30-DAY DUCK HUNTING SEASON

NO OPEN SEASON ON CANVASBACKS AND REDHEADS

PRESIDENT APPROVES NEW REGULATIONS WITH DRASTIC RESTRICTIONS; STATES ARE DIVIDED INTO THREE ZONES FOR HUNTING

Duck hunters will have 30 days of hunting this fall under restrictions equally as rigid and drastic as those in force last season. Last year also the hunters were allowed only 30 days.

The new Migratory Bird Treaty Act regulations announced today (August 14) by the U. S. Department of Agriculture were recommended by the Biological Survey, adopted by Secretary Wallace, and approved in a proclamation by President Roosevelt.

'These new regulations,' says the Biological Survey, 'continue stringent restrictions on the hunting of waterfowl in order to cut down the animal kill. The restrictions put into force last year were intended to bring about a reduction in the kill and they accomplished that purpose.'

Regulations for this season are summarized by the Survey as follows:

Three zones—northern, intermediate and southern—have been approved for waterfowl hunting. Last year there were two zones, the northern and southern.

In the northern zone the season this year opens October 10 and closes November 8, in the intermediate zone the season is November 1 to 30, and in the southern zone, which includes Maryland, November 26 to December 25.

Three important species of waterfowl, the Atlantic brant and redhead and canvasgack ducks have been placed on the list of fuly protected species this season. These three have not shown the recovery noted in other species.

Last year's regulations not permitting baiting or the use of live decoys and sink boxes or batteries have been strengthened and continued.

Waterfowl and cott may be hunted in season from 7 a. m. to 4 p. m. standard time.

The 3-shell limit on repeating shotguns in effect last year is continued this season. Hunters may use shotguns not larger than No. 10 gauge.

The 100 foot regulation for the location of blinds has been eliminated.

Hunting Restricted In Canada

Drastic restrictions for waterfowl hunting this season in the Provinces have been adopted by Canadian authorities. The Canadian restrictions to a very large degree are commensurate with those for the United States. The open season on waterfowl in Canada has been reduced to two months with a daily bag limit of 12 ducks and 5 geese. Use of live decoy and baiting are also prohibited, and in certain Provinces the use of 'sneak' boats will not be allowed.

'Only by restricting the kill,' says the Biological Survey, 'will it be possible to send more birds back to the newly created breeding grounds in this country and to the Canadian areas where breeding birds are still deficient. In addition to the reduction in the legal kill last year, the illegal kill by duck bootleggers and post-season violators has been substantially curtailed as a result of the activities of U. S. Game Management Agents, Federal under-cover men, and State game officials, aided by stiff penalties imposed upon the violators by Federal and State courts. These gains, however, are not great enough to justfy any general let-up in the restrictions.'

Ducks In Drought Area Suffer Setback

'This year's drought,' continues the Survey, 'has seriously affected the duck crop in the United States and emphasizes the need of continuing restrictions on waterfowl hunting. Heavy losses from the drought have also been reported in the extreme southern portions of the Canadian Prairie Provinces.

'Fortunately, the Canadian breeding grounds that produce the most ducks are farther north and beyond the drought area. After the birds traveled north to their nesting grounds last spring the Survey sent 5 field parties into Canada to check up on the crop of duckings. Cooperation of the Dominion and Provincial game authorities greatly aide dthese parties in their study of the waterfowl situation in Canada.

Redheads and Canvasbacks in Danger

Redheads and Canvasbacks, which have been placed on the list of fully protected species and the shooting of which will be prohibited this year have been overshot in the past, and much of their limited breeding range has been seriously axected by previous droughts as well as by the present drought and other unfavorable conditions. Atlantic brant, another species on the protected list this season, has been seriously affected by the continued shortage of their principal food, the eelgrass.

'Last year's regulations not permitting baiting or the use of live decoys and sink-boxes or batteries were effective in aving ducks,' says the Biological Survey. 'Our migratory waterfowl with scme exceptions are unquestionably slowly recovering the ground they have been steadily losing the last 10 or 15 years, and from all indications the waterfowl situation warrants a short but sharply restricted season.

Season Here Opens November 20

In the southern zone the season opens November 26 and closes December 25. States in this zone are: Alabama, Arkansas, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, New Jersey, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia.

No open season is allowed on snow geese and bant in Florida and in states north thereof that border on the Atlantic coast, and on Ross's geese, wood ducks, ruddy ducks, canvasback ducks, redhead ducks, bufflehead ducks, and swans.

Bag and Possession Limits

Regulations on bag and possession limits, continued from last season, place the daily bag limit on ducks at 10 in the aggregate of all kinds and make the possession limit conform to the daily bag.

Dove Season Same Here

In a number of States the opening date for shooting mourning doves has been set for September 1 by the regulations, but the season in general has been shortened one month. Seasons prescribed for Maryland are: September 30 and November 15 to December 31, Maryland.

Possession of a Federal duck stamp is required by law of every migratory-waterfowl hunter more than 16 years of age. The stamps are on sale at post offices.

Copies of the new regulations, as soon as they are available, mya be obtained from the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.
