Brazil Collects Scrap Drive

A recent scrap rubber campaign in Brazil brought in approximately 6,613,000 pounds of rubber for the United Nations war effort.

Croats Ordered To Cut Corn

Becauee corn fields are "excellent hideouts for partisans" the Croat Minister for the Interior has ordered all farmers to cut their fields by the end of this month. If they are not cut by then they will be burned. This information reported by U. S. government monitors, came from a dispatch to newspapers by M. T. I., controlled Hungarian news agency.

Chinese Enrollment Doubles

Twice as many Chinese students are enrolled in college and technical schools since the outbreak of the war, according to the Chunking radio, which says there are now 63,605 students compared to 31,188 at the beginning of the war. A third of the number are now technical students. Science and art are the most popular subjects.

Cut Dutch Horse Meat Ration

Nazi occupation authorities in Holland have even cut the Dutch horse meat ration one-third. The weekly meat ration coupons, which used to be good for 150 gram of horse meat now are good for only 100 grams, or about two ounces, according to a report published in a German language daily in Holland.

Pool Coal In Austrialia

Coal stocks of consumers throughout Austrialia will be cut by 12½ percent and stocks held by all users will be regarded as part of the common pool, according to a recent announcement by the Commonwealth Coal Commissioner. Coal production is highest it has been since the war began but it still does not equal the demand of war industries.

Approve Inter-American University

The creation of an Inter-American University of Panama was unanimously approved at the recent Conference of Ministers and Directors of Education of the American Republics. Addressing the delegates, President Ricardo Adolfo de la Guardia of Panama expressed the belief that the conference would bring good results "for the social and cultural development of the 21 republics.....We are taking part in the most bloody and terrible struggle that history has ever seen..... ....All this sacrifice and suffering" he declared, "has meaning and value through the certainty that we are fighting to abolish injustice and tyranny in the organization of nations."

British Women Get Spider-Web

Collecting spider-web for precision sighting instruments is one of the duties performed by women in the British Auxiliary Territorial Service. October spider-web in Great Britian according to experts, is most suitable for the sighting instruments. The collection requires a delicate touch and a steady hand. The woman web collector catches a spider with one hand and drops it from one hand to the other. As the spider falls, it spins a fine web. This strand is attached to a metal frame smeared with shellac and the frames are stored for future use. When this fine strand is not fine enough ATS craftswomen split a strand in two under the microscope.

Entertainment Goes On

Women of half-a-dozen nationalities are serving as entertainers in the Front Line Entertainment Services with the Red Army. Shows are staged in dug-outs, dwelling houses, in open fields and woods. Concerts often take place not more than a few hundred yards from the enemy lines. Here is a description of such a concert from a letter written by a young Czechoslovak girl singer to her fiance who is a bomber pilot in Britian, "Just as I began on my second song there was a sudden scream as a shell went over. Then the sound of enemy bombers. The whole building was rocked by a terrific explosion. Then the lights went out. I tried to keep on singing but the smell of cordite was too great. It was in my nose, in my throat. I felt as if I was choking. Then mercifully someone lit a kerosene lamp. In the dim light and through the dust I could make out some wreckage, and the Red Cross workers moving forward with stretchers. Then my throat and eyes cleared and I fixed my eyes on what had been the roof at the end of the hall and I went on singing."

Fear Japs Ruin Quinine Plantations

Fears that the Japanese are stripping the quinino forests of Java and that for years after allied liberation of the island, the world may be without its great quinine production were expressed in a Melbourne, Australia Dutch-language publication by Netherlands East Indies experts. In peacetime, Java produced 95 percent of the world's supply of quinine, the most effective drug in the treatment of malaria.

Cinchona Seeds To Lation America

Since the day when two million cinchona seeds were snatched from under the noses of the Japanese after the fall of Bataan, in the Philippines more than 110,000 seedlings grown from these seeds have been shipped to Peru, Ecuador, El Salvador, and Nicaragua to start the quinine industry for the Western Hemisphere. When the Japs closed in on Bataan, an American army colonel packed two million seeds in two small cans and set out for Australia in a Flying Fortress. Two Jap planes attacked but the Fortress reached Port Darwin after dark with one of its motors silenced. From here he took the seeds to General MacArthur's headquarters, thence by boat to San Fransiscco and by army plane to Washington where he turned them over to the Department of Agriculture.

Fricadellons With Noodles

The next thing to a dinner in a dish is a dinner the housewife can serve on one dish, regardless of whether it's cooked together or not. Such a dish is this of fricadellons with noodles. Too, this is an excellent way to use left-over meat.

FRICADELLONS With NOODLES

1 large onion, chopped
2 tablespoons fat
1 cup dry bread softened in
1 cup water
2 cups left-over ground meat
1 egg
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
⅛ teaspoon allspice
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
3 cups cooked noodles
½ cup farm milk

Brown onion lightly in 1 tablespoon fat. Press water from bread; add onion, meat, egg and seasonings. Mix well. Shape into small balls or flat cakes and saute until crisp in remaining fat. Moisten noodles with warm milk and reheat. Make a ring of noodles, fill center with succotash and border with the fricadellons. Serves 4

Maryland Musings

Irish potatoes were designated by the War Food Administration as the Victory Food Selection for the period October 21 to November 6. Housewives, food merchants, the restaurant trade, and producers are called on to join in an intensive campaign to consume and store more potatoes during the heavy marketing period. Farmers at Government request, have produced the largest crop in history. The most pressing problem now is one of storage. To avoid loss, this huge crop must be stored safely before freezing weather. Farm and commercial storage is crowded. Consumers who can store potatoes safely are urged to buy potatoes in bulk at harvest time. Other users of all kinds are asked to help by buying immediate needs and storing supplies for later use. The value of potatoes as a food is being emphasized to encourage their greater use during the heavy market period.

AROUND LYNCH

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Walbert of Church Hill, visited Mr. and Mrs. William E. Dwyer on Sunday.

Dr. and Mrs. Henry Wilson visited Mrs. Wilson's parents Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Copper on Friday.

Private Elwood Usilton writes from Camp Wheeler, Georgia, that he is in fine health and enjoying his life in the Army.

Mr. Wroth Stavely visited Wilmington on Wednesday.

Corporal Marion Counsell was the guest of his wife and son last weekend.

From where I sit . . .

by Joe Marsh

"Keeping store," Sam Abernethy says, "can teach a person plenty about human nature.

"Now coffee rationing's lifted, folks ain't a-breakin' their necks tryin' to buy all they can. Knowin' they can have it if they want it, they ain't so all-fired anxious to get it."

Sam's right, as usual. I don't crave that second cup half as much as when I couldn't get it.

But that's human nature . . . Like allowing moderate beer in the Army's post exchanges. Instead of leading to more drinking, the OWI report says it works out just the opposite—often as not the men choose soda-pop or milk, with beer right there and no restrictions on it.

But if it wasn't there, like in the last War, the story might be altogether different.

From where I sit, that's how it is with Americans. Tell 'em they can't have a thing and by golly, they'll find ways to get it. But admit their right to have it, and their own good sense will lead to moderation.

PRODUCE MORE FOOD FOR FREEDOM

the* CONSERVATION WAY

One of the chief reasons our ancestors left Europe was to find freedom. They desired to escape the oppression of the Old World. One of the restraining influences there was the necessity for conserving the natural resources. Conservation therefore seemed to be one of the distasteful restrictions of liberty that the colonists were trying to escape.

This may largely be the cause of our swift and spectacular wasting of our resources on a grand scale, particularly in the last 50 years. The western range lands have been ravaged and gullied as a result of overgrazing. Rivers have been contaminated by the dumping of filth until they are no longer habitable for fish or useful for recreation or fit for domestic water supply.

Torrents of water rushing off stripped hillsides have intensified the savagery of floods, destroying property and lives and choking stream channels and costly reservoirs with sediment. Forests, that most of our forbears thought were "inexhaustible" have vanished before the combined onslaughts of axe and fire. Forest fires burning uncontrolled, wiped out not only forests, but towns and human lives as well. The land itself, in many sections, suffered a fate similar to that of the forests, and ghost farms like ghost towns, mark regions where the exploitations was fiercest.

From the standpoint of conservation, natural resources are divided into two groups. One of these comprises the resources that under good management produce a growth or an increase, renew themselves or can be maintained indefinitely as a continuous source of wealth. In this category are soils, forests, range lands, wild life and to some extent water power.

The other group includes the resources that are depleted or used up by use even under the best management. In this category come iron, coal oil and other mineral resources.

If we are to keep this country on the side of the "haves", Conservation must be given immediate consideration. It is not for one to conserve and one to throw away but for all to conserve together if this country is to remain great.

The Supervisors of the Kent and Queen Anne's Soil Conservation Districts stand ready and willing to help all farmers conserve the elements falling under the first group, namely: soils, forests, pasture lands, wildlife, and waterpower. Let us go over the top in conservation the same as we did in the recent Bond drive. They both mean the same thing in the final analysis, "SERVE BY SAVING."
