Monday, 9 A. M., Conference session, announcement of ministerial appointments and adjournment.

Among the major questions that may be discussed at the Conference will be President Roosevelt's proposal reform of the Federal judicial system and the enlargement of the membership of the Supreme Court. The liquor problem and the future of the child labor problem are also expected to come up for discussion, as well as the proposed three-denomination merger.

In conjunction with the ministerial conference, the Laymen's Association, holding its twenty-first annual session, with Harry B. Wright, Preston, presiding is expected to discuss the question of the Supreme Court, along with the questions of the proposed merger of the denomination with the Methodist Protestant and Methodist Episcopal South Churches, reopening of Wesley Collegiate Institute at Dover, Del., and improvement of the churches' educational, membership and financial programs, according to Charles W. Cook, Jr., of Wilmington, secretary.

The Association will elect new officers and organize its program on Friday morning, April 2. That afternoon and Saturday morning the lay delegates will meet in united sessions with the ministerial delegates to act on important Conference matters of mutual interest.
