PRODUCE MORE FOOD FOR FREEDOM the CONSERVATION WAY

Farm plans were prepared for farms owned by the Old Line Construction Company and Charles P. Slagle during the month of November. Approximately 5,000 feet of drainage ditch were dug on the Thomas W. Eliason farm operated by Mr. Arthur Burris in Quaker Neck.

The construction of drainage ditches and erosion control structures has been severely curtained in the Kent District by wet weather. If the wet weather continues, there is little chance of the Soil Conservation District doing any more construction work until spring, except possibly for a limited amount of fence row removal and similar types of work.

The district plans to devote most of its time to farm planning this winter in preparation for next construct o nand planting season. The supervisors of the district urge all farmers having a drainage or erosion problem to contact them as soon as possible if they want help in correcting or solving their problems. The district only has a limited amount of technical help available, but would like to help all of those farmers who need assistance. This can be easily done if the farmers will let the supervisors of the District know of their problems and the approximate date that they will be ready to start work on them.

Plan next year's work this winter and many hours of valuable time will be saved.

D.A.R. Supports Approved Schools

The Old Kent Chapter D.A.R. met with Mrs. George Baldwin. Mrs. Harrison Vickers spoke on the Approved Schools, for the underprivileged who cannot otherwise get an education. Two are supported wholly by the D.A.R. with a small allowance from State and local governments. They are Kate Duncan Smith School with 25 years of service among the mountain whites. It is 75 miles from the railroad on from any other schools, and gives a vocational training. It is not a boarding school nor one where the pupils pay for anything except schoolbooks. The other is Tomassee School in Tennessee founded in 1919. Its studies include industrial arts and agriculture. The D.A.R. contributed to 14 other schools which are partially supported by other agencies.

Everything at the Kate Duncan Smith indicated that the money given by the Daughters has been carefully and wisely spent. The school's influence on the community shows. Morals are better early marriages are not so common and some homes have been improved. The poverty of these people is pitiful and their physical condition shows it. All are undernourished. Some of the children come to school without breakfast and bring no lunch. Their more fortunate companions share with them. Here the school may help by serving hot soup or cocoa at noon. It cannot do this without money. Contributions are needed for building an auditorium and a gymnasium. The boys now have no place for indoor exercise.

The Regent Miss Mildred Hoyle, distributed the First Annual Year Book, as a surprise, to members of Old Kent Chapter. Miss Hoyle gave a little talk on old singing books as she exhibited them.

Vegetable and fruit growers are invited to bring their production problems to the Peninsula Horticultural Society meetings at Salisbury, Maryland, December 13 and 14. A staff of experts from Maryland, Delaware, and Virginia State colleges, and the U.S.D.A. will be on hand to provide answers.

The larger the turkey to be roasted for a Christmas or holiday dinner, the lower should be the cooking heat, to make sure thick parts are well cooked without scorching the skin or thin-fifleshed parts. A 10-pound bird needs a temperature of 300 degrees, but 20 to 30-pound bird needs only 250 degrees temperature.

Tomato juice, like citrus fruits is a good source of Vitamin C, and helps to protect a person from colds and other winter troubles often due to inadequate nutrition.

Now that national agricultural production goals have been announced, Maryland state goals will be proposed in early December meetings.

While game birds and animals may be kept well in frozen food lockers, there are legal limits in most states on the time for such storage.

RAILROADING IS People

Nothing in this world is as interesting as—people! Nothing is as important as people . . . people who live and grow, love and get married . . . people with their habits and manners, their likes and dislikes. Nothing really matters but—people.

The city? We think of it as people. The countryside is people. And so is the railroad . . . just folks—all of them!

Locomotives, cars, equipment . . . all these have been thought out, designed, engineered, developed and built by people for people. They are of value only as they serve people.

We of the Pennsylvania Railroad try to keep in mind always: everything we do is measured by how we help people, how we get along with people, how we treat people. Our greatest reward is in having people think well of us . . . because we have served them well!

Miss five-year-old Sets up Housekeeping

ONE of the nicer things about being a little girl is having a doll's house. For here in miniature is a house all her own, where she can play in the wonderful make-believe world of childhood. Just as her brother plays with blocks and airplanes, it's natural for her to "play house," for some day she will be making a real home for others.

To this five year old "lady of the house" the kitchen is the most important room in the doll house. For from her mother's kitchen come most of her childish pleasures . . . ginger cookies fresh from the oven, a cold glass of milk out of the big refrigerator. As she grows up, she will take her place in the kitchen, giving mother a hand with the dishes, whipping up a pan of fudge for her school chums. Later still, before she marries, she'll learn from her mother the family secrets of cooking, baking, canning and preserving. Even though she may live far from city gas mains, if her mother has a lovely Shorgas kitchen, equipped with time and labor saving gas appliances, she'll get the right start and learn to love homemaking and the things that make a house a home.

If you are planning to modernize your kitchen with Shorgas, be sure to see the scale models of tomorrow's kitchen equipment that your Shorgas representative is now displaying. With this miniature equipment, you can actually plan your kitchen, see just how it will look!
