles snobbery and social ostracism with pretense and deceit, only to find that these weapons are useless. It is only when she drops her mask of make-believe and turns the light of truth upon her enemies that she wins the love and recognition which she craves. Her faith and courage and her struggle upward to ultimate triumph make for a great and entertaining picture.

Each of the characters in 'Alice Adams' is vividly drawn and capably played by well known screen and stage artists. Included in the cast are Fred Stone, famous stage star, Fred MacMurray, Evelyn Venable, Ann Shoemaker, Frank Albertson, Charles Grapewin, and others. George Stevens directed this RKO Radio Picture.

Which comes to the New Lyceum on Monday and Tuesday, September 9 and 10.

'HOLLYWOOD'S most interesting blonde' and 'London's handsomest leading man' comprise the new screen romantic team of Kay Johnson and Ian Hunter, who have the leading featured roles, in 'Jalna,' prize-winning best-seller by Mazo de la Roche.

Miss Johnson, a striking type of natural blonde beauty is a former New York stage favorite who has won recognition as one of the talking screen's foremost dramatic actresses with her characterizations in 'This Man Is Mine,' 'Of Human Bandage,' 'Village Tale' and other pictures. Hunter, six feet one and a half inches of he-man, was imported to Hollywood to play the Duke of Theseus in Max Reinhardt's 'A Midsummer Night's Dream,' hoping vainly that the appellation of 'London's handsomest leading man' had not preceded him. In London, Hunter appeared in several notable stage and screen productions, among which are 'Loyolties' and 'A Bill of Divorcement.'

Miss Johnson has the prominent role of Alayne, the bride who comes to 'Jalna,' the name of the Whiteoaks estate, and jars a million precepts of life harbored through the decades by the prim Whiteoaks. Her marriage to Eden collapses and her efforts to dodge the inevitable romance with Renny, played by Hunter, is a dramatic sidelight in this narrative of clashing emotions.

With Miss Johnson and Hunter is seen a brilliant cast of international favorites, including Peggy Wood, David Manners, Molly Lamont, Theodore Newton, Jessie Ralph, C. Aubrey Smith and Nigel Bruce. 'Jalna,' RKO Radio Picture, was directed by John Cromwell.

'Jalna' plays at the New Lyceum on Wednesday and Thursday, September 11 and 12.

Red Book, which has published hundreds of stories which were later brought to the screen, adds another story to its long list of successful films in 'Hot Tip,' adapted from 'Leander Clicks,' by William Slavens McNutt.

With ZaSu Pitts and James Gleason portraying the featured roles in this comedy-drama of the race-track, 'Hot Tip' weaves romance, thrills and suspense around the lives of small town people. As a lunch counter proprietor, Gleason satisfies his yen to play the ponies by betting—and losing—the savings of his prospective son-in law. I nhis own way, he works out the situation, but not without being arrested, almost landing in jail, encountering the punches of an enemy and, more than anything, falling within the wrathful temper of his nagging wife.

Gleason directed as well as acted in 'Hot Tip,' with Ray McCarey sharing directorial credits. Margaret Callahan, Broadway newcomer, has a featured role, with Russell Gleason, Ray Mayer and others in support. 'Hot Tip' is an RKO Radio Picture. And will show on Friday and Saturday, Sept. 13 and 14 at the New Lyceum.

REPORT OF KENT JAIL

RATED AS CLASS C

The eleventh Annual Report of Inspection of the County Jails of Maryland by the Director of The Department of Welfare rated Kent County Jail as Class C.

The report is as follows:

The spouting referred to previously has been replaced, the roof painted and the outside of the property repaired and in good condition. Inside the jail was cleaner than usual, and the food conditions satisfactory

The beds and bedding were in very bad condition, many of the beds being broken and out of use. While somewhat improved, the cells downstairs are still damp and dark, and the floors upstairs badly worn.

The room fitted up several years ago is still available for occasional women prisioners and is satisfactory.

With some additional attention, this jail which generally has been listed among the worst, can become reasonably satisfactory.

There were eight (8) prisionrs; one (1) white man awaiting trial; two (2) white men and five (5) colored men serving sentences.

Jail ratings of other counties were as follows:

Class A. Baltimore, Montgomery, Dorchester, Allegany and Washington.

Class B. Prince George's, Garrett, Anne Arundel, Frederick, Talbot and Harford.

Class C. Charles, Carroll, Kent, St. Mary's, Cecil and Caroline.

Class D. Queen Anne's, Somerset, Wicomico, Worcester, Howard and Calvert.

Some of the recommendations made by Inspector Hill.

Buildings

Of course a brick, stone or concrete building should be used. It should provide single cells or dormimtories or a combination of the two sufficiently large to care for the maximum population without overcrowding. There should be a corridor or sectional corridors in which the prisoners have a least certain hours for exercise and relaxation, and preferably a yard. It should have adequate protection against escape; and against communication from the outside. Facilities for conversing with proper visitors, without th opportunity of passing undesirable articles should be provided. There should be metal window frames, steel or concrete partitions and concrete partitions and concrete floors for sanitation and fire protection. Walls, inside and outside of cells, and metal work kept well painted so as to permit flushing with hose, or washing. Metal work and especially points and corners well scraped before repainting (metal brush and putty knife useful.)

Segregation

Enough separated sections or cells to permit segregration of sexes, of young and old, of white and colored, of those awaiting trial from sentenced prisoners. The quarters for women entirely separated from men's sections and preferably a matron in attendance.

Sanitation

Toilets in all cells or accessible to all cells in each section; shower baths with adequate drainage; simple construction of above, to minimize breakage; personal cleanliness and cleanliness of building required; spraying or ample scrubbing with soap and hot water in order to prevent, or at least minimize, vermin and rats.

Beds

Metal beds of simple but strong construction; preferably whole perforated bottoms, welded so as to reduce presence of vrmin; removable mattress covers; blankets kept clean and folded or rolled (after airing during day time frequent washing or spraying of beds.

Heat, Light and Ventilation

Direct light from windows, open sections of which should be screened against flies; interior of cells painted white, or light color, with artificial lights where necessary, to thoroughly light all parts of cell; cells sufficiently open to allow for ventilation; windows to be kept clean; uniformly distributed heat.

Food

Plain, but wholesome food, properly cooked and varied in kind; including greens, and prunes or other fruits for purgative purposes, especially where littl work or exercise is possible; table and benches in corridor rather than use of cells as place for eating meals; all eat at a fixed time and scrap and utensils collected and removed immediately afterwards; food prepared and cooked on jail premises.

Administration

Some one actually in charge with definite responsibility and authority to insist upon compliance with regulations; submitting each newcomer to bath, airing or fumigating of clothes, medical examination if feasible, and instructon as to required conduct while confined; frequent (not less than daily) visits of inspection by warden or person in charge; organized system of routine for cleaning and care of cells; plan for isolation of prisoners who will not conform; means of communication from prisoners in case of fire or sickness, through use of trustees or otherwise.

FOR THOSE WHO REMAIN

When death visits a home, the first concern is to perform the last service to the loved one in a becoming manner. What ever is done must express all the reverance and affection that is felt at such a time. But in addition to this a further responsibilty rests upon the funeral director. It is his privilege and duty to lessen as far as lies with in his power, the burdens laid upon those who remain. By countless little acts of thoughtfulness he can make the way easier for them.

We consider this part of our work as important as any other. Our highest aim is to have our patrons look upon us as trusted friends, ready and anxious to render sympathetic assistance to those who remain behind.

Washington And Peiping Far Apart In Miles—Telephones

Washington, D. C., and Peiping, China are far apart, both in miles and in telephone development. These two cities, situated half-way around the globe from each other, have a combined population of 2,000,000 people. Peiping's population is three times that of Washington, but the nation's capital, with a little more than 500,000 people served by 179,000 telephones has nearly 14½ times as many telephones as this ancient city, which is served by 12,400 instruments. In the nation's capital there are now 35 telephones for each 100 of its population as compared with less than one telephone for each 100 people in Peiping, according to Telephone and Telegraph Statistics of the World, compiled by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

San Francisco, second in world telephone development, with nearly 200,000 more people than Washington, is served by 238,400 telephones. The third city in telephone density in the world is Stockholm with a population of 438,000 and 140,000 telephones. Denver, Colorado with 298,000 people has 85,200 telephones or 28 instruments for each 100 of its population. Vancouver stands fifth with 189,000 population and approximately 52,000 telephones.

In number of telephones New York City leads the world. Here the population is 7,180,000 with 1,495,900 instruments or 20.83 telephones for each 100 of its people. Chicago with a population of a little more than half that of New York, 3,575,000, is served by 799,120 telephones, which is equivalent to 22.35 for each 100 of its population.

London has more people than any other city in the world, but in telephone development it is in 26th place. Here there is a population of 9,170,000 served by 831,800 telephones or 9 instruments for each 100 people.

World telephone development on January 1 of last year showed the United States to have more than 51 per cent of the 32,495,855 telephones in the world. Another interesting feature is that 62 per cent of the world's telephones are privately operated. In this country, the report shows, there are 13.29 telephones for each 100 people. Canada stands second in telephone development with 11.15 instruments for each 100 of its population, while in Russia telephone density stands at the bottom of the list with .35 telephones for each 100 of its population.

Local Telephone Development Far Exceeds Foreign Nations

Telephones serving Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia as compared with the small number in operation in many foreign countries with far greater populations refute the old adage that "comparisons are odious." In this case they are illuminating. All Bell or Bell connected telephones may now be interconnected with the greater number of telephones throughout the world.

Maryland with its population in excess of 1,600,000 is served by 208,523 telephones. Compare this with Brazil with over 31,000,000 people and only served by 170,800 telephones. Other South American countries with large populations and small telephone development are Chile with 46,000 telephones, Colombia, 29,900, Peru, 17,200, Uruguay, 42,700, and Venezuela, about 20,000 telephones.

In Virginia there are now approximately 198,000 telephones serving a population of 2,422,000 people as compared with 189,200 telephones in Poland serving a population of 27,000,000. Czechoslovakia has a population of about 13,600,000 with only 169,000 telephones. Finland, another country with a population well up in the millions has 139,700 telephones. Other countries with large populations and small telephone development are China with 154,000 telephones and New Zealand with 155,000 telephones.

West Virginia with a population of 1,730,000 is now served by 126,400 telephones. Compare this with 111,150 telephones in Hungary where the population is about 8,000,000. Latvia has 62,170 telephones and a population of about 2,000,000. Jugo-Slavia with 12,000,000 people is served by 47,215 telephones. The Irish Free State is served by 33,450 telephones, Bulgaria, 20,200, Mexico, 101,200 and British India, 58,200.

The District of Columbia, a city in itself, with the greatest telephone development among the larger cities of the world, is served by 195,225 telephones for an estimated population of 506,300. Compare this telephone development with Buenos Aires, which has an estimated population of 2,970,000 and 179,150 telephones. Vienna with a population of 1,900,000 is served by 160,000 telephones. Tokio with 5,486,000 people has the same number of telephones as Washington—195,225. Moscow with its 3,700,000 population has 117,600 telephones and the Hague with a population slightly in excess of Washington—508,000—has 48,300 telephones. Mexico City with 1,100,000 people is served by 51,500 telephones.
