Maryland Musings

A sure way of inviting trouble is to stand in front of a horse-drawn mower sickle bar with the clutch in gear. A still surer invitation is to attempt to clean a mower knfe or jammed grass under similar circumstances. In every State there are a few farmers with mutilated ankle and fingers bearing testimony to the hazards of oiling or fixing a mower, binder or combine while in gear. You might get by wth it, but the odds are against you.

Since corn for poultry feeding has become so scarce and supplies of alfalfa meal are limited, there is danger of laying flocks suffering from vitamin A deficiency, says Dr. Morley A. Jull, head of the University of Maryland poultry department. As a substitute for these feeds, both of which are good sources of this important vitamin, he recommends that poultrymen provide their birds with grass or other green feed, either in the form of a succulelent range or as silage. For information on how to grow green feed for poultry write the poultry department at College Park for a new bulletin on "Good Pastures for Poultry" by Dr. Jull and Wade H. Rice.

Every important phase of the war problem for poultrymen will be included in the program of the eighth annual exposition and convention of the Northeastern Poultry Producers' Council, which will be held at Hotel New Yorker, New York City, on August 25—27.

The trend of prices received by farmers in Maryland has been similar to that for the United States as a whole except that Maryland prices have been at a sllightly higher level, according to a bulletin on "Trends in Wartime Farm Prices in Maryland", just issued by the Agricultural Experiment Station at College Park. Ask for Bulletin No. A25.

Good Fresh Firewood

Some kinds of trees make good fuelwood even when freshly cut, because they contain little water. Among these are black locust, shagbark hickory, white ash, American beech, and red pine.

Breaking In Paint Brushes

To insure their longer life, new paint brushes should be broken in carefully before they are used. One of the best ways is to soak the brush in raw linseed oil for several days. Then dip it into the painting material you intend to use and draw it across a rough, unplaned board several times. This will remove any loose bristles that were not securely fastened during the manufacturing process. If the brush is put in paint before being soaked in oil, the porous bristles will absorb pigment, causing them to stiffen and lose their flexibility.
