Pop-Overs

3 eggs, beaten lightly
2 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups milk, about

Make this batter smooth and press through a seive, and bake in muffin tins in a very slow oven for 25 minutes, increase heat, and bake for about 15 minutes longer.

The two most common faults of amateur cooks are not giving sufficient time and attention to the following of recipes and ignorance of the varying action of heat.

Life Has Flair In Ober Gurgl

R. H. M., in Christian Science Monitor

I am writing this in a very large hotel in a very small Tyrolean village called Ober Gurgl. According to its blurb, its the highest "church village" in Europe. And its tall-steepled little church is very beautiful, as are hte many others in Tyrol.

Ober Gurgl has a personality. That is characteristic of Tyrol. It is a distinctive land, made up of distinctive localities with distinctive histories. The costumes here are original, the place names unusual, the architecture fascinating.

There is nothing commonplace about Tyrol Take the last stretch of road, for example, to Ober Gurgl. It's a private highway ten miles long and belongs to the busman. The state sold him a monopoly over that road and it is just as narrow as his machine, which has six gears.

Two cars could not possibly pass on it. In fact, a dog could hardly pass a car there.

Private cars can use this road if their owners pay the busman toll. In such a case they must go up after the bus and come down after it. This is a one-way street.

And before the road proprietor sells a toll ticket, he carefully measures the car with a tape line from fender edge to fender edge. After which he solemnly says you make the trip at your own risk.

Yet this isolated life is far from colorless. Just the contrary. Here life sparkles and scintillates. It is full of color and throbs with robust, exuberant energy. That's what mountains give to their children—vigor and ardor. The colder the mountains, the warmer the colors, the wilder the phantasy, the jauntier the bearing.

The cabinetmakers of Tyrol for centuries have made beautiful charts, chairs, cupboards and statues. Such furniture is rough, but it shouts of mountains, flowers, birds, piety, and romance.

Tyrol iron workers have turned hinges, locks, lanterns, keys and everything else they touch into objects of beauty. "Say it in iron" was a Tyrolese slogan, even before there were slogans. And the meisters here can say anything with iron.

The leather goods of Tyrolean meisters delight visitors from the end of the earth. Tyrolean hats and short breeches are worn by men and women in all the five continents. Tyrol close-bodiced, short-skirted Dirndels make most other outing cotumes for women look drab.

A Tyrolean home, inn, or mountain hut displays that same ardent exhilaration. They are brown houses with red, purple, orange flowers in the windows. They have spacious balconies and enormous eaves. The gorgeousness of the flowers makes up for the meagerness of the fields.

Nothing is simple or plain in Tyrol. There's a gentian painted on your milk stool, your prosaic purse has a heart on it your stove looks like a war monument, your key would serve as a medallion, the sign in front of your butcher shop might well adorn a palace, each cradle is a masterpiece of art Whatever it worth making is worth making with a flourish.

You can go from one side of Tyrol to the other in about half an hour, from one end to the other in three hours, but you must travel very fast to escape its lure and if you once stop you will be captured.

It is said that the most food value in edible roots is right under the skin. It is therefore well to peel or scrape them thinly.

Mammoth Broth

The biggest broth of recent times was brewed at the revival of the famous old-time Gypsy party at Baildon, Yorks, says London Tit-Bits Magazine. Five thousand guests partook of it, and more than 3,000 pounds sterling was raised for charity in the carnival that followed. The broth, which was made from an ancient recipe, was composed chiefly of 1,000 pounds of vegetables plus 600 pounds of peas, 500 pounds of meat, and 60 pounds of condiments. There were also scores of chickens and little-known herbs to give it piquancy. The preparation alone took three days and the cooking twenty-four hours! This broth is reminiscent of a certain very holy soup made once in seven years by the monks of a remote monastery in the Keun Lun mountains on the borders of Tibet. It is brewed in immense iron cauldrons, each eight feet high, and the pilgrims walk slowly round the rim of raised platforms. Sometimes their religious fervor exceeds their discretion and they plunge head first in, to become part of the soup.

Easy Pleasant Way To LOSE FAT

How would you like to lose 15 pounds of fat in a month and at the same time increase your energy and improve your health?

How would you like to lose your double chin and your too prominent hips and abdomen and at the same time make your skin so clean and clear that it will compel admiration?

Get on the scale to-day and see how much you weigh—then get a bottle of Kruschen Salts that costs next to nothing and which will last you 4 weeks. Take one half teaspoonful in a glass of hot water in the morning—cut down on pastry and fatty meats—go light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar—and when you have finished the contents of this first bottle weigh yourself again.

After that you'll want to walk around and say to your friends, "One bottle of Kruschen Salts is worth one hundred dollars of any fat person's money."

But refuse imitations—safeguard your health—you loose fat SAFELY the Kruschen way.

NOTE—Many people find that the only diet change necessary while taking Kruschen regularly is TO EAT LESS.

THOSE WHO REMAIN

When death visits a home, the first concern is to perform the last service to the loved one in a becoming manner. What ever is done must express all the reverance and affection that is felt at such a time. But in addition to this a further responsibility rests upon the funeral director. It is his privilege and duty to lessen as far as lies with in his power, the burdens laid upon those who remain. By countless little acts of thoughtfulness he can make the way easier for them.

We consider this part of our work as important as any other. Our highest aim is to have our patrons look upon us as trusted friends, ready and anxious to render sympathetic assistance to those who remain behind.
