HISTORY CHESAPEAKE BAY LOG CANOE

many marine architects who marvelled over the perfect lines of the hull.

The "Magic" was built in 1904 on the Green of St. Michaels, Maryland, by Charles Tarr, converted into a gasoline boat and reconditioned again for sailing in later years.

The "Mary Rider" winner of the "Governor's Cup" in 1928, 1929 and 1930 was built in 1877, by Capt. Jim Lowery on Tilghman Island. This remarkable boat unlike the Island Bird who was one of the most famous winners in the old days and of the "Island Blossom," had never heretofore been equipped for racing, having been brought to St. Michaels in her 7th year by Dr. Clay Dodson she was rechristened and called "Martha Dodson" after his wife. Having lived all these years of her life, as an oyster boat she drifted into the hands of different people an eventually was owned by the negro Perry Haskins, from whom I purchased her in 1916. At this time she had been practically abandoned. Her seams were opened and marsh grass was growing through them. She had removed to the logs. This was the nearest approach of an actual resurrection of any of these boats up to the present time.

The "Mayflower" another old noted boat was built in 1880, practically abandoned, was purchased and rebuilt by Howard Strong of Chestertown, Maryland, a grandson of the man who originally had the boat built. neither stem nor stern post. Her washboards were practically gone and her rasing was so rotten it had to be

The resurrection of these boats must have a human appeal to all boat lovers, and it has no doubt lent encouragement and hope to some of these famous old boats themselves that have gone down to Davey Jones Locker, or now lay dying lingering deaths on reefs and bars hoping to catch the fancy of some passerby, always recalling the days of their glorious youth, and who knows but what someone may bring them back some day.
