RADIANT LIVING

Outward Bound

By Rev. C. M. Griffeth
Pastor Calvary M. E.Church
Sudlersville

Always have I been fascinated by her charming beauty and graceful lines, but never so much as when looking up from her deck at the full spread of her windfilled canvas. There is no other experience just like that of standing aft at the wheel, drenched wih spray, outward bound across the heaving waters.

With the twang of the sea air in my lungs and the music of whistling ropes snapping canvas, and creaking blocks, in my ears, I stand again spell bound at the wheel and watch her long nose as it dips into the on rushing sea and then rises high above the line of the distant horizon.

God pity the man who is shut up in his little office, a prisoner of dull routine! There he sits day by day chained to his desk, his eyes glued to his task, a slave! Oh that he too might know the lure and the charm of the open sea!

Ofen when so incarcerated by enslaving routine have I leaned back from the desk and shutting my eyes, I have again stood at the wheel and rode the heaving swel, outward bound.

Thank God for the imagination that affords escape for the jaded mind!

What if you are a prisoner at a desk or at a bench, catch the spirit of being again 'Outward bound!' Get a new interest. Take up a new work, a new study, a new investment. Strike out for some worthwhile accomplishment!

Then each morning, as you jump from your bed and are slipping into your clothes, there is a new glow upon your face, a new zest in your step, a new command in your voice, a new aspiration in your heart, for today you are again 'Outward bound!'

NOW AND THEN

NOW AND THEN

AUTUMN LEAVES

The leaves are falling, falling,
The trees are getting bare,
To me its just appalling
That no one seems to care!

In parks and open spaces
In rusty heaps they lie,
And men with vacant faces
Unheeding pass them by.

The numbers keep on mounting
By thousands every day,
But no one thinks of counting
Before they're swept away.

To High-brows and to Mytsics
Numbers have no appeal,
But lovers of statistics
Will know just how I feel.

But what's the use of grumbling?
I'll never know, I fear,
How many leaves come tumbling
From London's trees each year!

W. H. B.

We are glad to know that the Firemen's Band will continue their weekly meeting. The Firemen are an unselfish lot of people, especially the Volunteers. Night after night when others are lying quietly in their beds, these firemen are very probably out fighting the flames, and keeping the demon from destroying everything.

It would be a good thing for the citizens who owe them so much, to unite in giving them social pleasures in the Firemen's Hall.

HAWTHORNE'S ENGLISH HOUSE

A romantic house overlooking the River Mersey at Rock Ferry, Birkenhead, Cheshire, England, which was occupied more than eighty years ago by NathanielHawthorne, is to be converted into a block of flats .

For many years this century-old house ,which stands in the peaceful residential retreat of Rock Park, has been the Mecca of literary pilgrimages by writers, historians and lovers of Hawthorne's works from all parts of the world, and in particular from the United States. It remains almost the same as when Hawthorne lived there.

For about a year the house has stood vacant, the owner being unable to rent or sell it. The transformation will soon take place.

Hawthorne and his family lived there from 1853 to 1857, during the years he was American Consul in Liverpool, and he regaredd it as his 'dream home.' A curious aspect of the roof from which the author had a fine view of the river. It was in this room that he wrote his book 'Our Old Home', in which appear many charmingly sentimental allusions to the house itself and the district around.

Many famous literary personages of the day paid visits to the 'dream home.' Among Hawthorne's friend were Dickens, Barry Cornwall, the poet, and Harriet Martineau. He be came so attached to the old house that when the family was returning to the United States, his son records: 'We were at sea with our home 3,000 miles behind across the trembling ocean, but my father still leaned on the rail and looked back toward the Old Home he would never see again.'

And in his last illness Hawthorne said, 'If I could go to England, I think the sea and the sight of the Old Home would set me right.' —N. Y. Times.

Next Thursday will be Thanksgiving Day, when our President urges us to give thanks to the great Father of Good. It would be a fine thing if one could begin now to count up all of ones blessings. We have so many that pass unheeded by.

It is a lovely custom which dates back to the beginning of time, that of bringing the fruits of the earth to adorn the churches of the great Giver, and after the services are over, giving them to those who need them. All the spring and summer the churches have been dressed with flowers and blossoms. Now we bring them when they have reached fruition.

THANKSGIVING

(From the Farm Journal)

A Weary stretch of ocean coast,
With prospect bleak and bare—
The sullen sky of early fall
And joyless, chilly air.
Yet, grateful for their scanty good
The Pilgrims' thinning ranks
Knelt down, with only Faith and Hope,
And gave God earnest thanks.

If they whose harvest was but woe
Could skyward turn their gaze,
And offer up their hearts, content
To wait for better days,
How should the vaults of heaven ring
With praises from a land
High-heaped with almost ev'ry gift
That God holds in His hand?

—Author Unknown.

What about
THE MARRIAGE PROBLEM

IN THE YEAR 2035 . . . Will there be marriage in any form? Will alimony be abandoned or expanded? Will divorce be easier or not tolerated at all? Will only the healthy be permitted to marry? Will economic independence of women make wedded life unnecessary?

A number of nationally known writers and leaders of advanced thought were asked for their opinions on this subject and their conclusions are given in a highly interesting series of articles that will be published in this paper.

Here are a few of those participating in this discussion:

Arnold Bennett
Warner Fabian
Rebecca West
Hendrik Van Loon
Jean N. Norris
Albert Payson Terhune
Samuel Hopkins Adams
Margaret Turnbull
E. Phillips Oppenheim

These and other famous people will tell through these columns what they think of the future of marriage. Some believe it will approach perfection; others foresee less hopeful developments. Even if you do not agree with some of the writers you will find these articles of unusual interest.

"Nerves" "NERVES" "Nerves"

Dr. Miles NERVINE "Did the work" says Miss Glivar WHY DON'T YOU TRY IT?

After more than three months of suffering from a nervous ailment, Miss Glivar used Dr. Miles Nervine which gave her such splendid results that she wrote us an enthusiastic letter.

If you suffer from "Nerves." If you lie awake nights, start at sudden noises, tire easily, are cranky, blue and fidgety, your nerves are probably out of order.

Quiet and relax them with the same medicine that "did the work" for this Colorado girl.

Whether your "Nerves" have troubled you for hours or for years, you'll find this time-tested remedy effective.

At Drug Stores 25c and $1.00.
