

WOMAN'S COLUMN

Quite a number of Washington Women gathered at the home of Mrs. Kelly the head of the League of G. O. P. women voters. These women gathered in order to defend the Constitution, but while doing so they enjoyed a delightful luncheon of broiled chicken and hot southern biscuit.

And the Governor was there to tell them how very capable their sex was and what wonderful things they might do.

Among the number of guests were three, who have decided leanings towards being mistress of the White House. Mrs. Borah, Mrs. Wadsworth and Mrs. Vanderburg. They all have on their faces a 'Barkis will-ing' expression. Which will be able in the future to write, 'My Day at the White House'?

Ambassador and Mrs. Bingham Made Valuable Gift to Stratford.

Mrs. Robert Worth Bingham, wife of the United States Ambassador to Great Britain, crossed the ocean to be present at a meeting of the Robert E. Lee Memorial Foundation, held a week or so ago in New York. Mrs. Bingham is chairman of the House Furnishing Committee of the foundation, which is restoring Stratford Hall, at Stratford, Va., the birthplace of General Robert E. Lee.

Ambassador and Mrs. Bingham recently presented to the foundation a full-length portrait of Queen Caroline, wife of George II, which is to be hung in the Great Hall at Stratford. It's a charming thing to have done, for it is said that the Queen gave £500 for the restoration of Stratford Hall, after it was destroyed by fire early in the eighteenth century. The portrait of Caroline in her royal robes of velvet, brocade and facings of ermine, painted by Charles Jervas, is regal looking. Beside her on a table is her crown and through the open window one glimpses the English landscape. The Irish portrait painter, Jervas, was the subject of Pope's 'Epistle to Jervas.' Caroline was a woman of a forceful personality who absolutely guided, by her adroitness, the affairs of state, in which she took a powerful part during the life of George II and until her death in 1737.

'You white folks makes a heap or trouble for yo'se'ves,' says the Reverend Evangelist, Sin-Splitting Samuel. 'Y'all gits religion, and den you jest sets back and looks solemn and holy, and don't pleasure yo'se'ves no mo'. Well, dat ain't right. De grown-up people is God's chillun, jest like de young 'uns is we's chillun.

'When you gives yo' baby a piece er candy, you wants him to be happy, don't you? Well, when God give you religion, he want you to enjoy hit, too. Don't set around and mope and ack so holy, like you sick. Grown folks gittin' religion is jest like de baby sittin' candy.'
