Sylvia Sidney and Spencer Tracy in "Fury"

Sylvia Sidney and Spencer Tracy are the brilliant co-stars of "Fury," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture coming on Monday and Tuesday, June 29 and 30 to the New Lyceum Theatre.

And in this powerful screen play, directed by Fritz Lang, they give performances that will linger long in your memory!

The narrative, based on an original story by Norman Krasna, has to do with the tragic circumstances that separate two young lovers on the eve of their marriage. Tracy, as the man, is arrested as a kidnap suspect and apparently burned to death by a furious mob that storms and fires the prison in which he is held.

His life wrecked, and his mind twisted by the horror he has been through, he goes into hiding and contrives to have twenty-two of the mobsters convicted of his murder!

As a hard-hitting indictment of a national shame, "Fury" stands out as one of the fine pictures of the year, for its power lies in its altogether objective approach to the subject of mass lawlessness.

In addition to its social value, however, it is tremendous screen fare, acted with unusual skill by the co-stars and a cast that includes such sterling performers as Walter Abel, Bruce Cabot, Edward Ellis, Walter Brennan, George Walcott, Frank Albertson and many others.

See "Fury" if you want drama that "gets" you! It is a grand treat in the acting, photographic, directing and story departments—a personal triumph for Fritz Lang, who sends it forth as his first American picture.

Tenth of the Mary Boland-Charlie Ruggles combinations to hit the screen, "Early to Bed," latest of the pair's hilarious farces, is by all odds their most successful. The laugh-masterpiece, which comes on Wednesday and Thursday, July 1 and 2 to the New Lyceum Theatre, gives Mary and Charlie a screamingly different plot as a background for their antics.

Ruggles is a mouse-like clerk in a glass eye firm, who has been employed for twenty-six years and has been told he has a bright future. Mary is the Gibson Girl to whom he has been engaged for precisely twenty of those years.

They marry as the picture opens and set out on their honeymoon. Mary has dreamed of Niagara Falls. Charlie, seeking to land a huge glass eye order, heads for a spot known as Ookawookaboogee Lodge. It turns out to be a sanitorium.

Just after Charlie is revealed as a sleep-walker, suspected of "Tiger Man" proclivities during his somnambulistic strolls, the peace of Ookawookaboogee Lodge is shattered by a jewel robbery and a murder. Charlie suspects himself. He is enthusiastically joined in his suspicious by Mary and other guests—or patients.

From this point the plot swings into a completely cockeyed combination of mystery and hilarity, with laughs following each other at breakneck speed. You watch Charlie sleep-walk, and discover what he really does on his trips. You watch the murder reach solution, despite Mary's unconscious accomplishments in mixing things up, and you watch the world's biggest glass eye order being landed.

George Barbier and Gail Patrick head the list of players who make the Boland-Ruggles latest a top comedy. Others of the splendid supporting cast include Robert McWade, Lucien Littlefield and Colin Tapley.

Airplanes falling in twisted, flaming masses, pilots "bailing out" for their lives, shattered nerves, courage and cowardice in one of the world's most hazardous professions—testing new planes for airworthiness —go to make up one of the most exciting pictures of recent months, Columbia's roaring drama, "Devil's Squadron," which comes to a neat three-point landing at the New Lyceum on Friday and Saturday, July 3 and 4, piloted by the stalwart Richard Dix.

There is romance, too, in this action-packed film. Karen Morley, a distinctly capable actress who never seems to make enough pictures, plays opposite Dix. Lloyd Nolan, Shirley Ross, ten-year-old Billy Burrud, Henry Mollison and Gene Morgan also play featured roles with a good deal of skill.

But, of course, it is Richard Dix who shines, as a star should. He is seen in the role of Paul Redmond, a flyer who is dishonorably discharged from the army because of a trick of fate. Dana Kirk, his friend, is superintendent of a testing airport, and gives Redmond his chance to make good.

"Devil's Squadron" speeds to a highly dramatic climax that made every member of the audience yesterday feel as though he himself had just come out of a tail spin. Erle C. Kenton, the director, deserves much credit for the vigorous film. So do Dick Grace, Hollywood stunt man and test pilot, who wrote the original story, and Howard J. Green, Bruce Manning and Lionel Houser, who adapted it. It's all very thrilling.

"George comes from a very poor family."

"Why, they sent him to the university, didn't they?"

"Yes, that's how they got so poor."

HELPED

Ted: 'You complained about having spots before your eyes, so the doctor told you to get a pair of glasses. Did they help you any?'

Ned: 'Sure; now I can see the spots much better.'

FOR THOSE WHO REMAIN

When death visits a home, the first concern is to perform the last service to the loved one in a becoming manner. What ever is done must express all the reverance and affection that is felt at such a time. But in addition to this a further responsibility rests upon the funeral director. It is his privilege and duty to lessen as far as lies with in his power, the burdens laid upon those who remain. By countless little acts of thoughtfulness he can make the way easier for them.

We consider this part of our work as important as any other. Our highest aim is to have our patrons look upon us as trusted friends, ready and anxious to render sympathetic assistance to those who remain behind.
