CAMPAIGN AGAINST EXCESSIVE DRINKING

WILL CONDCCT EDUCATION CAMPAIGN FOR MODERATION

In New York this week the Council for Moderation launched an educational campaign against excessive drinking among the American people. At the organization's headquarters, Everett Colby, President of the Council, said:

'In making this announcement on behalf of the Council for Moderation, I want to make it absolutely clear that we do not intend to be participants in a wet or dry political controversy. The Council is exactly what its name implies. It is a group who think that moderation is better than excess.

'The Council proposes over a period of years to employ the best available educational methods to create an attitude of individual responsibility toward the use of liquor.'

'The purpose of the Council is to enlist the cooperation of the American people, irrespective of race, color or creed, in a movement to curb excess in the use of alcoholic beverages. It will pursue an educational program but will resort to no political or legislative action.

'The Council, recognizing that excessive drinking is a social and public menace, has decided to announce in a general way its attitude towards some of the problems involved.

'The Council will not be occupied with attempts to reform the drunkard, who has already become addicted to the use of alcohol. He can only be dealt with individually as a social problem by agencies which are engaged in alleviating the conditions of wretchedness which follow upon excessive drinking.

'Nor will the Council be concerned with prosecuting drunkards or intoxicated drivers. This is outside of our field of work. Our task is to give warning that alcoholic beverages, if consumed at all, must be taken with caution, and that over indulgence is a socially reprehensive thing. Intoxicated drivers and pedestrians however present a problem which the Council hopes to be able to deal with in other ways.'

A RED LETTER DAY FOR KENNEDYVILLE M. P. CHURCH

Last Sunday was known as 'Dollar Day' in the M. P. Church.

The day was just fine, and christian fellowship seemed to prevail through out all the services.

The church was decorated with baskets of lovely cut flowe rs, of most every color. At 10 a. m. the Supt. Mr. Joe McHenry opened the school session with a large attendance. After this session the pastor, Rev. W. F. Bauscher, delivered a wonderful sermon, theme, 'Joseph in New Home.' The choir selections were: 'To God Be the Glory,' also 'Love At Home.'

3 p. m. Rev. W. A. Donoway of Wesley Chapel, of Kent, brought the message, theme, 'Passive Christianity and Active Christianity,' It was a strong message to the Christian to, Go Forward. The special music for this service consisted of two lovely solos, one sung by Mr. Lester Coleman, of Baltimore City; the other by Mr. Jesse Downey, of Rock Hall and a beautiful selection from Rev. Bauscher's family.

7.30 p. m. Mr. Coleman gave a splendid talk in telling the story of 'Paul' and his co-workers.

8 p. m. a fine address by Mr. Downey. The special music for this service was a song service, solo by Mr. Coleman, entitled, 'My Father Watches Over Me,' and a pretty solo by Mr. Downey.

The pastor with five other male voices sang beautifully and very touchingly, 'The Old Rugged Cross,' and then another beautiful selection from the Bauscher Quartette. This was a happy day for every one and will be long remembered. The Offering for the day was $94.85. The pastor had offered a gift of a little 'Pearl Cross,' made in Jerusalem for each one who brought a dollar in the little envelopes which had been previously given out. Also to each one who contributed $5.00 would be given a 'New Testament' printed in Jerusalem, the back of which was made of Olive wood from the Holy Land.

The Men's Bible Class presented their President of the class, Mr. Wm. T. Hague, with one of these new Testaments, which he accepted with many thanks and a heart full of appreciation.

One Present.

Baby Talks By Telephone

New Britain, Conn.—Teaching children how to use the telephone has been beneficial in innumerable cases. This knowledge stood the mother of a little girl well recently when out in her back yard she looked up and saw her small daughter trying to get out of an open second story window. Realizing instantly that the little girl liked to answer the telephone, the mother called "Will you answer the telephone for mother?" The little girl immediately got down from the window and ran to the telephone, while the mother rushed upstairs to close the window. Members of the family who had previously laughed at the mother for teaching her small daughter how to use the telephone now applauded her thoughtfulness, since in this instance the child's knowledge and her willingness to answer the telephone for her mother probably saved her life.

Washington, D. C.—A little girl six years old probably saved her mother's life by calling the police. On noticing that her mother had fallen into a coma and did not respond to the child's attempt to waken her, the little girl ran to the telephone and screamed to the operator: "I want a cop. Mother's been hurted." The operator connected the child with a police station where she asked the officer answering, "Are you a cop?" and told him to hurry over to her home at once. "Yes, but where are you?"

"Right here on this telephone."

"But where is the telephone? Where do you live?"

"I don't know."

The police continued talking to the child while the call was being traced by the telephone supervisor.

TO ORGANIZE EASTERN SHORE CONSERVATION CLUB

MEETING TO BE HELD AT CENTREVILLE OCTOBER 9TH

An organization meeting of an Eastern Shore Conservation Club will be held at Centreville on Wednesday evening, October 9th.

All interested in the sporting and commercial resources of the Chesapeake Bay country are invited to be present at this meeting which will start at 6 p. m. with a Dutch treat dinner, the general meeting to start at 7.30 p. m.

In speaking of the organization of conservation clubs, Mr. E. Lee LeCompt, State Game Warden, said:

'The Eastern Shore comprising what is known as a part of the Chesapeake Bay Country, should be a hunters' and fishermen's paradise not only including the forms of wildlife which attract red blooded men to the outdoors for a day's hunt in quest of game and game fish, but the seafood industry should be of uppermost in our thoughts and minds and we should give serious thought to the possibilities that our supply of natural resources relative to woods and waters could be greatly increased rather than receive the reports which have been circulated that the supply of oysters especially is almost exhausted.'

'There should be no question as to the need for organizations to promote better hunting and fishing conditions not only on the Eastern Shore but in the entire State. Many people seem to think conservation means a saving of wildlife and fishing by prohibitive means only. Legislation cannot entirely save our natural resources. The sort of conservation the average man is interested in is that which will conserve game and fish so that there will be more hunting and fishing and more oysters and crabs for the benefit of our commercial fishermen, not only for the present generation but also for those to follow. This can be done through organization. If we were to leave nature alone to take back the areas now cultivated and were to stop the pollution of our streams, we would make a great step forward in conservation but as we are to continue to cultivate our land and pollute our streams, it is necessary that conditions be provided that will make it possible for game and fish to live so that everyone may enjoy a day in the great outdoors. If sportsmen will organize and follow a definite plan, astounding results can be secured.'
