HI SPOTS FROM THE HI SCHOOL

By EMORY HINES

With the Thanksgiving holiday now over, only two more weeks of school confront us, and then one of the longest Christmas holidays that we have ever had, will commence. Incidentally, the Yuletide vacation this year is from December eighteenth until January fourth.

Probably the biggest piece of news this week is the fact that the Journalism class is to begin, when the students return from the Christmas recess, a very novel experiment in which newswriting and editing will be made practical. For it this class of ten students, Charlotte Russell, Anne Turner, Harry Hendrickson, Wayne Pote, Nellie Bexley, Kitty Bringman, Joe Weer, Lawrence Brice, Neal Truslow and myself, that will completely publish the January issue of the REFLECTOR. The reason for this idea is because of the early issuing date that the paper comes out on, making it late unless concentrated time is centered upon it by Miss Riches's newswriting students. Whether or not the studying of lead sentences, bodies of stories, organization of material, interviewing, news gathering, news values, and requisites for reporting have helped these journalistic-minded pupils will be quite evident when one has merely read the fourth edition. Picking apart and thorough and yet constructive criticism and discussion has been given all the publications heretofore by the Press Club, hence it is of an interesting value to see whether improvement will be evident in a paper that is edited entirely by those trained especially for such work. The editor and the senior associate, the sports writers, columnists, and feature writers will, however, continue on in their capacities.

Because of his ability to judge cattle successfully, Theodore Redman, a student of the senior class here, has won himself a trip to Chicago. There he will visit the stock yards and meat packing plants during the week of November 27th to December 4th. He will also attend banquets given by Mongomery Ward, Sears, Roebuck, & Co., and others, who are honoring similar winners from all over the country. Mr. Redman was a member of a local team composed of Willson Yerkey, Whitney McCrea, and himself, and became winner thru many elimination contests—his team emerging victorous.

The seniors of the A division seem to have gone in for Shakespeare's works in a big way, for their current study is of the second play this year written by the great author and play-wright. "Hamlet" it is, with "Macbeth" being finished some time ago. The tragedies seem to be well enjoyed by the group, and one of them may by dramatized although it is not certain as yet. All in all, now, we have read Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar", "The Merchant of Venice," and the other two mentioned above.

The latest issue of the REFLECTOR has just come out, the December number, with its make up and style improving each time it is published. The REFLECTOR has recently joined the Quill and Scroll international honorary society for high school journalists, in order that it may, at the end of the year, receive constructive critisism on its various numbers. This organization carefully examines all the submitted REFLECTORS, picking out the good and bad points, thus giving the paper its rating with other comparitive schools of the country.

Another contest winner, worthy of recognition, is Miss Joyce Pote, member of the freshman class, who was just of late notified that she had won first prize ni a Maryland Essay contest. Her answer on "How to Prevent Highway Accidents and Protect Highway Safety", a question asked by the Highway Safety Board of Washington, D. C., has won for her fifteen dollars and a gold metal. This accomplishment makes her essay eligible to compete against others in a national contest, now in progress.

The DRAGON has, not as yet, hit its goal of 100 subscriptions, which is the amount necessary in order to see the venture go thru. Just twelve more are needed to "hit the bell." All the seniors have subscribed and it is the underclassmen that we are trying to sell our product to now. If, by some ill chance fo fate, the DRAGON falls thru this year, it will be discontinued from then on. So late ones, come on and get busy with your pen and ink-your picture will be in it—and don't you want your picture?

Many home room programs were held last Wednesday, November 25, just prior to the Thanksgiving holidays. Many were interesting and I, therefore, think some of them worthwhile to be spoken of here.

Edgar Bennett's "Thanksgiving Memories" and Mary Newton's and Lillian Archibald's dialogue "What I did on Thanksgiving Day" were the high spots on Mrs. Brice's home room program; while Flossie and Doris Coleman's duet on "Poor Little Turkey" especially entertained Miss Riches's room, who had Rosalie Bonnett in charge of the program. Miss Russell's pupils were amused by a harmonica and kazoo duet played by Edmund Miller and George Rupert.

The students of Miss Carroll gave a worthwhile program, it being drawn up by Helen Culver, Frances Harris, and Jack Kibler. Anna Lucht's "Story of the Mother of Thanksgiving," Hazel Mason's "First Thanksgiving at Plymouth," and Marie Schauber's poem, "At Thanksgiving" composed Mr. Martin's program in charge of Van Whiting. John Gill led the program of Mr. Fleetwood's room, and James Watkins, of Miss Bryan's room. The latter class presented "The Courtship of Miles Standish" very effectively.

We like the suggestion of the editorial of the current REFLECTOR and wonder if any actions will be brought about by it. And in case you are wondering just what it is about please let me reprint it.

"With Thanksgiving now in the past, we look with admiration upon those many schools near and far so completely shared in making the away from Chestertown High, who festivity happy for someone else. Food baskets, with their contents contributed entirely by student donations, were distributed to many a needy and thankful family, thus making Thanksgiving something to look happily towards.

Even though one such holiday has passed, there is still an opportunity to do some bit of "cheer spreading" for Christmas. It is the REFLECTOR'S suggestion that C. H. S. take part in creating Christmas baskets and that each home room be responsible for at least one. Canned goods, fresh vegetables, bread, jellies, and perhaps poultry, would all be welcomed by some particular family.

Let your home room president organize the items you will need and receive the contributions. Let's do our share in creating traditional Yuletide Cheer in this way. There are ten home rooms. Why can't there be ten baskets filled to act a appropriate presents?"

And may I say I hope the plan will go over and that you readers will take an adequate interest in something that is very worthwhile.

A varied and different report of the histories of two famous stamps, one valued now at $50,000 and the other the Martus stamp of 1847, were told of by Eleanor Jones nad Elsie May Ireland at the last meeting of the stamp club.

Plans are underway now for the Freshman - Sophomore Dramatic Club to present their first play of the year in assembly on December eighteenth. "The Christmas Carol" is its title, and it will be directed by Miss Harriet Louisa Rogers. Freshman and Sophomores will be able to attend it free, and other types of entertainment will also be given. As yet the characters have not been chosen.

The Cambridge High School won the Eastern Shore High School Soccer Championship by defeating Chesapeake City this week. They will play the Western Shore champs for the State championship.

Preliminary study of a direct highway from Delmar to Pocomoke by way of Salisbury has been made, State Roads Commission officials have announced.

The statement pointed out that the study was made in connection with the state-wide traffic survey now going on. The purpose was to learn what kind of a road should be built if the traffic survey shows the need for such a route. The traffic count, which has not been completed, will show how many cars would use the new route under study. The investigation, termed 'a very preliminary one,' did not go into the type of road to be built.

At the same time, officials of the Ocean Highway Association, released the partial text of a letter the association had received recently from Dr. Homer E. Tabler, chairman of the commission, saying that 'our survey has been started between Delmar and Pocomoke City.'
