The Social Wanderer

Dear Roamer:

Never have I seen a summer quite so gay as this one. Seriously, I am almost resorting to an engagament book, like everyone else. It would be nice reading next winter when the days grow cold, the wind whistles and all the visitors have gone. It's just like reading an old diary of by-gone written by the ardent swain. But after all, this is the week of weeks, and the town is so packed with guests that if I attempt to mention them all now, I'd have no room left for aught else.

So first, I'll start with the parties, and then we'll see.

Sunday, the first day of the week, days, or looking over old love letters Mr. and Mrs. William Bryan, and Mr. and Mrs. Mason Wood, entertained at 5 o'clock a number of friends at their apartment in the Baldwin apartments. On Tuesday ,the Garden Club had a delightful meeting, but as I have written that up in a separate article, I'll not go into details here.

Wednesday, Miss Virginia Jones entertained at luncheon bridge, as I told you last week, but the party was so novel, that I can not let it go unmentioned. The bridge end, turned out to be 'exchange bridge,' in which case, everybody received four prizes to start out with. The winners had the choice of two of the loser's prizes by exchange at each change of tables, and so on until the end, but having been a loser, you still came home with a bag of four nice prizes, even if you didn't always have the pick. It really was loads of fun, and the bridge was rushed through, to get to the choosing Miss Miriam Jones, of Baltimore is here this week until Sunday, when she will go to Virginia Beach for the remainder of the summer.

On Wednesday evening, Mr. and Mrs. James G. Beck entertained at a buffet supper, principally in honor of the visiting Becks and their kin. Mr. and Mrs. Beck plan to give a series of suppers throughout the summer, as is a popular custom, when one can't always entertain their many friends at one time.

Thursday, so far, holds the record for three parties in one day. Mrs. Samuel Emory entertained at luncheon, more or less of a family party, but the family of Becks is not small, and so the luncheon was for more than two. At the same hour, Mrs. Dorsey Hines entertained at luncheon. Among her out-of-town guests were Miss Margaret Atkinson, of New York, who will be a guest at Piney Grove for awhile, and Mrs. William Watson, of Philadelphia, who is the guest of her uncle, Mr. Edwin Corwin.

In the late afternoon, on Thursday, Mr. and Mrs. Philip G. Wilmer entertained a number of friends, and so that brings us to Friday and Regatta. The boats are in the river, the first day's races have been run, and from now on one continuous celebration.

Mr. Lewin Wickes, Jr., has as his guest this week, his former room-mate, Miles Kirkpatrick, and yesterday, entertained at a buffet luncheon between the races, at the home of his mother, Mrs. Lewin Wickes.

Miss Harriette Welch, entertained a large number of friends, prior to the dance at the Country Club last evening. Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Geraitis, will return to-day to Jacksonville, Fla., after a visit of two weeks here.

Capt. and Mrs. Eggleston Peach, of Fort DuPont were guests of Mrs. Etta Fountain and Mrs. Herbert Skipper this week, and on Wednesday evening, Mrs. Skipper entertained informally at bridge in their honor. Capt. Peach is being transferred from Fort Du Pont, to the Quarter-master Corps School in Philadelphia this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Decker, of Philadelphia, who were guests last week of Mrs. H. Clay Brown, will be guests this week-end of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Strong.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilpin Brown came yesterday to spend two weeks as the guests of their respective parents.

Dr. and Mrs. Francis Chase, of Utica, N. Y., were guests of Mrs. R. H. Collins, Sr., this week.

Mrs. Henry Kratzer has returned after a two weeks visit to Montown Falls, New York, where she visited friends.

Miss Shirley Fox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Baurice Fox, is visiting friends in Cleveland, Ohio.

Mrs. Franklin Graham and daughter of Philadelphia, are the guests of the former's mother, Mrs. Nettie Peacock.

Mrs. Luke Eberly and children, of Palmyra, N. J., are guests of Mrs. Eberly's father, Mr. H. Theodore Jewell.

Mrs. Paul Adams and daughter, have been visiting relatives at Atlantic City, N. J. On their return home, they were accompanied by Miss Gladys Darby, who is their house guest.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Wheatley and daughter, Francis, of Toronto, Canada, are guests of the former's mother, Mrs. Fannie Wheatley on Front St.

Mrs. John Wilson and her daughter, Miss Maran Wilson, of Rutherford, N. J., have been guests this week of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kibler.

Miss Anne Woolsey, of St. Louis, Mo., is the guest of Mrs. C. Beck Jones.

Miss Ellen Beck, who has spent part of the week here will return with Mrs. Robert Thomas and her children today, as far as New York. There, they will be met by Mr. Thomas, and continue to their home in Hartford, Conn., Mrs. Will Beck will return to New York on Monday.

The line is drawn, and I, a-sailing must go.

You need not think that everything is over this week, for already, there's a luncheon on hand for next week, to be given on Wednesday by Mrs. George Dana.

But now, I am

Nautically, yours,

THE WANDERER.

VISITORS FROM THE SKY

Fourt strangers walked nto the Voshell Grill on Thursday of this week and after a little coaxing on the part of one interested in their appearance told an interesting story over a mug of beer.

They said that they were soldiers of fortune who make their living fighting in any body's war. The party of six included four men and two women, the women being the wives of the two Americans in the party. Of the other, two men one was an Englishman di all the accents and one a French Canadian.

While enroute from Cuba to Chicago in their cabin plane they had a miniature war within their ranks in the fact that one of the ladies developed a tooth ache. As they passed over Chestertown the ache grew worse and they landed here in quest of a dentist. There being an ample supply of that profession the tooth was soon extracted, a telegram sent to Chicago and they were on their way. According to their story one of their party has just returned from Ethiopia where he took part in the recent confict there and the party is now just flying around looking for another war. One of the ladies saw lots of action in the World War as a nurse. They were very much pleased with Chestertown but did not tarry as there were no openings here for their profession.

VISITORS AT FAIRVIEW FARM

Mr. and Mrs. J. Weldon Walbert have as their house guests, Miss Katherine Elliott, Bristol, Tenn. Mr. and Mrs. Emory W. Eck, Hamilton.

Miss Gloria V. Eck, of Baltimore, is spending the summer with her aunt and uncle,Mr. and Mrs. J. Weldon Walbert, 'Fairview Farm.'

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

WHEREAS, It has pleased Almighty God to remove from a field of extended usefulness, our dearly beloved friend and brother in the Farm Bureau E. Thomas Massey for many years President of The Kent County Farm Bureau, ex-President of Maryland State Farm Bureau and a director of the National Farm Bureau Board and the Kent County Board.

AND WHEREAS, Through the untimely death of Mr. Massey this county, the State and the nation have lost a most hearty loyal supporter a faithful advocate who gave generously of his time and money to further the cause of Agriculture.

RESOLVED, That we the Kent County Farm Bureau Board of Directors humbly bow in submission to the decree of an All Wise Providence.

RESOLVED, That we extend our sincere sympathies to the family of the deceased in their dark hour of grief, reminding them that 'Whom He Loveth He Chasteneth'. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, be spread on our minute book and published in our county papers.

ADVOCATES INTER-STATE CONTROL OF SEAFOOD INDUSTRY

CONVENTION BEING HELD AT OCEAN CITY

The Second Annual Conventoin of the Tri-State Seafood Association which opens in Ocean City Md., on the morning of August 14th has for a guest speaker the chairman of the Nation-wide Eastern Fisheries Association and Editor of the Fishing News, Harold F. Turner of New York.

On being interviewed Mr. Turner said that the Tri-State Seafood Association was the instrument through whch the fisheries of the Chesapeake Bay can be restored to its former prestige. He expects to urge the members to appoint interstate groups which will work out concurrent legislation on problems of the industry which they have in common. Mr. Turner explained that there nave been many cases where state conservation departments would not initiate changes which might be unpopular wtih minority groups and the Association should initiate such changes and see that they are put through.

'Most of the troubles which afflict the industry within a certain state, such as Maryland for instance, are purely due to local conditions and should be handled by the state itself,' said Mr. Turner. 'But the majority of the troubles are interstate, involving several states. To solve these problems requires concerted action by all the states. This is as true of migratory fishes as it has been of migratory wild fowl.' It is expected that Mr. Turner will lay before the Convention a very important plan whereby the fisheries of the Chesapeake Bay may recruit the aid of the other Atlantic Coastal States in backing federal measures badly needed for the restoration of oysters, fish, and crabs in the Chesapeake Area.

'I feel,' continued Mr. Turner, 'that the time has come when the men of the fisheries of Maryland, Virginia and Delaware are quite ready to forego the pleasures of scrapping in order to get together on the new basis of co-operation for mutual advancement. Many fine things should come out of this Convention.'

The Directors of the Association will meet on Friday at 11 A. M. to outline policies of the organization and to nominate officers to be voted upon at the general session of the Convention which will open at 1 p. m. Friday and continue Friday evening and throughout Saturday.

According to the Secretary, Sterling G. Harris, over one hundred packers and dealers from all parts of the Chesapeake Bay and Delaware have expressed their intentions of attending.
