NOW AND THEN

THANKSGIVING DAY

The President of these United States has issued a proclamation setting forth the last Thursday in November as a day to give thanks to Almighty God for all his blessings. Do the people observe the day as it is intended?

Many think of it as a day of family gatherings and a sumptious dinner.

In Galilee more than nineteen hundred years ago there were ten lepers. Miserable and shunned by every one they were compelled to cry when any one approached them ::Unclean," Unclean."

As they saw Jesus approach them they cried, Master have mercy upon us. "Jesus stopped and said," Go, show yourselves to the Priest," and it came to pass as they went on their way they were healed.

"And one of them when he saw he was cleansed turned back, and with a loud voice glorified God. And he fell down on his face at his feet giving him thanks; and he was a Samaritan."

And Jesus said: Were there not ten cleansed but where are the nine? They are not found that returned to give glory to God save this stranger."

Every wind that blows high is apt to bring news of disasters of the sea, the sea so changing, sometimes so sparkling and beautiful then angry with great waves dashing to and fro.

Here is a little poem by Cornelius George Fenner, which is a great favorite of the writer.

THE GULF WEED

A weary weed tossed to and fro,
Drearily drenched by the ocean's brine,
Soaring high and sinking low
Lashed along without will of mine;
Sport of the wind of the surging sea;
Flung on the foam afar and anear,
Mark my manifold mystery,
Growth and grace in their place appear
Hearts that are on the sounding shore,
Something whispers soft to me,
Restless and roaming forever more,
Like this weary weed of the sea;
Bear they yet on each beating breast
The eternal type of the wondrous whole
Growth unfolding amidst unrest,
Grace informing with silent soul.

The arrival of J. P. Morgan on the Queen Mary this week caused many newspaper men to meet him hoping to hear the last reports of the stock market, the news of England and of the King's friendship for Mrs. Simpson, but these same reporters went away as empty of news as they came. He refused to tell them anythings. And yet it was rather cheering, too, because during the depression he was so gracious, ready to answer any question. Does not this means that good times have come again?

A Historial Society for Kent County is in the making. The county is full of history, and it is well to preserve the old records. From the time that the Wickes family settled on Eastern Neck Island, until the present time there have been many descendants of that family here, good and useful citizens.

A painting from the old White House by Charles Wilson Peale and a painting found in one of the Wickes homes at Greys Inn are now in the Maryland Historical home in Baltimore.

Dicken's works, which for a long time had occupied the back shelves of the bookcases, have come to the front again. More and more they are startling Dicken's Clubs and the school children are reading his stories with much interest.

Perhaps the celebration of the hundredth anniversary of the writing of that most humorous of tales Pickwick Papers gave an impetus to this revival. Dickehs in his earlier writings was essentially a humorist.

Speaking of a revival of history, it is rather amusing to the tourist when he is looking for historical sites. In New York, one of these tourists paused to look at the statue of Garibold'i, the great hero of Italy. In one moment there were dozens of Italians around eager to tell all about him, and in going to Boston one finds many boys standing around Paul Revere's and the other patriots' homes ready to give a detailed history concerning them.

It is pleasant to see another Edison taking a part in the Nation's business. Charles Edison, artist, and head of the Edison great facturies is appointed Assistant Secretary of the Navy. Judging from his pictures in the papers, he resembles his great father in appearance, and bids fair to be an able assistance in the affairs of government.

THE GARDEN CLUB

The Garden Club and its guests had a most instructive talk by Mrs. Charles F. Peace, State Chairman of State Conservation for the preservation of National Plant Life.

Her talk took place in the attraction room of the Country Club on Tuesday afternoon. A large number were in the audience as other women Clubs were present. Mrs. Peace urged her hearers to do every thing possible to preserve wild plant life. She said that on account of the ravages made by seekers of greens that holly had been destroyed as far south as Pennsylvania, and was in a fair way to be entirely destroyed if there are not efforts made to prevent it: that it would be a good thing for the owners of gardens to raise their own greens, but always in planting them to cut them off. Another thing she urged was never to cut the greens which one is gathering from the top of trees and bushes, but always from the sides as that does not hurt them.

UNCLE SAM

"Uncle Sam" is the prototype of the pioneer in the 1840, or as it is called the "roaring forties." Some one has said that the days of the Revolution tended to produce statesman like face of lawyers and politicians; the pioneer days the rough energetic faces of Abraham Lincoln and Uncle Sam; the modern days of city life and office existence produce a face very much like an apple. This last may not please the city people, but the face of Uncle Sam is like that of a pioneer, just as John Bull represents a beef eating well satisfied Englishman.

RADIANT LIVING

The Blissful Summit of Mt. Pisgha

By Rev. C. M. Griffeth
Pastor Calvary M. E. Church
Sudlersville

The top of Mt. Hermon, upon which it is said the transfiguration of Jesus took place is a region of splintered crags, deep snows, and howling gales. But the height which one reaches in that kind of praying that trnasforms one's will into a perfect harmony with the will of God may be likened to a height bathed in the sunny atmosphere of a perpetual balmy springtime.

If you would like to symbolize this joyous experience which you feel when you have attained that place of full surrender and consecration, in which you have unreservedly accepted God's will and plan for your own life, you might think of a rounded summit of a mountain height. Here upon this summit you may picture a beautiful mansion, the mansion of Divine fellowship. On all sides, as they gently fall away, are laid out lawns and gardens, vineyards and orchards, watered by crystal springs and spraying fountains, interspersed by charming flower-lined walks and arbors, made melodious by songbirds.

This height may well be called Mt. Pisgah, a Hebrew term, meaning "purity." Upon such a summit there reigns an eternal peace, symbolical of that peace which ensues when the human will ceases to struggle against the will of God.

As a certain writer has truly said: "The highest state in religion is a destruction of the selfish will.

It is on such a height of spiritual development that there come those rare moments when God speaks directly to the soul, moments in which the soul hears the divine voice saying: "Thou art my beloved son, the son of adoption."

And it is here, as though in an antiphonal response, the soul, in esctacy, replies: "And Thou, O God, art my Father!"
